NOTICES

VETO MESSAGE ORDINANCE NO. 6, 1989

This Ordinance of Intent to Annex is a companion measure to the failed Ordinance No. 5, 1989 for retail liquor by the drink on a finding of economic hardship which may be alleviated by enactment of such ordinance. The purpose of these companion ordinances cannot be attained unless they pass together. As the liquor by the drink ordinance failed, there is no reason to annex this territory with its additional financial burdens of providing Public Safety Protection and potential extension of city utilities, absent attaining the primary purpose of fostering economic development through liquor by the drink. This is due to the minimal amount of tax revenue to the city as a result of this annexation with no liquor revenue to offset the financial cost to the city. The proposed annexation is not in the best interest of the City of Carlisle, and the Ordinance of Intent to Annex is hereby vetoed.

Social Security

Q: I am a 43 year-old SSI disability recipient. My father passed away last month, and his entire estate was left to me. I received his house and little bit of property and some money in savings. I also found out that he had established a trust fund in my name. I plan to move into his house at the end of this month and give up my apartment. How will all of this affect my SSI payment?

A: If an SSI recipient inherits real estate or a savings account, they are income in the month of inheritance, and, if retained, are resources beginning with the following month. However, if you move into the house, and if and any land connected to it will not count as a resource starting with the month following your move. Otherwise, they are countable resources based on their current market value. The trust fund may be income depending upon the conditions under which it was established. Contact your local Social Security office, and inform them of the inheritance. They will be able to tell you whether there will be any reduction in your SSI check.

Q: How long does it take to get a personal earnings and benefit statement from Social Security?

At Once you have filled out the Form SSA-7004 and mailed it, you will receive your 'statement from Social Security in two to three weeks.
