Health Auxiliary to meet Tuesday

The Nicholas County Health Care Auxiliary will meet Tuesday, Feb. 23, 7 p.m. in the hospital conference room.

There will be an election of officers and the year's calendar will be discussed, followed by a tour of the nursing home to view the new draperies.

Anyone interested in being a member of the auxiliary is invited to attend.

Cub pack crowns four derby winners

The local Nicholas County Cub Pack, meeting in the Carlisle Presbyterian Church on Tuesday, Feb. 2, staged their annual Pinewood Derby with a field of 16 cars, all made from balsa wood and weighing less than four ounces. They raced down an inclined wooden track before Cub Scouts, parents and leaders.

A trophy was awarded to the overall winner, Patrick Ritchie. Silver medals were awarded to Glen Stone and Ronnie Barnett. The bronze prize went to Chad Mitchell.

Two are named to Dean's List

Two Nicholas County students were named to the dean's list at the University of Kentucky during the fall semester.

To be named to the list, a student must have maintained a high academic standing on a 4.0 grading system.

These local students are Benita Anne Dampier, Route 2, and Carol C. Sparks, Cliffway Drive.

The paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Gilkison.

Local Homemakers meet

Carlisle West

Eleven members of the Carlisle West Homemakers met Friday afternoon at 1:30 p.m. in the Nicholas County Public Library. Mrs. J.H. Hamilton presided and Miss Evelyn George called the roll and gave the treasurer's report.

Cards were signed to be sent to shut-ins and one for Mrs. S.M. DeMyer, who has moved away.

Mrs. Grimes Caywood read from the Homemakers Inspirational Program for February on life's picture, including a poem and a prayer.

The lesson was on cultural conflicts in Kentucky Literature, as illustrated in the writings of these five Kentucky authors: John Fox Jr., John Lloyd, Janice Holt Giles, James Lane Allen and Harriet Arnow. The Family Life Newsletter was passed around. Sewing, reading and house furnishings lists were turned in.

The hostesses were Mrs. Webb Buntin and Mrs. Wilmer Holcomb.

Moorefield

There were 16 members gathered in the home of Mrs. Joe Smart for the regular meeting of Moorefield Homemakers on Thursday evening, Feb. 4.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. J.S. Wilson. The devotional was given by Mrs. Elgin Clark. The minutes were read and approved and a report on finances was given by Mrs. Jack Becker. The roll was called with members answering with "the message you would like most to give to all the world."

Reports were given by various chairmen. Mrs. Angna Jacobs, landscape chairman, gave a report on things we might do to protect shrubbery, also some suggestions on planting and other leaflets were distributed. Mrs. W.J. Clark asked that we bring our report on vegetables canned and all reports are due in March. Mrs. Margie Wilson asked that we bring some ideas for crafts for the Cultural Arts Camp which will be Sept. 9-10.

Mrs. Phyllis Ramey gave the lesson on Kentucky Literature and a short review of the more popular books.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by some of the members. Gifts were exchanged, as this was our regular Valentine party.

The meeting adjourned to meet on March 4 with Mrs. Sue Calvert and co-hostess Mrs. Phyllis Ramey.

Arts Council setting April 1 as deadline

The Kentucky Arts Council, a state agency in the Kentucky Department of Arts, has set April 1 as the deadline for applications from sponsors and artists interested in participating in the Artists in Education Program during the 1982-83 school year.

The Artists in Education Program places professional artists into schools and other educational settings to work and share the creative process with students, teachers and community members.

Since the program's inception in 1976, painters, poets, architects, musicians, dancers, actors, craftsmen, filmmakers, sculptors and photographers have been among the wide variety of artists who have enriched the life of hundreds of schools and communities across Kentucky.

Schools or nonprofit community organizations (such as arts councils, libraries or other groups with an educational mission) may apply to sponsor a residency.

Grants from the Kentucky Arts Council and the National Endowment for the Arts enable the sponsor to pay a portion of the cost of a residency. Artists in all media will be considered for residencies ranging in length from one week to the full school year.

For job descriptions, complete guidelines and application forms, contact the Kentucky Arts Council in Frankfort.

