OBITUARY.

W. H. Thomas, aged and well respected citizen of Bourbon county, died Friday night at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Thomas Hedges, well known distiller many years, and was the father of Keller, Dunlap and Thomas Hedges, of Paris. The funeral services were held at Paris Sunday at three o'clock at the residence of John T. Hedges, Rev. Mr. Hedges officiating, and in the Paris cemetery. The pallbearers were: A. F. Allen, Joseph Hedges, Jr., Ben Hedges, Jr., Thomas Hedges and Will Hedges, of Paris.—Bourbon News.

The editors and publishers of the Mercury dress over to the funeral Sunday, and we passed through the neighborhood where the Senior was raised, his soul wandered back to the times when this section was cursed and cursed with slavery, and the hearts of their lives here have been turned to the sunny South. Many of the boys of the white section was organized into companies, the Sharpsites, the Knox, the Kellers, the Drake, the Rosenes, the Fletchers and Pope and others of equal wealth and energy. They came of sturdy, honest Irish and German stock from the shores of Maryland and Virginia, and of Pennsylvania, pre-eminently the land of thrift and industry. The boys from these sections were the progenitors of later families. The Keller family consisted of fourteen boys, one of whom (Nairy) became the wife of the subject of this sketch. They were not up to housekeeping at once, but the courtship continued, and when the husband assisted by the wife, then the mother of a family, they were conducted among the first and most prosperous families in the county. Were we pen sketches of the lives of their home along in the late 50's and early 60's, it would be more than a romance. The family and dependents had grown up around the hearthstone, black and white. The old stone house was the center of attraction for the young and old. The outbuildings added the necessaries of a town, and the hospitality of the home was unbounded and free. It was no uncommon thing for twenty or thirty guests to be welcomed to the Sunday dinners, while a score of horses filled the stalls of the capacious stables.

And all this entertainment not the least, the subject of this sketch, for he was an active boy, a leader, and a natural born leader. He was a boon companion of his youth, and the grown-up friends and children were equally fond of him. Possessing many of them, he not with dignified mien, with his active brain working on the problem of meeting the great demands upon him. Yet he never thought he himself as being imposed upon, but with a cheerful countenance and his greatest happiness seemed to be in doing more and more for others.

Of course, the years passed by, and great for him, and with age came misfortune, and at last he can scarcely get to give up his actual hands and energies to labor. But he is respected, he is cherished yet. He grew up and married from the neighbor of his youth, and a dark brown life, whether and her children and grandchildren, and from their most finished artists of the country. The First Baptist Bank of Paris, of which he was president, and the Bourbon Agricultural Bank, of Paris, of which he was president, will be found an agent of light and love to the person of a granddaughter, Mrs. John C. Morris, to comfort her last days and wipe the cold sweat from his aching brow.

After the long struggle he laid down his burden in peace, and may the Lord deal with him as he dealt with others.

New Baptist Church.

At the close of the service at the Presbyterian last Sunday the congregation was asked to listen to the announcement of a proposition which had been made to the Presbyterian church. The following resolution was offered by W. F. Keeney on behalf of the deacons and trustees of the Presbyterian church:

Resolved, That the church at its next morning hour be not about $6,000." After a free discussion of the resolution it was unanimously adopted by a rising vote. A spirit of liberality and generosity prevailed the meeting and the amount was subscribed in a very short time. It is the desire of the church to raise $4,500 by subscription, and not to begin building unless $4,500 is raised. They have now about $1,500 subscribed, and therefore will be required to raise work as soon as subscriptions for $1,500 have been received and plans obtained. The following building committee was appointed: Rev. J. W. Bell, Dr. J. C. Colyer and W. H. Hayes. Subscription so far as solicited are, we learn, very liberal, and with this good gifts, they will get more than the amount of $4,500.

Religious.

Ed. W. W. Williamson is engaged in a protracted meeting at Ewing.

Rev. J. W. Bell will begin a meeting attending a family reunion, but will be back Monday to fill his regular appointment.

A protracted meeting will begin in the Lodi church next Monday evening at 7:45 to be conducted by Rev. B. L. Lancaster, of Carlisle, Ky.

The pastor being absent from the city Rev. Lancaster will preside over the Methodist Church on next Sabbath. On the 5th Sunday in August Rev. Bell will fill the appointment left out at night.

Rev. Lancaster's subject for Sunday 11 a. m. will be "Good Stations," and at 7:45 p. m. "Dealing in Futures." We will preach in the Second Methodist Church for the declination service at 3 p. m. on "The Significance of a Church Edifice." The public is cordially invited to attend these services.
