Tutt's Pills Cure All Liver Ills.

To those living in malarial districts Tutt's Pills are indispensible, they keep the system in perfect order and are an absolute cure for sick headache, indigestion, malaria, torpid liver, constipation and all bilious diseases.

Tutt's Liver Pills

CUT THIS OUT.

1. Free coinage of silver means that anyone may deposit stand-ard silver in any quantity at the United States mints and have it coined into full legal tender coins, without charge. Under present regulations those who present metal for coinage pay for the alloy that goes into the coins.

2. Full legal tender means a legal quality of money which compels any creditor to accept such money for any debt and discharge the debtor from his liability.

3. Parity in 1 means a ratio in coinage under which 16 ounces of pure silver coined shall have the same value as 1 ounce of pure gold coined—ounce for ounce.

4. Single standard means that only one metal shall be coined into full legal tender coins.

5. Bimetallism means the coinage of both gold and silver into full legal tender money.

Pills do not cure Consumption. They only supersede it. Kemp's Balsam for Throat and Lungs is the only remedy that does positively cure Consumption. For all lung troubles, coughs, colds, whooping cough, croup, bronchitis, and Asthma, Kemp's Balsam is the best remedy. Large bottles 50c. and $1.00. Sold by druggists.

Piso's Cure for Consumption cures where all else fails. Best cough syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. 25c.

Piso's Cure for Consumption cures where all else fails. Best cough syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. 25c.

Piso's Cure for Consumption cures where all else fails. Best cough syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. 25c.

THE MAN IN POSSESSION.

"What outrageous conduct!" exclaimed Mrs. Fielding, gazing at her husband in speechless amazement.

"Very extraordinary!" agreed Ethel. "I never heard of such a thing in my life!"

"I should hope not!" returned Mrs. Fielding. "What would your poor, dear father have said if, during his lifetime, he had heard of such a proceeding in your land, and, as you fondly refused by your self-appointed guardian? Why, he would have turned in his grave!"

"Possibly!" Ethel answered her, frightfully firm, and you should just see what a shin he has. It would shame three of mine!"

"What do you say?" asked Mrs. Fielding.

"What could I say? I naively told you everything. I met him, as you know, at Merchant-Mainwaring's, and after our first introduction he was almost every day during the following week at the house. He was so pleasant, so prepossessing to me, and I—well, you know what I said. He then declared his intention of asking an agent every few months, and didn't seem to care in the least whether I had a dot or not, as he knew he just the same, because he had many times he asked. Well, it is exactly six months to-day since the—the first time I told him that I couldn't think of marrying—"

"And he expressed his intention of asking an agent every few months, did he?" put in Mrs. Fielding.

Ethel nodded.

"And he was Mr. Fielding's decision, "we must send for the police."

"Oh, no—no—no!" ejaculated Ethel, springing up. "Please don't do that, mamma! It would be the most unfortunate thing in the world for me to have himself if he deserting. Besides, I thought the policemen used I am sure he would fight them; there would be a terrible row!"

"I will see the young person myself!" declared Mrs. Fielding, rising majestically. "Don't be harsh, mamma!" Ethel pleaded, blushing a little, "because, after all, you don't know—"

"Heed your knife in here with you!" commanded Mrs. Fielding, sternly. "Of course he is. If he weren't I should not allow you to see him for a moment. Now, leave him to me!"

So saying, Mrs. Fielding swept majestically into the door-person.

But severe as was her tone and stern her look, Dick Wentworth seemed to judge. He apologized for the gross impropriety of his conduct in the most humble terms, refused to utter a word in his own defense, and begged that Mrs. Fielding would be pleased to take any gentleman of twenty-five with an income of £800 a year, and who would be delighted to call her mother-in-law.

Twenty minutes later Mrs. Fielding returned to her daughter.

"My reasoning had no effect whatever," she informed Ethel, "more what I can see. He is evidently a man of very little principle, but it is necessary in order that the pupil may understand her master. He was thus by far full of intricate proficiency and complicated sequences.

"My lake had crept on, and went up by Sheldon's Farm," he said, "and by Martin, of Hinterhills, Ain. For sale by Mr. F. Lindsay.

SALT BATHS FOR THE BABY.

