Interest Rates—Bond Market

Since the consumer will be spending more and business will be building up inventories and pouring out more funds for capital-equipment programs, there will inevitably be some upward pressure on interest rates. But we stress once more that we do not anticipate another traumatic credit crunch such as occurred during the closing years of the 1960's. The brunt of any interest-rate rise is likely to come at the short end of the money-rate scale, with only a moderate firming of long-term rates. Keep in mind that the total of new housing starts will probably ease a it in 1973. Moreover, corporations are generally in good financial condition after building up their resources over the past two years with the aid of the investment tax credit. The Babson staff looks for corpolcate profits after taxes to go up about 12% in the new year compared with 16% in 1972. Even this smaller gain, however—coupled with the freeze on corporate dividend disbursements—will enhance business liquidity.

One area of danger in the money-rate picture may be traced to the government's doorstep. The U.S. Treasury is slated for fairly active refinancing in 1973, and the unusual and unexpected tax receipts that have come in during 1972 through overwithholding will not be seen in the new year. Whether the Treasury's debt-management efforts will pose a problem depends on inflation prospects. If, as now seems to be increasingly accepted, the general public feels that inflation is being restrained, the federal refinancing projects are likely to occur without undue pressure on interest rates.

Hence, bond prices will probably show sporadic signs of softness in the short to intermediate sectors of the maturity scale. But on the long-term end prices should be generally well maintained. In general, 1973 should offer ample opportunity to make selected purchases of bonds and preferred stocks of good quality for investors who need to nail down a fair amount of fixed income from their investments. Wherever possible, however, some inflation hedge should be sought, even to the point of sacrificing a little income on a portion of investment capital. This part of investment funds can be placed on some attractively priced convertible debentures and convertible preferred stocks.

Bigger Tax Bite?

The outcry for tax reform, the staggering projected federal budget deficit, and the need for help at state and local levels indicate that somewhere along the line in 1973 there must be a heavy tax wallop. The staff of Babson's Reports does feel, however, that by closing tax loopholes of the more glaring sort and putting some restraints on public spending, the federal government can avoid an outright increase in both corporate and personal income taxes in the coming year, over and above the social security tax hike that is already scheduled to take effect Jan. 1, 1973.

Stock Market Outlook

The stock market during 1973 will have three powerful factors in its corner: (1) The element of peace; (2) the generally healthy economic climate; and (3) the decisive hurdling of the 1,000 mark by the Dow Jones Industrial Average which is whetting the investment appetite. These are considerations that tend to stiffen investment confidence substantially. On the assumptions that corporate profits can post another gain during the coming year and that inflation can be prevented from running away, the Dow Jones Industrial Average can be expected to work into still higher territory over the next 12 months. The possibility of a move past the 1,100 mark, to even a challenge of the 1,200 level, should not be ruled out.

THE HOME GAME

by MARY FUREY CRYMES

APPLE ANYTIME NOG — Make a refreshing, nourishing eggnog any season with apple juice. Pour a cup in a blender, add an egg and a fourth-cup of nonfat milk solids. Whirl together quickly, sprinkle with nutmeg and enjoy.

CORNY STORY — Cold winter nights call for hot, buttered popcorn. After popping, dress it with melted butter and grated cheese. Or, add a few sesame or poppy seeds for extra crunch. A new flavor-add, a couple of tablespoons of sugar and a grated lemon rind to the butter before mixing it in.

CAKE HOLDERS — Plastic drinking straws, cut into tiny pieces and inserted strategically into the bottom layer of a cake, will keep the top from sliding off. Quick and safer than toothpicks, too.

HICCUP HANGUP — Good old granulated sugar is an almost sure cure for hiccups. Give the hiccupee a teaspoonful and wait — it works in most cases.

HOORAY HOLLANDAISE — For those who "have no luck" with the tangy French sauce, there's now a sure-fire hollandaise. Into the top of a double-boiler mix four egg yolks, a cup of sour cream, a tablespoon of lemon juice, salt and a dash of red pepper. Place over hot, not boiling water, and let simmer. You can leave it indefinitely: sauce will not curdle.

