UK Sports Report

Beal's back, just in time; Cats-Cards in Mideast???

One of the nice (and "together") people in sports — that's Kentucky guard Dicky Beal. And the mercury-quick little guard may be UK's ticket to the NCAA Final Four this spring.

Certainly Beal has played very well lately, coming off the bench. So, it stands to reason that the senior would grumble that he deserves to be a fulltime starter ahead of a sophomore (Roger Harden), right?

Wrong.

"Starting doesn't make any difference to me," Beal said last week. "The guards out there (Harden and Jim Master) got us where we are so they deserve to start. It makes no difference to me as long as I'm able to contribute."

What about Beal's knee problems that have curtailed his contribution?

"I feel no aches and pains and I'm trying to let nature take its course," he replied. "I'm feeling really great now."

Prediction: Kentucky will not be seeded in the NCAAs without Beal.

20 wins for U of L?

If the Louisville Cardinals (16-8) are going to reach the "20 win plateau" for the 14th consecutive season, then coach Denny Crum's outfit is going to do it in the tournament time.

Looks from here as if there simply aren't enough "wins" left on the schedule. The injury to Billy Thompson set the team back some, but fact is U of L was not playing very well when the 6-8 sophomore went down against LaSalle.

The Cards were outbutted by Marquette, struggled with Southern Miss and LaSalle, got ripped by Florida State and surprised at home by Virginia, and well...

Will Louisville make it to the NCAA Tournament?

Bet on it. With the expanded tournament field and considering U of L's reputation, and Denny Crum's, and throw in the fan support the Cards have, and Louisville is a cinch to get an invitation. The most sensational item here will be which regional the Cards will go into. My guess would be the Midwest, but a spot in the Mideast might well set another battle with Kentucky Where? Rupp Arena.

But then, like the man with a rolled up program in his hand said a few weeks ago, "we're a tournament team, but not a Final Four team."

Right, Denny.

The more immediate goal for the Cards is still to "win 20."

New league?

It is no more than a myth at this point, but wouldn't it be great box office (and television) if Louisville was a member of a new conference that included DePaul, Notre Dame, Marquette, Dayton and Memphis State.

Comment: Good geography too.

Letters

From Elizabethtown, Wes Monroe, wrote last week.

"I have to be one of Kentucky's biggest fans. My favorite player is the indestructable Winston Bennett. He makes things happen. When he matures he will be one of the greatest players ever to grace the floor at Rupp Arena."

About the upcoming NCAA Tournament, Monroe had a prediction.

"Kentucky will most definitely prevail at the NCAA championships over North Carolina. Michael Jordan just can't stand up to Melvin Turpin on a good night (90 percent of the time)."

Comment: Tournament time? Won't be long now. The SEC tourney is two weeks away.

From Rhonda (Cary) Huskins, formerly of Cumberland County and WKU alum, wrote from North Carolina last week that she would like to see more about WKU in this space.

"At least the Charlotte Observer lists the outcome of Western games and this is Turkey Country! I'm sure this is just an oversight on your part and I grant you one year probation in order to rectify yourself.

"P.S. Mrs. Huskins wrote, 'May we assume that you are a Kentucky fan?'"

Answer: No ma'am. But I am a fan.

Western Hilltoppers

One has to feel badly for Western coaches and players. The Hilltoppers have lost 13 games by an incredible 29 points (2+ per game). At this writing Western is 9-15 overall. If the "Tops had managed to say, win half of the 13 games decided by 1-2-3 points this season, the record would be reversed, 15-9 and Clem Haskins would be on top of the world instead of feeling as if it were on his shoulders.

A note last week from an Indiana Hoosier fan. There was a photo inside of freshman guard Steve Alford who was named Big 10 player of the week for the second time in three weeks. It was a subtle reminder that this reporter speculated last year that UK's James Blackmon was a better prospect than Alford.

Comment: The jury is still out.

Recruits

■ According to USA Today U of L signee Kevin Walls of Camden, N.J., is the nation's leading scorer in high school basketball. The 6-3 guard is hitting at 40.6 points per game, including a 78-point outing. If you can believe it, Walls is averaging 6.2 assists per game as well.

■ For UK fans, Wildcat signee Ed Davender of Brooklyn, N.Y., is averaging 39.7 points per game and Cedric Jenkins of Dawson, Ga. is up to 23 points and 17.5 rebounds a contest.

Questions

Two weeks ago a reader wrote to ask about Sam Bowie's shoe size and I reported 15. Wrong. UK's 7-1 forward wears a 16½.

How tall (short?) is UK's LeRoy Byrd and where did he get the nickname "Baby Magic?"

"I'm five-feet-five in my socks and weigh 147," chuckled Byrd last week. "The nickname came from a couple of teammates when I was playing at Bryan Station."

What advice does Byrd offer for girls would-be basketball players?

"Believe in yourself and don't give up," he said. "Because nobody knows but you what's down inside."

What else?

"Work hard on your studies," he replied. "Your books always come first. That's what coach (Joe B.) Hall emphasizes here."

Byrd is majoring in communications.