Children are more sensitive to a change of temperature than grown people, and they should be guarded carefully from exposure to extreme weather. Throat diseases are often produced by thoughtlessness, at this season, especially among infants whose sensitive little heads are variously left unsheltered from the burning rays of the sun. Here can hardly be too much said about doors in the summer, but their value is lessened by the literal sole of many of us to prevent study parks and groves. Always carry your baby, or, if you are obliged to go from a strong light, then cover its face with a veil or shade of some kind.

It is hardly necessary to dwell upon the importance of the bath as a preventive; all mothers, nowadays, understand that it is indispensable, but we do not know that after a hot day a sponge bath in blood-warm water will be a soothing preparation for a good night's sleep. If there is any head rash, or sore, a substitute bath is a grateful ordeal.

Always, following the bath, the little body should be tenderly rubbed from crown to toes. For careful, gentle manipulation will soothe and coax a better baby at any time, and it is a great help in strengthening and exercising the muscles. The whole object of the spine especially should be gently manipulated, and here a word of caution is given. Let always a mother's hand be the one to do this work. Never trust anything more to those tender little muscles than the hand of love. Nervousness will sometimes be the result from brutal, and a gentle touch is the best. Work up to it as much as you can, but a strong solution of the same soft—"Summer Cure of Babies" in the Ladies' Home Journal for August.

A Hot Meal

couldn't cook a hot kitchen.

Peninsular Wrought Steel Ranges

keep their heat to themselves. They do not waste it needlessly through the walls. Double walls of Wrought Steel and Asbestos Lining.

A Written Guarantee with every one.

For Sale by J. G. POWELL.

TWO GOOD TURNS.

BY WALTER LEON SAWYER.

Mr. Falcone rose early that morning, for he had planned to be off by as soon as he had swallowed breakfast. That was not very early, and Mrs. Falcone wondered, but, being a good wife, she refrained from questioning her husband. Instead she busied herself about the morning meal and allowed Mr. Falcone to eat in peace.

Only a stifling dose separated Mrs. Fielding's room from the parlor below. Her teeth chattering in time with the rhythm of her heart, she sat up in bed. Fielding crept out of bed and, the night dress being partly open, into her bosom. There was a hurried explanation in whisper from Mrs. Fielding, and then the door was opened and Mrs. Fielding, followed by Mrs. Falcone, left the upper room and once more listened. The sounds below were distinct now, and the shuffling would not be heard, then there was footsteps on the garden walk, and then the scullery window was heard to open. Mrs. Fielding sank down in a chair, and shuddered as carries base on the part of the midnight intruder.

"A burglar!" exclaimed Ethel, pale with fear. "Oh, mamma, what shall we do? I never heard of such a thing before!"

"I'll wake Mr. Waterbury," said Mrs. Fielding, and she hurried out of the room, down the passage, and knocked at the door.

In advantage than Mr. Waterbury, relate it, Dick Jarod himself emerged from his room. He appeared to be in his shirt sleeves, and his collar was not sufficiently into the door-person.

"I suppose we ought to do some thing," he said, "but I don't know what. I have ill-advised, to go on. My revolver is in my portmanteau, and the burglar—and the burglar—and I—I don't know how—"

"Mr. Mrs. Fielding, he must stay the affair would give Sutton Surbury a quarterly feed for months, if the strong arm of the law were to interfere—"

"I will see the young person myself!" declared Mrs. Fielding, rising majestically. "Don't be harsh, mamma!" Ethel pleaded, blushing a little, "because, after all, you don't know—"

"Heed your knife in here with you!" commanded Mrs. Fielding, sternly. "Of course he is. If he weren't I should not allow you to see him for a moment. Now, leave him to me!"

So saying, Mrs. Fielding swept majestically into the door-person.

But severe as was her tone and stern her look, Dick Wentworth seemed to judge. He apologized for the gross impropriety of his conduct in the most humble terms, refused to utter a word in his own defense, and begged that Mrs. Fielding would be pleased to take any gentleman of twenty-five with an income of £800 a year, and who would be delighted to call her mother-in-law.

Twenty minutes later Mrs. Fielding returned to her daughter.

"My reasoning had no effect whatever," she informed Ethel, "more what I can see. He is evidently a man of very little principle, but it is necessary in order that the pupil may understand her master. He was thus by far full of intricate proficiency and complicated sequences.

