Farm housing loans available

A line of credit now available from the Farmers Home Administration should help a good many farm owners in this area improve or build farm buildings, including houses or provide water for household or farmstead use for themselves or their tenants.

A total of $50,000,000 has been provided for Farm Housing loans under present legislation.

Farm Housing loans are repayable over periods up to 33 years at 4% interest and are secured by a mortgage on the farm.

To be eligible, an applicant must be owner of the farm, be unable to obtain suitable credit, for dwellings and other buildings from other lenders, and have enough income from the farm or from the farm and other sources to meet family living expenses, pay farm operating expenses, and repay his debts. The local Farmers Home Administration County Committee will determine whether or not the applicant is eligible for a Farm Housing Loan.

The agency expects applicants to obtain the building plans and specifications for the improvements to be financed with the loans. To help the borrower obtain construction that meets generally accepted standards of soundness, the Farmers Home Administration will review the plans and inspect the construction as it progresses.

Farm Owners may get further information at the Farmers Home Administration county office located in the Brumfield Building in Cynthiana, where Rob Roy Norton, County Supervisor for Harrison and Nicholas counties is in charge. Mr. Norton holds office day for Nicholas County each Tuesday morning in the post office building at Carlisle.

Recipe of the week

No matter how tight the food budget, a housewife is spending wisely when she sees that the recommended amounts of milk for health are used every day, says Mrs. Pearl Haak, UK Extension foods specialist. The milk and cheese used in a recipe, such as cheese souffle, can take the place of some of the liquid milk called for per person.

On the basis of calcium provided, 1½ ounces of Cheddar cheese equals ½ pint of milk.

CHEESE SOUFFLE

2½ c milk
1½ c fine dry bread crumbs
1½ T butter
¾ lb Cheddar cheese
¼ t paprika
1 t salt
6 eggs

Heat the milk, bread crumbs and butter in a double boiler. Add the grated cheese to the hot mixture and stir until the cheese has melted. Add salt and paprika. Beat egg yolks thoroughly and add cheese mixture. Beat egg whites until stiff, then fold them into the hot mixture. Pour into a greased baking dish set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven, 300 degrees, for 1 hour or until set and lightly browned on top. Serves 8 to 10.

Luncheon Menu: Cheese souffle, frozen peas, tossed green salad, French bread that has been buttered and heated, and fresh raspberries on ice cream.

Don't Neglect Milk Says Food Specialist

June, which has been named Dairy Month, is a good time for mothers to note whether or not their families are getting enough milk.

Every family member, from the baby to grandfather and grandmother, needs milk daily, says Mrs. Lucille Warren, specialist in foods at the University of Kentucky. Milk provides the necessary calcium for strong bones and teeth, the B vitamin, riboflavin, for healthy nerves and skin, and protein to repair and build body cells. In attition, milk provides other vitamins, minerals, fats and sugars.

It takes a large daily supply of milk from infancy through the teens to provide enough calcium for growing bodies. Prospective and nursing mothers also need generous amounts. Older adults can get along with a lesser supply, but not with as little as is sometimes thought.

How Much Milk

Here are the minimum daily amounts of milk recommended:

Children, 1½ pts to a qt
Teen-agers, 1 qt
Nursing mothers, 1½ qts
Other adults, all ages, 1 pt

Cheese, ice cream, and foods prepared with milk will provide a portion of these amounts. Where weight control may be a problem, skim milk, buttermilk or non-fat powdered milk may be used.

A single copy of the bulletin "Getting Enough Milk," (HG 57) area of the same size in the may be had free from the Office of Information, USDA, Washington 25, D. C. The bulletin contains more than 40 recipes and other valuable information.

Corner of Celebrities, is a two-block area in Frankfort where it is claimed more famous people have lived than in any other world. In this area, located between Wilkinson and Washington streets, have lived two U. S. supreme court justices, two U. S. cabinet officers, nine U. S. Senators, seven governors, six congressmen, seven foreign representatives, three admirals and three generals.

Car, truck smash-up injures four

A car driven by Louis Frank lin, Jr. of Paris, Ohio, and a Gilbert Grocery truck driven by Douglas Taul of Maysville collided about 2:30 p.m. Wednesday near the intersection of the Bartersville road and U. S. 68.

Four of the Franklin children who were passengers in the car were injured. Steven Franklin, 4 years old, received a broken arm and Jean, Danny and Sandra Franklin received cuts and bruises.

Damage to the Franklin car was estimated by sheriff J. Milton Fryman, who investigated the accident, at $1,000. The truck was slightly damaged.

The injured children were taken to the Nicholas County hospital for treatment.

Gigging season now underway

Experimental gigging for rough fish in the South Fork of Licking River and its tributaries in seven counties opened Saturday, June 15, the Department of Fisheries of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources announced today. This season, which is for both gigging and bow and arrow hunting, will be terminated when sufficient data on the taking of rough fish in this manner has been completed.

The portion of South Licking River and its tributaries located in Pendleton, Harrison and Bourbon Counties will be open. Tributary streams in the following counties will also be included. These streams are in Nicholas County—Hinkston Creek, Brushy Creek and Somerset Creek; in Grant county—Grassy Creek, Stoney Creek, Little Creek and Crooked Creek; in Clark County—Strodes Creek, Hancock Creek, Hoods Creek, Stone, Creek, Little Stoner Creek and Lulbegrud Creek; in Montgomery county — Hinkston Creek, Somerset Creek and Grassy Creek.

Only rough fish may be taken. There is no creel limit. Gigging is not permitted from boat or platform nor within 200 yards below any dam. Participants wishing to gig during this experimental season must have the proper fishing license. Also, (Continued on page 4)

R. T. Kirkland dies of heart attack Friday

R. T. Kirkland, 84, a retired Carlisle merchant, died at 9:20 a.m. last Friday at the Nicholas County hospital, where he was admitted at 4 a.m. suffering from a heart attack.

