At a Recent Meeting of the National Shoe Manufacturers Association of America,

In which there were 183 manufacturers or their representatives, it was resolved that owing to the advance in the price of leather, a matter over which they had no control, it would be impossible for them to fill their orders unless the quality of the leather was improved. It was agreed that the quality of the leather should be improved to such an extent that the shoes made of it would be as durable as those made of the best quality of leather.
