EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCY.

FRANKFORT, KY., Feb. 7, 1898.

Dear Messenger:

When the Constitutional Convention undertook to make legislation due and difficult it certainly intended beyond its expectations to establish by the work of the present session. The seventy-fifth legislative day of the present session has passed both houses that required the signature of the Governor—and this was one shortening the portion of the manual embracing the rules of the House and Senate. The constitution and other interesting matter. Quite a number of very important bills have passed one House, but in no have passed both. The most important ones being those changing the name and of the membership of the Metropolitan Police the Crime school book bill, the Governor's bill, the Ore Inspector bill, and the Houston anti-pool-room bill. I think all of these bills will pass probably with slight amendments. The democrats have by no means a majority in either house, and the leaders appear not to have made matters of party question of will and various members have the possibility of and that nothing will be done to injure the Democratic party in the next campaign.

Peace for Kelley.

The handsome and popular cashier of the Carlisle Attorney is to be congratulated for his friends for the position of The Bulletin is for Fiscal Officer but having become satisfied that he could not hold the office.

Hon. Aaron E. Kelley of Carlisle, present Assistant City Clerk, Kentucky House of Representatives, has concluded to become a candidate for City Democratic ticket. Mr. Kelley is a young man, but has already made a record for himself as a member of the Legislature, and his friends are confident that he will be elected. He has been a resident of Carlisle for many years, and is well known to all the voters of the city. He is a young man of excellent character and good habits, and will make a clean, active and efficient officer. Hector Daily served all his term as Sanatorial nomination, and was remarked, "There goes a colonel if it hasn't been for that" and that's the way with the

So long as the Democratic party is successful in this city, and the Republicans continue to be controlled by the Democratic leaders, democratic nominations will be made by the Democratic Convention, and the Republicans will not be consulted. Under these circumstances Jim McKenzie, Democratic leader, will name the ticket, and will not be consulted. The editor is not a member of the Democratic Party, and has no desire to dictate to Democratic Home Rule by having any voice in the matter, but he does not like the Advertising Bill.

The Advertising Bill.

The Republicans are actively engaged over the Advertising Bill, and evidently do not know what to do, and where they are not divided in sentiment they are undecided. The majority fear losses, and say to the Democrats, you have got to have the bill, they will not vote against it, you know how, you worked out by

We H. FOLK Observer stopped at the Eutebee House in Carlisle, Ky., last Tuesday, for William is much troubled over the bill, and evidently do not know what to do, and where they are undecided in sentiment they are undecided. The majority fear losses, and say to the Democrats, you have got to have the bill, they will not vote against it, you know how, you worked out by