Winning VI

No changes this week on my unofficial list of Kentucky's winningest high school basketball coaches, but a new candidate is Jim Bazzell who coached 17 years at Allen County High near Scottsville (1949-1966).

Bazzell said last week that he thought he had 470+ "but somehow I remember the losses more than the wins. I'm sorry, I should know something like that, but I don't."

Perhaps one of our readers knows.

Anyone else?

Jackets to close season at Deming

by Rhonda Vaughn

The Nicholas County Bluejackets will travel to Deming Friday night in the last regular season game.

In last week's action the Jackets lost to the Mayesville Bulldogs and defeated the Harrison County Thorobreds.

Bulldogs 91, Jackets 88

The Jackets put up a fight against Mayesville but the Bulldogs were the better team Friday night.

It was similar to the Paris game with the Bulldogs getting the lead in the first quarter to get farther ahead of the Jackets by the end of the game.

Quarter scores: First 18-10; second 40-38; third 64-40; fourth 91-88.

NCHS scoring: Anderson, 7-22, 6-6; Young, 3-6, 4-6; Robinson, FG 1-1; Wells, 3-6, 1-1; McGuffey, 3-6, 1-2; Ledford, 3-8, 3-3; Delano, 0-6, 1-2; Coldiron, 2-3, 1-2; McNabb, 0-6, 1-2.

Jackets 55, Thorobreds 52

Saturday night the Jackets traveled to Harrison County and defeated the Thorobreds 55-52.

The Thorobreds lead throughout the first half. The first quarter ended 19-18, and the second quarter 32-25.

The second half was a different story. All during the third quarter the Jackets fought to catch the Thorobreds. By the end of the quarter the Jackets were behind by only one point, 38-37, and within 15 seconds of the fourth quarter the Jackets had gone ahead.

With 37 seconds on the clock, a Steve Anderson basket made the score 53-52. He also hit two foul shots for the final 55-52 margin.

NCHS scoring: Anderson, 4-11, 4-6; Young, 7-10, 0-0; Robinson, 8-9, 0-0; Wells, 2-4, 1-2; McGuffey, 1-6, 2-2; Coldiron, 1-1, 0-0; Ramsey, 1-3, 0-0.

In 37th District

One win vaults NCHS to region

Paris and Harrison County will meet in the opening game of the 37th District tournament action next Tuesday, Feb. 28, at 7:30 p.m. at Bourbon County High School gym.

The winner of this game faces host Bourbon County at 7:30 Thursday for the right to move into the district finals Saturday, March 3.

In the opposite bracket, the Bluejackets of Nicholas County and the Cadets of MMI tangle Wednesday night in the five-team tournament, with the winner advancing to final action Saturday night against either Paris, Harrison or Bourbon.

THE JACKETS, with only one game to win, appear to have an excellent shot at a regional berth, as both the winner and runner-up move on to regional play the following week at Mason County.

A win over MMI would guarantee an extension of the current roundball season, which ends Friday night at Deming.

In regular season play, the Jackets and Cadets were all even. MMI defeated NCHS by one point in Millersburg in a January make-up game. The following Tuesday the Jackets pinned a 15-point loss on the visiting Cadets.

COACH MIKE KENNEY feels his ball club is ready to play. "We're healthy. Everybody is looking forward to the tournament," he said.

Little Leaguers and hoop year; winners named

The winners for the Nicholas County Little League boys' basketball season are: Rebels, first; Jets, second; Hawks, third.

The Stars won first place in the girls' division for the season and also won the girls' tournament.

The Demons were tournament winners in the boys' A team division, defeating the Hawks. For the B team the Jets won over the Patriots.

Deer hunters due refunds

Hunters who purchased a 1983 deer permit after Dec. 31 to hunt on the perimeter of Bernheim Forest can get their money back, Fish and Wildlife Commissioner Carl E. Kays has announced.

The four-day open deer season in portions of Bullitt and Nelson counties was originally scheduled to be held in conjunction with the Feb. 3-6 hunt on Bernheim Forest Refuge, but a court injunction prevented this hunt from taking place.

Only those hunters who purchased 1983 deer tags in 1984 and who did not or were not eligible to hunt on the Bernheim refuge itself will be granted refunds, Kays said.

Because county court clerks retain a 75-cent fee from every tag sold, only the fish and wildlife departments share ($10.75) of the $11 tag will be refunded.

To receive a refund, mail the deer tag along with your complete mailing address to Deer Tag Refund, Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, #1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

BARROW SHOW ENTRY DEADLINE FEB. 25

With the Louisville Barrow Show fast approaching, Manager Dennis O. Lipthrap has confirmed that deadlines for entries are Feb. 25. The show will be held at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center, Broadbent Arena, March 12-13. Premium catalogs are now available.

TODD DAY JOINS SIMMENTAL ASSOCIATION

Todd Lewis Day, 14, of Carlisle, has recently become a junior member of the American Simmental Association.

Although the Simmental breed is relatively new to the United States, it is one of the oldest and most numerous of all beef breeds on a worldwide basis. Since the establishment of the Simmental breed organization in 1968, membership has grown to nearly 18,000. More than 3500 of these, including Todd, are junior members.