Little Miss FHA contest is underway

The Nicholas County Chapter of the Future Homemakers of America is sponsoring their annual Little Miss FHA contest. The purpose of this contest is to raise money for the state scholarship project. This project is an annual one sponsored by the State Association of Future Homemakers. These scholarships are awarded to outstanding FHA members planning to attend a Kentucky College or University and major in Home Economics.

The girls nominated for Little Miss FHA are between the ages of three and five and are voted on by penny vote. Jars are placed in the community to collect these votes. The one collecting the most money is proclaimed "Little Miss FHA." This is an honorary position in the chapter. The winner and her mother will be guests at the annual spring banquet.

This year's contest will be running through March 3. All money must be collected and turned in by 10 a.m. March 3 in the home economics department. The winner will be notified by mail. Leslie Ishmael, scholarship chairman, is in charge of this year's contest.

30 years of rain, snow and gloom of night

Postmaster John Anderson (left) presented a certificate from the U.S. Postal Service to Paul Donovan Friday morning at the local post office for his 30 years of public service. Donovan recently retired after carrying a rural route in the county for 26 years. He said that only four times in those 26 years was the weather so bad that he could not complete his delivery route. — Mercury photo.

Kay's Kitchen

By Kay Fisher

Nothing ir quite as satisfying on a cold winter day as a bowl of soup full of vegetables, meat, and sometimes pasta. The range is endless. You can use your imagination and season the pot to your own liking. It is almost impossible to make a little pot of soup. So go ahead and put what you want in it, because soup is as good the second time around as it is the first time and it also freezes well.

Of course vegetable soup is the first thing most of us think of when we think of soup, so let's try something different. Chowder is called the heartiest of the soup family. At one time we thought only of chowder made from fish or clams. That is no longer true. You can make chowder from chicken, ham, mushrooms or vegetables. So for a change of pace here are some good recipes to try.

BROCCOLI CHOWDER

1 bunch broccoli, or 2 10-ounce frozen packages
2 cans chicken broth
3 cups milk
½ cup chopped cooked ham
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup half and half
2 cups shredded Swiss cheese
¼ cup butter or margarine

If using fresh broccoli, cut flowerets from stalk, peel stalk and cut into large pieces. Combine broccoli and 1 can chicken broth in Dutch oven; cover and cook about seven minutes, or until broccoli is crisp tender. Remove broccoli from broth; cool and chop coarsely.

Add remaining can of chicken broth, milk, ham, salt and pepper to Dutch oven; bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring occasionally. Stir in broccoli, and remaining ingredients. Cook over low heat until thoroughly heated. Do not boil.

CORN CHOWDER

½ cup chopped salt pork or bacon
3 tablespoons chopped onion
½ cup chopped celery
3 tablespoons chopped green pepper
1 cup peeled, diced potatoes
2 cups water
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
½ bay leaf
3 tablespoons flour
½ cup milk
1½ cups hot milk
2 cups corn

Saute slowly until lightly browned the pork or bacon, add the onions, celery, green pepper and saute until golden brown. Add and simmer the water, potatoes, salt, paprika, and bay leaf. When potatoes are done, add the flour mixed to a smooth paste in the ½ cup of milk. When at the boiling point add the 1½ cups hot milk and corn. Keep hot, do not boil. Serve sprinkled with minced parsley.

CHEESE CHOWDER

3 cups water
3 chicken bouillon cubes
4 medium potatoes, peeled and diced
1 medium onion, sliced
1 cup thinly sliced carrots
¼ cup diced green pepper
¼ cup margarine
¼ cup flour
3½ cups milk
4 cups shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
1 2-ounce jar diced pimiento, drained
¼ teaspoon hot pepper sauce, optional

Combine water and bouillon cubes in a heavy soup pot and bring to a boil. Add vegetables; cover and, simmer until vegetables are tender.

Melt margarine in heavy saucepan; blend in flour, and cook one minute. Gradually add milk; cook over medium heat until thickened, stirring constantly. Add cheese, stirring until melted.

Stir cheese sauce, pimiento, and hot sauce into vegetable mixture. Cook over low heat until thoroughly heated. Do not boil.

You will notice all the chowder recipes say "do not boil." Boiling will cause the milk to curdle.

To make a complete meal serve the chowder with hot French bread, or rolls, a salad or dessert.

