thiana 41 to Carlisle 31, and from the 25 to score the fourth touchdown.

In the first minutes of the last quarter the Bulldogs drove 44 yards on seven plays to add the last touchdown, which came on a six yard off tackle plunge.

The lone Carlisle touchdown resulted from mass substitution by the Cynthiana coach. In the waning minutes of play the Wildketeers drove 90 yards in nine plays to score. After taking a punt on their own ten, McGuffy carried five times, Gayle Wilson once and passed once, and Henry carried twice during the drive. McGuffy tallied the touchdown and extra point.

Harold Letton to head Farm Bureau for third year; Directors named

The Nicholas County Farm Bureau members re-elected Harold B. Letton, president of their organization for the third consecutive year last Thursday evening at their annual meeting.

Other officers elected were James C. Lowe, vice president and John E. Soper, Jr., secretary-treasurer, with G. E. Curtsinger, Sal Flora, Walter Hudson and Kenneth Stephenson being named as new directors of organization. Old directors include John Hamilton, Earl Harrell, James C. Lowe, John Soper, Jr., Howard Sidle, Homer Sidle, Noble Gillispie, Lawrence Rankin, Harold B. Letton, Robert Hatton, Raymond Coy, W. O. Doyle, Sr., Charles Samuel, Raymond H. C. Flower, Wagner Sam Smith, E. F. Plunkett, Raymond House and Glenn Clay.

Other officers and directors were elected the president listed a few of the accomplishments of the year which included:

Conducted county meetings on policy development to determine what our membership wants done in legislative and program affairs, helped finance the district king and queen contest, paid expenses for two delegates to Kentucky Farm Bureau Convention, subscribed to Doane's Agricultural Digest to be kept in the Extension Office for farmer's use, maintained membership in the Carlisle-Nicholas County Chamber of Commerce, selected John Hamilton outstanding young farmer in Nicholas County, paid for 34 alfalfa soil tests, voted to sponsor a 4-H or F.F.A. boy in a strawberry project, bought record book for secretary in which all records of Farm Bureau are kept, sponsored the Gasoline Tax refund program, both state and federal.

Cooperated in the Blood Bank program, sent five boys to 4-H Week in Lexington, participated in the Blackberry Festival with winning third place, donated $10 to Horse Show, held discussion on Soil Bank, donated $25 to Youth Fair, held discussion on Road Bond Issue and Health Tax, paid long distance telephone calls for purpose of supporting our agricultural program, provided a junior football uniform, held fish fry in July for entire membership, and assisted with educational programs in Nicholas County dealing with improved practices for farm and home.

Other business transacted included the changing of their annual meeting date to be held in conjunction with the Fish Fry, during the month of July.

Butler Speaks

At the conclusion of the business session, William T. Straw, county agent, introduced Ben Butler, Kentucky's Commissioner of Agriculture, who explained the duties and responsibilities of the Kentucky Department of Agriculture to the group and expressed the desire of his office for more people to organize and inform the Department of other ways in which they might help rural people. Mr. Butler emphasized the need of Farm Bureau groups planning and developing policies at County level which might be further developed by State and Federal agencies to promote better means of farming and rural living.

Sheep protective group elects new officers

The Nicholas County Sheep Protective Association elected Sam Smith as president for the coming year at their annual dinner meeting held Friday night at the Masonic Hall. Other officers elected include E. H. D. Allison, vice-president and Lucy Fleet Allison as secretary-treasurer. Community directors include: Charles Whaley, East Union; Fred Whaley, Moorefield; Willie Stone, Myers; Andy Holland, Ellisville; Fritz Gaunce, Bartersville; E. H. D. Allison, Headquarters; Robert S. Crockett, Parks, and Sam Smith, Carlisle.

Control Losses

The sheep association was organized to help sheepmen control their losses from dogs 16 years ago. Payments through their insurance program have been very effective although their main objective was to curb the losses over the county to all farmers. This effort has been very effective as their past president, Joe Holland's annual report listed only one $12 loss to the association the past year. The cooperation of the sheep association with local county officials in controlling the population of stray dogs in the county to keep sheep loss by dogs to an all time minimum is a goal that all members of the association seem to be very proud. All sheep producers should recognize the work of the organization in cooperation with local authorities.

All members of the Association are to report their losses to the Community directors within 24 hours after which the directors will appraise and report the loss to the Association for payment.

Farmers interested in the insurance program of the association may contact any of the officers or directors about the program or their county Agent, William T. Straw. Insurance rates for grade animals are 15c annually and 30c for registered animals.

