Scholarships named for Nicholas native

Five scholarships honoring the late Judy Mitchell Letcher, will be awarded this year by the University of Kentucky.

The five scholarships are available for the Kentucky National High School Debate Institutes.

These scholarships have been established in honor of a former institute participant, Judy Mitchell Letcher.

She was an outstanding Institute participant in 1963. The scholarships were established by a number of her close friends and associates.

Recipients will be designated in the Institute as Judy Mitchell Letcher Scholars.

The main purpose of the scholarships is to help defray the Institute costs for academically talented speakers, who otherwise would be prohibited from attending the Institute.

Since a limited number of scholarships are available, interested students should write immediately to: Dr. J.W. Patterson, Director of Debate, 47 P.O.T., P.O. Box 74, University of Kentucky, Lexington, KY, 40506.

Judy Mitchell Letcher passed away at Vanderbuit University Hospital, two years ago, from cancer.

She was the daughter Harold Mitchell of Carlisle and the late Irene Colliver Mitchell.

She attending Nicholas County High School, and Morehead State University. She also taught for some time in Harrison County Schools.

Sign language course to be offered

Learn sign language for college credit in Carlisle. The Christian Institute for Biblical Studies, a fully accredited college in Louisville, welcomes Charlotte Hardin, a Carlisle resident, to the staff as adjunct professor of Deaf Education.

Hardin will teach an eight-week course for CIBS in Basic Sign Language.

Classes will begin Saturday, April 30, at 8:30 a.m. at the Carlisle Christian Church.

Dr. Charles Burgin, President of the Institute, says, "This course is offered in the local area for full credit to those who could not otherwise attend college classes."

Hardin said, "This will be a very basic course. Each student will progress at an individual pace." Intermediate, advanced and interpreting courses are being developed for further presentation.

To enroll in the class, simply come to the Carlisle Christian Church at 8:30 a.m., April 30.

Tuition is $25.00. Each student may purchase the textbook through CIBS.