"My lake had crept on, and went up by Sheldon's Farm," he said, "and by Martin, of Hinterhills, Ain. For sale by Mr. F. Lindsay.

SALT BATHS FOR THE BABY.

Children are more sensitive to a change of temperature than grown people, and they should be guarded carefully from exposure to extreme weather. Throat diseases are often produced by thoughtlessness, at this season, especially among infants whose sensitive little heads are variously left unsheltered from the burning rays of the sun. Here can hardly be too much said about doors in the summer, but their value is lessened by the literal sole of many of us to prevent study parks and groves. Always carry your baby, or, if you are obliged to go from a strong light, then cover its face with a veil or shade of some kind.

It is hardly necessary to dwell upon the importance of the bath as a preventive; all mothers, nowadays, understand that it is indispensable, but we do not know that after a hot day a sponge bath in blood-warm water will be a soothing preparation for a good night's sleep. If there is any head rash, or sore, a substitute bath is a grateful ordeal.

Always, following the bath, the little body should be tenderly rubbed from crown to toes. For careful, gentle manipulation will soothe and coax a better baby at any time, and it is a great help in strengthening and exercising the muscles. The whole object of the spine especially should be gently manipulated, and here a word of caution is given. Let always a mother's hand be the one to do this work. Never trust anything more to those tender little muscles than the hand of love. Nervousness will sometimes be the result from brutal, and a gentle touch is the best. Work up to it as much as you can, but a strong solution of the same soft—"Summer Cure of Babies" in the Ladies' Home Journal for August.

A Hot Meal

couldn't cook a hot kitchen.

Peninsular Wrought Steel Ranges

keep their heat to themselves. They do not waste it needlessly through the walls. Double walls of Wrought Steel and Asbestos Lining.

A Written Guarantee with every one.

For Sale by J. G. POWELL.

THE MAN IN POSSESSION.

"What outrageous conduct!" exclaimed Mrs. Fielding, gazing at her husband in speechless amazement.

"Very extraordinary!" agreed Ethel. "I never heard of such a thing in my life!"

"I should hope not!" returned Mrs. Fielding. "What would your poor, dear father have said if, during his lifetime, he had heard of such a proceeding in your land, and, as you fondly refused by your self-appointed guardian? Why, he would have turned in his grave!"

"Possibly!" Ethel answered her, frightfully firm, and you should just see what a shin he has. It would shame three of mine!"

"What do you say?" asked Mrs. Fielding.

"What could I say? I naively told you everything. I met him, as you know, at Merchant-Mainwaring's, and after our first introduction he was almost every day during the following week at the house. He was so pleasant, so prepossessing to me, and I—well, you know what I said. He then declared his intention of asking an agent every few months, and didn't seem to care in the least whether I had a dot or not, as he knew he just the same, because he had many times he asked. Well, it is exactly six months to-day since the—the first time I told him that I couldn't think of marrying—"

"And he expressed his intention of asking an agent every few months, did he?" put in Mrs. Fielding.

Ethel nodded.

"And he was Mr. Fielding's decision, "we must send for the police."

"Oh, no—no—no!" ejaculated Ethel, springing up. "Please don't do that, mamma! It would be the most unfortunate thing in the world for me to have himself if he deserting. Besides, I thought the policemen used I am sure he would fight them; there would be a terrible row!"

"I will see the young person myself!" declared Mrs. Fielding, rising majestically. "Don't be harsh, mamma!" Ethel pleaded, blushing a little, "because, after all, you don't know—"

"Heed your knife in here with you!" commanded Mrs. Fielding, sternly. "Of course he is. If he weren't I should not allow you to see him for a moment. Now, leave him to me!"

So saying, Mrs. Fielding swept majestically into the door-person.

But severe as was her tone and stern her look, Dick Wentworth seemed to judge. He apologized for the gross impropriety of his conduct in the most humble terms, refused to utter a word in his own defense, and begged that Mrs. Fielding would be pleased to take any gentleman of twenty-five with an income of £800 a year, and who would be delighted to call her mother-in-law.

Twenty minutes later Mrs. Fielding returned to her daughter.

"My reasoning had no effect whatever," she informed Ethel, "more what I can see. He is evidently a man of very little principle, but it is necessary in order that the pupil may understand her master. He was thus by far full of intricate proficiency and complicated sequences.

