THE Lexington Argonaut is the best daily now published in Central Kentucky.

JOHN W. LANGLEY says that he will not contest the election of Fitzpatrick as the Tenth district.

THE Governor has fixed Saturday, January 9th as the day for Lanigbin, the Perry county murderer to hang.

W. J. BRYAN received a larger number of Electoral votes and more of the popular vote of the country than was ever received by a defeated candidate for the Presidency.

UNCLE SAM is putting his wa-coal into use and now delivers it first class to his customers at 2240 pounds to the ton with the view of keeping the Spaniards from getting on here in the event they get out enough to fight.

HENRY WATTERSON will soon be home to become master of the Indianbred Democracy of Kentucky. He will find himself in control of the "caldron of power," able to do much for Democracy less nothing for Democracy.

THE Courier-Journal shows great uneasiness at the likelihood of Democracy not calling a special session of the Legislature. The Courier-Journal is glad if the Republicans do not elect a United States Senator this winter. Their chances are gone.

THE Louisville Post and Lexington Herald are urging the gold bug Democrats to unite with the Republicans and reorganize the Kentucky Senate by reversing President pro tem Lillard and Sergeant-at-arms Saunders and Doorkeeper Tyler, who are straight Democrats.

We ask our readers who talk of prosperity and plenty to read the article on our first page, headed "The Rich and the Poor." Col. C. E. Sears, who wrote that article, is one of the greatest newspaper writers in this country. He is the willing servant of the combination system that enables one room to contain the events of seven hundred millionaire dollars while people starve within a stone's throw of it.

THE National Democracy of Kentucky has made the declaration plain and clear. It will take no part in the Democratic State campaign, but will endeavor to head the ballots of power and endeavor to elect good officials and pure men to office, and will endeavor to do all it can to perform. It will be fair to be sure---Louisville Times.

In accordance with the spirit indicated by the above extract, there remains nothing for the true Democrats to do but take the offices in the localities where they have power, and in those where they cannot take the offices elect them over to the Republicans. The big Democratic vote will be cast as left.

THE Democratic State Central Committee met at Lexington Tuesday and appointed a Committee to attend the canvassing of the vote of this State, now going on at Frankfort. Strong confidence was presented to the Committee showing that Bryan had carried Kentucky, but had been defrauded out of many votes by some of the election returning boards. The Committee concluded that only those who supported Bryan should vote in Democratic primaries, as many nominees would run at the election whose votes will Republicans, but would support Republican and gold standard Democrats, the Bryan Democrats being without organization. A door violation of the election laws.