On all the recipes, taste and adjust seasoning to your liking.

Stephen Foster Vocal Camp set

The 1982 Stephen Foster Vocal Camp for high school students will be held on the Eastern Kentucky University campus July 3-10. David Wayne Greenlee, director of choral activities at EKU, will serve as director of the vocal camp.

The vocal camp is one of three segments of the Foster Music Camp at Eastern. The Foster Instrumental Camp will offer one four-week and a couple of two-week sessions between June 13 and July 10, and the Foster Keyboard Camp will be held June 13-19.

According to Greenlee, vocal campers may elect to reside on campus in a dormitory or they can commute. The one-week camp for residents will cost $198 and includes tuition, room, board, all music and special activities. For non-campus residents, the rate is $138.

The camp director said a limited number of scholarships are available to outstanding performers with a special emphasis on tenors and basses. Greenlee said students interested in a scholarship must present a live or taped audition. The deadline for auditions is May 31.

For more information about the Foster Vocal Camp, students should contact David Wayne Greenlee, Foster Music Building, EKU, in Richmond.

Stats show 828 traffic fatalities occur in 1981

Kentucky ended 1981 with 828 traffic fatalities, only three more than were reported during the year before.

According to State Police Commissioner Marion D. Campbell, a Nicholas County native, a much larger toll was averted by a crackdown on drunk drivers which held the number of fatalities reported over Christmas and New Year's down to a total of 14, as compared with 22 during the same period in 1980. Both state police and many local police departments conducted vigorous anti-drunk driving enforcement campaigns over the holidays.

The state police effort, which started on Dec. 16 and ended at midnight, Jan. 3, resulted in 617 drunk driving arrests. The largest number of arrests reported by any single state police post occurred in the eight-county area patrolled by state police at Elizabethtown. There, the troopers took 91 drinking drivers into custody.

Arrest totals reported by the other 15 KSP posts were 60 for Henderson, 58 at Frankfort, 47 at Richmond, 42 at Pikeville, 39 at Bowling Green, 36 at Morehead, 35 at Hazard, 32 at Dry Ridge, 31 at Ashland, 30 at London, 28 at Madisonville, 25 at Mayfield, 24 at Harlan, 23 at Columbia and 21 at LaGrange.

But before anyone concludes that the heat is off now that the holidays are over, Campbell ended his report by promising more of the same.

"What heretofore was just a limited crackdown for a limited period of time is now going to become a round-the-clock, seven-day-a-week priority enforcement effort for state police during 1982," he said.

Describing the results of blood-alcohol content tests run on the 600-plus drivers arrested by state police over the holidays as "enough to scare you to death," he said that if Kentucky can rid its highways of drunk drivers, "we can cut our annual death toll by at least 25 percent almost immediately."

Campbell said that nearly 60 percent of the drinking drivers arrested by state police over the holidays, and tested on the breathalyzer, registered blood-alcohol content levels in excess of .14 percent. Some were as high as .31 and .33 percent.

"At those levels, it's amazing to me that they were even able to find their cars, let alone drive them," he said. Under Kentucky law, a reading of .10 percent is considered legally sufficient to sustain a drunk driving conviction.

The commissioner said that one of the principal strategies planned by state police to cope with the drinking driver during 1982 will be an intensification of the "saturation approach" to the problem. Squads of troopers moving around the state, from one high accident location to another, will be conducting traffic roadblocks designed specifically to spot drunk drivers.

Campbell also is ordering a maximum effort by state police on the local level to educate the public on the dangers of drunk driving "and solicit their cooperation in getting the drinking driver off the road once and for all."

Subcommittee will meet in Maysville

Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C., chairman of the House Agriculture Subcommittee on Tobacco and Peanuts, last week announced that the subcommittee will hold a public field hearing with Rep. Carl D. Perkins on the tobacco price support program on Saturday, April 3, at the Mason County High School Field House in Maysville at 9 a.m.

The hearing is being held to study the operations of the tobacco program and to see if changes can be made to improve its efficiency. Witnesses are expected to include tobacco growers and representatives of all other interested segments of the tobacco industry.

For additional information about the hearings, contact Joan Teague at the House Agriculture Committee, 1301 Longworth House Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20515.