Nurse Is Injured In Fall At Hospital

City MYF plans activity month

The Methodist Youth Fellowship are observing the month of November as "Youth Activity Month," according to Faye Roundtree, publicity chairman.

Each Sunday at 5 p.m. the youth will meet in the educational building for fellowship and recreation under the direction of Lynda Snelling, chairman of Christian fellowship. Supper will be served each night at 5:45 by different classes of the adult division.

A class period will be held at 6:15 with Mrs. Clyde Snelling and Mrs. Sterling Blake as instructors. At 6:45 a brief devotional will be given by the young people.

At the evening hour of worship 7 o'clock, young people will participate in the reading of the Scripture, leading prayers, as ushers and the rendering of special music.

THE GIFT CASE at the Nicholas County hospital was started by the Hospital Auxiliary just a year ago and has been a great success. Donations of any article a sick person could use and enjoy are most welcome at any time. Wash cloths with crocheted edge are a great favorite with patients. Mrs. A. V. Allison was president when this feature was added. —Campbell photo

800 lives saved from diabetic death in state

Lives of over 800 diabetic Kentuckians have been saved for happy, normal living as a result of the free diabetes tests offered by physician members of the Kentucky State Medical Association, it was reported today by Carlisle Morse, M.D., Louisville, K.S.M.A. Diabetes Committee chairman, as he announced plans for the state's sixth annual diabetes detection drive to be held from November 11 to 17.

During the drive, which is held as a part of National Diabetes Week in cooperation with the American Diabetes Association, every doctor of medicine, hospital and laboratory in the state is asked to give a free urine sugar test to all persons requesting it.

"Approximately 160,000 diabetes tests have been given free during the drives since they began in 1951," Dr. Morse said. "The tests re-assured the great

Democratic tide running; precinct workers hold key

Yes vote sought on health levy

Nicholas County citizens will be asked to vote Nov. 6, on establishing a taxing district for the purpose of maintaining their health department.

The tax cannot go above twelve cents on $100 assessed property valuation. If your property is assessed at $1,000 you would only be asked to pay $1.20 a year for public health in Nicholas County. Is this asking too much of you, if it will help make your county a healthier and safer place in which to live?

Your health department has provided your children with advice and service during the years we lost in the precincts. You good and faithful Democrats in the precincts are the most important people in the Party organization. You are the backbone of the Democratic Party. We count on you to carry the fight and to win it."

In a wire to leaders of the Democratic Party and of the Volunteers for Stevenson-Kefauver, Finnegan said:

"I haven't conceded a single state and neither has Adlai Stevenson or Estes Kefauver. After Maine and Alaska why should we?"

Finnegan urged Democratic and Volunteer leaders to drive home in precinct workers that what they do "in the next six days will determine the outcome of the election," and he urged that every precinct worker be reminded that:

"Adlai Stevenson and Estes Kefauver have carried out the hardest-driving campaign in our country's political history. They deserve the same kind of fighting spirit from the rest of us that they are showing.

"Finally, I hope you'll make sure every Democratic worker knows what we're fighting for: We're fighting for peace. We're fighting for prosperity for all of our people. We're fighting for justice and equal opportunity for every American. We'll win if we keep on fighting."

Next six days may decide race

Leaders of the Democratic campaign told precinct workers this week that the key to Democratic victory is in their hands.

James A. Finnegan, chairman of the Stevenson-Kefauver Campaign Committee, said the "tide is running in our favor, and we're going to keep it running . . . If you keep on fighting hard, the way you started out right after the Convention, we'll elect Adlai Stevenson and Estes Kefauver."

Precincts the Key

Paul M. Butler, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, told Democratic workers:

"I remind you that elections are won or lost in the precincts. You good and faithful Democrats in the precincts are the most important people in the Party organization. You are the backbone of the Democratic Party. We count on you to carry the fight and to win it."

In a wire to leaders of the Democratic Party and of the Volunteers for Stevenson-Kefauver, Finnegan said:

"I haven't conceded a single state and neither has Adlai Stevenson or Estes Kefauver. After Maine and Alaska why should we?"

Finnegan urged Democratic and Volunteer leaders to drive home in precinct workers that what they do "in the next six days will determine the outcome of the election," and he urged that every precinct worker be reminded that:

"Adlai Stevenson and Estes Kefauver have carried out the hardest-driving campaign in our country's political history. They deserve the same kind of fighting spirit from the rest of us that they are showing.

COSTUME WINNERS—Kenneth Gaunce, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Gaunce was proclaimed winner of the Hallowe'en Carnival's ugliest costume contest and Miss Patty Gaunce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Gaunce was prettiest winner.
