How game is about Nicholas

How did Nicholas County get started? What were things like in the early days?

You'll be able to find out this and other facts about Nicholas County in a board game just delivered.

What do you get when you combine a little bit of a hometown and a good idea? A very unique game and a bit of memorabilia.

The good idea comes to Nicholas by way of Wes Holly, a Nashville, Tennessee, businessman, who makes and sells Monopoly-style games which feature the familiar places of any interesting area. A version of the game featuring Nicholas County is now available.

Holly has been in the game business since 1982. He got his start while managing a Chamber of Commerce. "Another company did one in town, and I fell in love with the idea," Holly said. "I wanted a different game so I tried to come up with a new approach."

The new approach has been used to producer games in over 350 towns and counties. Each place has a personalized game where landing on Boardwalk or Park Place isn't possible, but players instead try for local places of business.

Other sites in this region that have been featured on a game include, 85 Kentucky towns and counties.

Holly said he almost always has very positive response to the game when he approaches businesses about it. The game board features space for 36 businesses.

Besides being played like a regular game of Monopoly, a player landing on a space can answer historical questions relating to the county and therefore reduce their rent.

Holly's family makes up the production crew for the games. He calls his business "a 20th century family craft project." The surface of the games is printed by machine, but the remainder is handmade by members of the Holly family.

Holly said that the games will retail for $11.00 and are available in local businesses.

"Satisfaction with the games is guaranteed by the company," Holly said. He seems very proud of his product and quite sure that local customers will be pleased to own one of the unusual games that captures a touch of home.

The following local businesses have the game for sale: Eddie's Restaurant, Small's Florist, Carlisle Drug, Georgie Girl Beauty Salon, Reid and Vice, Patricia's Cut Above, Berry's Service Station, McDonald's Ashland, Carlisle IGA, Track's Restaurant, Hopkins Drug, Mathers-Gaunce Funeral Home, Carlisle Drapaners, and Garrett's Furniture.

Keeping you in touch with the happenings in Nicholas County week after week after week for 125 years.
That's our commitment to our readers.

GET 75% OFF YOUR CAB FARE WITH CATS!

"You can't beat this system!" —Joe B. Hall

Need a ride to the store, your doctor or dentist? Don't pay full price for a cab.
Now you can get 75% off the cost of your cab fare just by calling CATS a day in advance.
CATS is the Community Action Transit System, a non-profit organization dedicated to providing affordable transportation to residents of Bourbon, Harrison and Nicholas counties.
And it's a system that can't be beat.
If you need a ride, call CATS before you call a cab. Phone 1-800-548-CATS. (2287)
It's a free call.