BELT BOUNTY — Car seat belts are great for holding bulky packages you do not want to tip over on the road. This goes for groceries, milk bottles and other liquids you're carrying. Belts will hold the packages upright. Put the other belt around you.

HONEY HANDS — Wintry weather have your hands red and rough? Smooth them with a homemade ointment concocted with the white of one raw egg, a teaspoon of glycerine and an ounce of honey. Mix these and add enough raw oatmeal to make a paste. Rub it on hands thoroughly at night, and, if they're really chapped, wear gloves to bed.

TAPE TRICK — Those pesty glue marks that remain on china and glassware after you've removed price tags can sometimes be taken off with cellophane tape. Slap a strip over the glue, leave one end loose, and pull the tape off quickly. Glue should come with it.

MEDICINE CHEST

by H. BOSWELL YORK, R. PH.

I have been to many doctors and have tried virtually every tranquilizer in the book, but I still can't get relief from my tensions. Is there something brand new that you might suggest? – Mrs. G.

Perhaps this might be new to you. Try a "spiritual" prescription. They are available from most ordained people at places of worship.

How important is a wetting solution for contact lenses? – B.M.

If it's comfort you want, you better use the wetting solution. This solution makes the lenses compatible with lacrimal fluid (tears). A cushioning and lubricating effect results between the inner surface of the eyelid, and between the cornea and lens surface.

Are hearing aids and eye glasses tax deductible?

Yes, and so are any expenses you pay for their maintenance. Find out what is deductible, then keep a record of expenses in my 1973 Medical Expense Record Book. Send two 8-cent stamps, $1, and your name and address to me in care of this newspaper.

A NEW YEAR PRESCRIPTION: A year's supply of the following:

Capsule 1 (prayer hope, enthusiasm, plans). Take one every morning.

Capsule 2 (patience, understanding, goodwill, endurance). Take one after lunch.

Capsule 3 (forgiveness, reflection, relaxation, rest). Take one at bedtime.

A Healthy and Happy New Year to all!

Send your questions concerning drugs and prescriptions to Medicine Chest, in care of this newspaper.

WOMAN'S WORKWORLD

by JULIE THOMAS PITMAN

A, bow-wow idea for small dog fanciers is to become a "backyard breeder." Pedigree puppies often sell for prices ranging from $50-250 — or more for what are called quality pet puppies. National champion dogs sell in the 4-figure range.

Real dog lovers find this business pure joy but not clear profit. Even with a good healthy litter, you may have expenses of $50 or so for veterinary and related puppy costs. If you don't own a male, you'll have to pay a stud fee (perhaps $150), or give the stud's owner the pick of the litter. Bear in mind that selling prices and breeding expenses vary in different parts of the country; both are generally higher in big cities and lower in smaller communities.)

If you have a genuine interest in a specific breed, attend dog shows. Ask exhibitors and handlers questions until you become knowledgeable in all aspects. Join the breed club of your choice to compare hundreds of dogs of the same type. Only then will you acquire a keen understanding of what conformation, for instance, is all about.

You will have to buy breeding stock — at least 1, preferably 2 brood bitches. A fenced-in yard and heated basement or utility room are enough for a few dogs. If barking is a problem, send your dogs outdoors in relays to avoid neighbors' complaints. If you plan to house more than a few dogs, you should check local licensing and zoning regulations for kennels.

Sidelines to the puppy business include: grooming, obedience training, pet boarding, and selling supplies such as leashes, dog beds and toys. If you like waggly tails and don't mind wielding a poop-scoop, raising puppies can be a pleasurable — and eventually profitable — full-time business.

READER SERVICE. For a free list of books, pamphlets, and magazines which give detailed information on dog breeding and its sidelines, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Julie Thomas Pitman at this newspaper. Ask for "Raising Puppies Bibliography."

MAGICWORD by JULIE QUART

HOW TO PLAY: Read the list of words. Look at the puzzle. You'll find these words in all directions — horizontally, vertically, diagonally, backwards. Draw a circle around each letter of a word found in the puzzle then strike it off list. Circling it will show a letter has been used but will leave it visible should it also form part of another word. Find the big words first. When letters of all listed words are circled, you'll have the given number of letters left over. They'll spell out your MAGICWORD.