Junior members may apply for lifetime membership when they reach age 21.

Information about Simmental cattle or membership is available from the American Simmental Association, One Simmental Way, Bozeman, MT 59715.

Pork leads surge

Food prices at all-time high

Retail food prices in the state found a new plateau during February, increasing an average of 2.3 percent over January figures, according to Kentucky Farm Bureau's marketbasket survey.

The jump, the second major monthly increase in a row, brings the marketbasket average level to 4.7 percent above that of December. The 40 food items in the marketbasket now cost $61.64, the highest figure since the pricing survey was begun in 1979.

Increases were chalked up in virtually all food groupings, including red meat, fruits, vegetables and some poultry and dairy products. The gains, in part, reflect farm-level price increases for livestock and vegetable products, as commodity talks continue to move in response to weather and supply factors experienced during the past 6-9 months.

PORK LED the price surge in February, gaining 7.5 percent over the January survey. Beef cuts were up 1.4 percent while fresh poultry posted a slight price decline from its record high level the past month.

Dairy products showed price stability during the period, rising less than one percent. Fruits and vegetables continued their months-long spiral by gaining an additional 3.8 percent, and grain-based foods moved up two percent despite declines in farm prices for corn and wheat.

With price gainers outnumbering declineers nearly 2 to 1 in the marketbasket, a number of individual food items registered noticeable boosts during the month. Three major pork cuts — loin chops, bacon and sausage — were up 14, 18 and 20 cents-a-pound respectively. Among fruit selections, sirloin roast jumped 19 cents a pound and pot roast was a dime higher.

OTHER ITEMS showing price volatility included butter, up 11 cents a pound; potatoes, 10 cents higher for a 10-pound bag; and cucumbers, up 10 cents apiece. Eggs set a new price record for the second month in a row, gaining five cents a dozen. Large eggs are now priced at an average $1.31 a dozen, compared to a 91-cent tab in December.

Some foods bucked the trend and showed price declines during February. Among them were T-bone steaks, eight cents lower a pound, chicken breasts down 12 cents, lettuce at 10 cents lower per head, and potato chips seven cents cheaper per bag.

A wide range of price totals was evident among the local marketbasket averages in February. Scottsville toted the lowest local tab while Dry Ridge checked in at the high end of the scale. Overall, volunteer surveyors working through Farm Bureau Women canvassed prices at retail food outlets in 23 Kentucky communities.

THOSE LOCAL averages are Scottsville, $7.27; Greensburg, $7.41; Tompkinsville, $7.67; Campbellsville, $8.08; Georgetown, $8.93; Salyersville, $9.19; Greenup, $9.71; Glasgow, $9.86; Greenville, $9.10; Hopkinsville, $1.36; Brandenburg, $1.46.

Elizabethtown, $1.81; Jackson, $1.89; Morehead, $2.54; London, $3.15; Henderson, $3.28; Cynthiana, $3.32; Lexington, $3.73; Madisonville, $3.75; Owensboro, $4.06; Shelbyville, $4.30; Louisville, $7.74; and Dry Ridge, $8.25.

Farm prices, though generally higher for a number of commodities, provided small comfort to many Kentucky producers. Lower unit prices for corn and wheat, and the generally disappointing tobacco sales season are having a greater economic impact than did the price rebound which just recently lifted hog prices from their early-year depressed levels.

Dairymen also saw the price of milk drop slightly and beef producers now face market prices more than $2.50 per hundred below year-ago levels. Farm analysts expect food prices to moderate through the summer and fall months if forecasts of large grain crops, a continuing milk glut and higher levels of hog production are realized.

WORKSHOP ON LEAN BEEF PRODUCTS, PREPARATION SCHEDULED AT UK

American families are getting down on fat and looking to the lean — in their steaks, roasts and other cuts of beef, that is.

A workshop sponsored by the UK College of Agriculture will focus on the leaner beef now on the market and new technology in the meat industry. It will be held on March 7 at the E.S. Good Barn on the University of Kentucky campus from 8:30 a.m. to 3:15 p.m.

The workshop will be geared to homemakers and other cooks, Extension home economics agents, custom meat processors and beef producers. UK nutrition and beef specialists, industry representatives and home appliance manufacturing representatives will conduct the sessions.

The topics to be covered include what the beef industry is doing to stay competitive, factors affecting palatability of beef, new developments in restructured and formed beef, the nutritional value of lean beef, buying beef of quantity to stock home freezers and beef cookery in microwave ovens.

Anyone interested in attending the lean beef workshop should contact by March 1 either their county Extension agent for home economics, or Dr. Alsher, Animal Sciences Department, 907 Agricultural Science Building-South, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky. 40506-0215; phone 606-257-3854.

Car totaled

Christine Baum, Route 2, Mayesville, lost control of her '79 Ford Mustang about 2:30 a.m. Tuesday, Feb. 14, on Highway 68, six miles north of Carlisle, and struck a cinder fence belonging to Lucian Workman, Route 3, Carlisle. The car was totaled and about 12 feet of fence was destroyed. Ms. Baum was removed to Nicholas County Hospital with cuts and bruises.
