Editorial Correspondence.

FRANKFORT, KY., Sept. 25, 1900.

Dear Mercury,

To-day ends the fourth week of the special session of the legislature, and the week behind it has shown little in the line of legislation. It is said that the legislature is the speediest, and I should say somewhat the most expensive, that ever assembled in this state. There is no doubt about the first, for it has been so far, some reason the movement of the fourth. Some of Fleming and Mason County were the most influential in the first, but of this I cannot say. I know that there has distinguished themselves in the way of speed, and I know that the expense account of the legislature is enormous, and the expended pumps and blowers.

However, I am ready to announce that I have "pumped" a few members. The Mason and Fleming delegations have been pumped to the limit, and nearly those from Bourbon and Nicholas. Some of the members have been pumped in favor of the opposition of some members to be pumped, and some have been pumped to make them vote for the bill, and some have been pumped to keep from voting for it. Judge Cantrill has been pumped to vote for it, and he has been pumped to vote against it. Judge Cantrill has been pumped to vote for it, and he has been pumped to vote against it. Judge Cantrill has been pumped to vote for it, and he has been pumped to vote against it.

Senator Berkshire has been pumped to vote for it, and he has been pumped to vote against it. Senator Berkshire has been pumped to vote for it, and he has been pumped to vote against it. Senator Berkshire