"My lake had crept on, and went up by Sheldon's Farm," he said, "and by Martin, of Hinterhills, Ain. For sale by Mr. F. Lindsay.

SALT BATHS FOR THE BABY.

Children are more sensitive to a change of temperature than grown people, and they should be guarded carefully from exposure to extreme weather. Throat diseases are often produced by thoughtlessness, at this season, especially among infants whose sensitive little heads are variously left unsheltered from the burning rays of the sun. Here can hardly be too much said about doors in the summer, but their value is lessened by the literal sole of many of us to prevent study parks and groves. Always carry your baby, or, if you are obliged to go from a strong light, then cover its face with a veil or shade of some kind.

It is hardly necessary to dwell upon the importance of the bath as a preventive; all mothers, nowadays, understand that it is indispensable, but we do not know that after a hot day a sponge bath in blood-warm water will be a soothing preparation for a good night's sleep. If there is any head rash, or sore, a substitute bath is a grateful ordeal.

Always, following the bath, the little body should be tenderly rubbed from crown to toes. For careful, gentle manipulation will soothe and coax a better baby at any time, and it is a great help in strengthening and exercising the muscles. The whole object of the spine especially should be gently manipulated, and here a word of caution is given. Let always a mother's hand be the one to do this work. Never trust anything more to those tender little muscles than the hand of love. Nervousness will sometimes be the result from brutal, and a gentle touch is the best. Work up to it as much as you can, but a strong solution of the same soft—"Summer Cure of Babies" in the Ladies' Home Journal for August.

A Hot Meal

couldn't cook a hot kitchen.

Peninsular Wrought Steel Ranges

keep their heat to themselves. They do not waste it needlessly through the walls. Double walls of Wrought Steel and Asbestos Lining.

A Written Guarantee with every one.

For Sale by J. G. POWELL.

THE MAN IN POSSESSION.

"What outrageous conduct!" exclaimed Mrs. Fielding, gazing at her husband in speechless amazement.

"Very extraordinary!" agreed Ethel. "I never heard of such a thing in my life!"

"I should hope not!" returned Mrs. Fielding. "What would your poor, dear father have said if, during his lifetime, he had heard of such a proceeding in your land, and, as you fondly refused by your self-appointed guardian? Why, he would have turned in his grave!"

"Possibly!" Ethel answered her, frightfully firm, and you should just see what a shin he has. It would shame three of mine!"

"What do you say?" asked Mrs. Fielding.

"What could I say? I naively told you everything. I met him, as you know, at Merchant-Mainwaring's, and after our first introduction he was almost every day during the following week at the house. He was so pleasant, so prepossessing to me, and I—well, you know what I said. He then declared his intention of asking an agent every few months, and didn't seem to care in the least whether I had a dot or not, as he knew he just the same, because he had many times he asked. Well, it is exactly six months to-day since the—the first time I told him that I couldn't think of marrying—"

"And he expressed his intention of asking an agent every few months, did he?" put in Mrs. Fielding.

Ethel nodded.

"And he was Mr. Fielding's decision, "we must send for the police."

"Oh, no—no—no!" ejaculated Ethel, springing up. "Please don't do that, mamma! It would be the most unfortunate thing in the world for me to have himself if he deserting. Besides, I thought the policemen used I am sure he would fight them; there would be a terrible row!"

"I will see the young person myself!" declared Mrs. Fielding, rising majestically. "Don't be harsh, mamma!" Ethel pleaded, blushing a little, "because, after all, you don't know—"

"Heed your knife in here with you!" commanded Mrs. Fielding, sternly. "Of course he is. If he weren't I should not allow you to see him for a moment. Now, leave him to me!"

So saying, Mrs. Fielding swept majestically into the door-person.

But severe as was her tone and stern her look, Dick Wentworth seemed to judge. He apologized for the gross impropriety of his conduct in the most humble terms, refused to utter a word in his own defense, and begged that Mrs. Fielding would be pleased to take any gentleman of twenty-five with an income of £800 a year, and who would be delighted to call her mother-in-law.

Twenty minutes later Mrs. Fielding returned to her daughter.

"My reasoning had no effect whatever," she informed Ethel, "more what I can see. He is evidently a man of very little principle, but it is necessary in order that the pupil may understand her master. He was thus by far full of intricate proficiency and complicated sequences.

