Have a story from the African continent. A young man of the name of Tutts, who had been in the army for some time, was one day in a fit of anger, and was about to strike a fellow soldier. He was stopped by a sergeant, who told him that he was a good soldier, and that he should be proud of his uniform. The young man was very much surprised, and he asked the sergeant how he had become so good. The sergeant told him that he had been in the army for some time, and that he had learned a great deal about the art of war. The young man was very much interested, and he asked the sergeant to teach him. The sergeant told him that he would be glad to do so, and that he would be his instructor. The young man was very happy, and he began to study hard. He learned a great deal, and he became a very good soldier. He was promoted to sergeant, and he was very proud of his uniform. He was one of the best soldiers in the army, and he was very much respected by his fellow soldiers. He was a very good example to all the other soldiers, and he was very much loved by them. He was a very good friend to all the other soldiers, and he was very much respected by them. He was a very good soldier, and he was very much respected by his fellow soldiers.