FRANKFORT GETS 200-ROOM HOTEL

Frankfort, Ky. — Frankfort will be the site of a new 200-room hotel, Commerce Secretary Bruce Lunsford has announced.

The investment firm E.F. Hutton will finance construction of the hotel, which will be located at Frankfort's Capital Plaza. A Florida hotel management company, Service Inc., will manage it.

To help finance the venture, the Frankfort City Commission has authorized the sale of up to $10 million in industrial revenue bonds. Also, the state has promised to provide $2 million for public facilities at the hotel, like conference rooms. The hotel will employ an estimated 100 full-time employees and 90 part-time workers.

Lunsford noted that Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. had promised to work toward getting a major hotel for Frankfort, citing a current lack of adequate accommodations for visitors.

MORE CHEESE ON THE WAY

Frankfort, Ky. — Kentucky will receive about 400,000 more pounds of surplus cheese from the U.S. Department of Agriculture for distribution to low-income households, said Dr. Grady Stumbo, secretary of the state Human Resources Department.

The state has already received 400,000 pounds.

People eligible for the free cheese must have income at or below the poverty level and liquid assets not exceeding $3,000.

STATE POLICE SEEKING NEW CADETS

Frankfort, Ky. — The Kentucky State Police will begin accepting applications Feb. 15 for a cadet class set for last May 16, announced Commissioner Marion D. Campbell.

Applications will be available Feb. 15-27 from noon to 8 p.m. in any of 16 state police posts or the Louisville and Lexington license exam stations. The applications must be completed and filed between March 1 to 13 at the same location where they were obtained.

The state police commissioner said every effort is being made to recruit qualified women and minorities.

A cadet must be a U.S. citizen, a Kentucky resident, of good moral character, between age 21-30, a holder of a valid Kentucky driver's license, a holder of an honorable discharge if a veteran, able to pass a rigid physical exam, a holder of a high school diploma or its equivalent, and be at least 5'8" with proportionate weight.

QUILT COMPETITION DEADLINE NEARS

Frankfort, Ky. — Talented quilt makers who would like to participate in the Kentucky Quilt Contest must have entries in by Feb. 28.

The contest is sponsored by the Kentucky Heritage Quilt Society. The competition will involve 12 regional shows with winners selected in three categories: traditional, contemporary and group. The 36 winning quilts from the regional shows will be displayed at the Kentucky Horse Park in Lexington from April 25 to May 16.

A state winner in each category will be announced during the Horse Park show. Cash prizes will be awarded. The society will exhibit the three winning quilts and 16 other outstanding quilts at several locations in Kentucky during the following months.

For further information, contact quilt contest chairman Mary Wakefield, 404 Golden Gate Court, Louisville, Ky. 40243, telephone 502-344-0490.

Livestock workshop scheduled

A workshop focusing on livestock hedging in the futures market will be held in Lexington next Wednesday (Feb. 24) at the Springs Motel.

The day-long workshop is sponsored by the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service and the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

The basic marketing strategies involved in hedging (forward pricing) hogs, feeder cattle and slaughter cattle in the futures market will be discussed in the workshops, which also will include a review of futures livestock prices with marketing information specifically related to Kentucky.

Participants are asked to bring production cost data to use in small group exercises. "Producers will design a marketing plan and make hedging decisions from this data," explained Dr. A. Lee Meyer, livestock marketing specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. "The effects of these decisions will be evaluated by tracing them through the market—placing, following and lifting the hedge."

Workshop topics range from Kentucky livestock basis to margin calls and lifting the hedge, including contract specification and broker relationships.

Registration for each workshop is $10 and should be mailed by Feb. 19. Interested persons may obtain additional information and registration forms from either Dr. Meyer or their county Extension agent for agriculture.

Coatneys attend seminar recently in Louisville

Bob and Virginia Coatney recently attended a paint technology seminar in Louisville, sponsored by Kurfees.

Coatney said, "The information related in the seminar will help us advise customers on how to get more satisfaction from their painting projects by being better informed about paint products."

According to Mrs. Coatney, paint styling is the technique of using color to emphasize the good features of a room and minimize the unattractive ones. "For example, the right color can make a room seem larger, or a long room appear square, or a cold room feel warm," she said.
