City workers face cold weather leaks

By Josh Shepherd
Of The Carlisle Mercury Staff

Two leaks were discovered four feet apart in the water lines along Sycamore Hill Thursday as city workers worked to repair the lines in freezing temperatures.

The leak was discovered Wednesday where repair work is currently under way, said city employee Tommy Crawford.

Crawford said the 2-inch lines extending along the street are old and were set along the asphalt during unseasonably cold temperatures this month.

The pipes, split in what is called a centrifugal break, Crawford said.

A centrifugal break looks as though rock has virtually sliced into the pipe, resembling a cut, according to Crawford.

Though water standing near the intersection of Sycamore and Second streets belied the leak, Crawford said the standing water gave no indication of the location of the leaks.

The leak was found near the intersection, which required only an 8-foot section of Sycamore to be torn through to reach the leak.

An additional leak was also found four feet up the street.

An old clamp had broken and come loose, Crawford said. Repairs to the clamp took only a few minutes. The leaks were relatively small and no families along the roadway were seriously affected, Crawford said.

There was no room at the Inn...

And so the Sacred Family was turned away not having a place for their blessed son to be born. The shepherds knew of shelter and guided them to the manager, known to us now as the holy cresh.

We realize and celebrate the message of Christ's coming that every birth is a blessing and every creation a wonder. Rejoice.

Our very best to everyone.