"My lake had crept on, and went up by Sheldon's Farm," he said, "and by Martin, of Hinterhills, Ain. For sale by Mr. F. Lindsay.

SALT BATHS FOR THE BABY.

Children are more sensitive to a change of temperature than grown people, and they should be guarded carefully from exposure to extreme weather. Throat diseases are often produced by thoughtlessness, at this season, especially among infants whose sensitive little heads are variously left unsheltered from the burning rays of the sun. Here can hardly be too much said about doors in the summer, but their value is lessened by the literal sole of many of us to prevent study parks and groves. Always carry your baby, or, if you are obliged to go from a strong light, then cover its face with a veil or shade of some kind.

It is hardly necessary to dwell upon the importance of the bath as a preventive; all mothers, nowadays, understand that it is indispensable, but we do not know that after a hot day a sponge bath in blood-warm water will be a soothing preparation for a good night's sleep. If there is any head rash, or sore, a substitute bath is a grateful ordeal.

Always, following the bath, the little body should be tenderly rubbed from crown to toes. For careful, gentle manipulation will soothe and coax a better baby at any time, and it is a great help in strengthening and exercising the muscles. The whole object of the spine especially should be gently manipulated, and here a word of caution is given. Let always a mother's hand be the one to do this work. Never trust anything more to those tender little muscles than the hand of love. Nervousness will sometimes be the result from brutal, and a gentle touch is the best. Work up to it as much as you can, but a strong solution of the same soft—"Summer Cure of Babies" in the Ladies' Home Journal for August.

A Hot Meal

couldn't cook a hot kitchen.

Peninsular Wrought Steel Ranges

keep their heat to themselves. They do not waste it needlessly through the walls. Double walls of Wrought Steel and Asbestos Lining.

A Written Guarantee with every one.

For Sale by J. G. POWELL.

CARLISLE MERCURY.

VOL. XXXI. CARLISLE, NICHOLAS COUNTY, KY., THURSDAY, AUG. 13, 1896. NO 33.

900 DROPS

CASTORIA

A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomach and Bowels of

INFANTS CHILDREN

Promotes Digestion,Cheerfulness and Rest Contains neither Opium,Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.

Recipe of Dr SAMUEL PITCHER

A perfect Remedy for Constipation Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Eructation Feverishness and Loss of SLEEP.

Fac-Simile Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher NEW YORK.

At 6 months old 35 DOSES—35 CENTS

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

SEE THAT THE FAC-SIMILE SIGNATURE —OF— Chas. H. Fletcher IS ON THE WRAPPER OF EVERY BOTTLE OF CASTORIA

Castoria is put up in one-size bottle only. It is not sold in bulk. Don't allow anyone to sell you anything else on the plea or promise that it is "just as good" and "will answer every purpose." See that you get CASTORIA.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is on the outside wrapper of every bottle of genuine Castoria.

H. B. BRYSON. C. C. BRAMBLETT

Bryson & Bramblett,

Special Agents For ——

The South-western Mutual Life Association

MARSHALLTOWN, IOWA.

NONE STRONGER! NONE BETTER!

Issues an Investment Contract that it will Pay You to Investigate.

DON'T ACT UNTIL YOU SEE OURS. THEN ACT PROMPTLY.

THE LIFE POLICY | The Investment Policy.

OF THE SOUTH-WESTERN we claim to be one of the best exclusive over issued.

IT IS SAFE, reliable, insurance AT ACTUAL COST.

The only company in existence that GUARANTEES AGAINST FORFEITURE ANY INSTALLMENT PAID. Our Policy is Non-Forfeitable, Non-Participating, Non-Assessable, Non-Restrictive, Non-Speculative.

THE LOAN VALUE ARE GUARANTEED AGAINST ANY CONTINGENCY whatever. Our Policy is Non-Forfeitable, Non-Participating, Non-Assessable, Non-Restrictive, Non-Speculative.

IN the event of death or total disability from any cause whatever, the Company guarantees to pay all premiums thereafter falling due.

IN the event of death or total disability from any cause whatever, the Company guarantees to pay all premiums thereafter falling due.

THE Company guarantees to pay all premiums thereafter falling due.

THE Company guarantees to pay all premiums thereafter falling due.

THE