Kirkland was born in Fleming county, and since 1917 has lived in Carlisle where he operated the Kirkland Department Store, until his retirement five years ago.

Before coming to Carlisle, he conducted a general merchandise business in Moorefield and was a stockholder and director in the Moorefield Deposit Bank, until it was closed two years ago.

Kirkland was a member and a Steward of the Methodist church.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Allie Peters Kirkland, to whom he had been married 61 years, and a sister, Mrs. Anna K. Bell of Mowrystown, Ohio.

Funeral services were held at 3 p.m. Saturday at the Methodist church with Rev. G. H. Bierley officiating. Burial was in the Bethel cemetery.

Pallbearers were Allen Hopkins, Robert Fisher, Paul Garrett, Morris Whiteley, Custer Blair, Sterling Blake.

Honorary bearers were members of the official board of the Methodist church with Russell Shrout, J. Harve Wilson and Earl Marshall added.

May bond sales here total $12,406

Roger Womack, Savings Bonds Chairman for Nicholas County, today announced that the county's sale of Series E and H Savings Bonds during May amounted to $12,406. Sales for the five-month period are $56,637. The county's goal for 1957 is $165,760.

Sales for the entire state during May amounted to $4,807,019, which brings the cumulative figure to $24,600,523. The state's 1957 goal is $60,603,040.

In making the above announcement, Mr. Womack issued the following statement:

"Passage of legislation to increase interest on E & H Bonds has brought numerous inquiries from holders of bonds purchased prior to February 1, 1957, as to how the change would affect their bonds. In most cases it will not be advantageous to redeem old bonds to buy new ones. Any bond that is 2½ years old or older, and has not reached first maturity, will earn more than 3½ percent on its current redemption value as it grows to maturity. Series E Bonds which have reached first maturity since May 1952 and are retained under the extension privilege, are already yielding a full 3 percent compounded semi-annually.

"A part of every American's Savings Belongs in U. S. Savings Bonds. Are you buying your share?"

Nicholas, one of few counties whose court houses have not burned; present edifice erected in 1893

Editor's Note: The letter which follows is reprinted from a clipping from the July 27, 1937 issue of The Carlisle Mercury and was given to the writer some months ago by Mr. W. T. Parker, a former sheriff of Nicholas County. The picture is a copy of a photograph owned by Mrs. Alice R. Fisher of Archdeacon avenue.

Cynthiana, Ky.

Mr. Warren Fisher,
Editor, Carlisle Mercury,
Carlisle, Kentucky

Dear Sir:

In re your article captioned "Twins 78 Years Old," and republished in today's Lexington Herald, I seemed to recall on reading it that a Cynthiana man was credited by "Perrin," in his history of Harrison, Scott, Bourbon and Nicholas counties, with building the Court House in Carlisle which was erected in 1844. I refer to the late Greenup R. Remington, grandfather of our Judge James C. Dedman, and a well known contractor in Cynthiana in the first quarter of the 1900's. Looking up the matter I find that I am correct.

Am giving you excerpts from a letter which I wrote for the Cynthiana Democrat some years ago, which has a bearing on the subject.

"And here it appears the county seat was located at the first court was held at the residence of Martin Baker, site not stated. At this meeting a site was chosen for the location of the county seat, on the land of Henry Clay, Jr., on Main Lick, opposite Bedinger's Mills, and a jail, but no court house erected."

The court was not allowed however, to meet here long in peace and tranquility, as an act was passed by the state legislature in 1804 to remove the county seat to the farm of James Ellis. This was done the next year, and a log court house and jail erected. Again, in May of 1816, the question of moving the county seat came up. At the meeting propositions were received from no less than seven individuals offering sites. In the end the proposition of one John Kincart was accepted. And so the county seat of Nicholas came to rest at Carlisle, supposed to have been named in honor of Carlisle, Pa., some of the early settlers having come from that vicinity.

Here then a court house was completed in 1818, which served its purpose until 1844, when it was torn down and a new one erected. In this connection it is interesting to note that one of the contracting parties on this building was a Cynthiana man, Greenup R. Remington.

Time went on and it is building having proved inadequate for the growing community, it was in turn demolished and the present handsome edifice arose, in 1893, I believe. It is worth recording here that Nicholas is one of the few counties in this vicinity which, at some time or the other, has not had a court house destroyed by fire.

In 1853 "the first Nicholas County newspaper, the Carlisle Ledger, was published by Col. Sam J. Hill. his paper changed hands in 1855, and appeared at a time under a new name, the Carlisle American. It seems however, to have dropped out of sight, and we next hear, 1860, of a monthly newspaper, the Nicholas Advocate, which was got ten out by Campbell, Bruce and McIntyre. Just what befell this little sheet is not recorded; and we now come to the Carlisle Mercury, founded by Dr. Presley Kinsley and W. R. Anno in 1867, which under various owners has continued on down to the present time. And here we are reminded that the "Mercury" for a number of years was owned and edited by an ex-Cynthiana man, Green R. Keller, grandson of the Green R. Remington, mentioned above. At the present day it is owned and edited by Warren Fisher.

Getting started on the above, I have probably copied more than I intended. However, it is barely possible that there may be something contained therein, which will be news to you.

Very truly yours,
John M. Croxwell

AN OLDSTER—Nicholas County's second court house which was torn down, not burned, to make way for the present edifice. The small brick building to the left was the sheriff's office, while the building to the right housed the judge's chambers. Greenup R. Remington mentioned in the accompanying article was the grandfather of Mrs. Alice Fisher.
