GOVERNOR BECKHAM has had to appointed four Circuit Judges within the last six months, and all four of them have been nominated unanimously by the Democratic party. Pretty good record for the boy Governor.

GOVERNOR BECKHAM has made a requisition upon Governor Durbin, for the surrender of ex-Governor Taylor and ex-Secretary of State Finley, and the Indiana Governor has taken the record to read and will give his decision next week. Mr. Arthur Goebel went to Indianapolis with Chief of Police, Williams, of Frankfort, to present the papers and urge the surrender of the indicted men.

AT a meeting of the State Campaign Committee at Louisville last Saturday the joint debates between the candidates for U. S. Senator were ordered to be discontinued. This is in line with the prediction of the MERCURY of last week. Now if the Democrats of the State will cease to abuse one another there will be no doubt about the next Legislature being Democratic.

Diversified Opinions.

It May Be You.

Things Even Up.

The Debate to be Called Off.

Last week we made short mention of the disgraceful debate between two of the candidates for United States Senator, and predicted that before a month the State Central Committee would be compelled to call the debates off, or the chances for Democratic victory would be greatly lessened. One or two of our personal friends, but friends who object to anyone thinking or speaking upon political matters until some great and mysterious power from some great unknown source, makes known its will, said we ought not say such a thing even if it were true. But to such small advice we pay little heed. Like thousands of as good Democrats as ever fought the battles of the party, we are grieved and disgusted at the low plain upon which the campaign is pitched. Whether a man was for Joe Blackburn is a small qualification for the distinguished place of Senator from Kentucky, and the man who makes such a test shows his mental calibre. That one of the candidates was once the friend of John G. Carlisle is make another test of fitness to sit in the "greatest legislative body on earth." Another says if he had not been on the Bench not a Democratic officer would be in power at Frankfort to-day. Another said, after listening to one of the candidates for half an hour, "if the worthy gentleman told a single truth in his entire speech, I failed to hear it."

One said that "President McKinley had been the most dangerous executive that ever occupied the Presidential chair," and not one of the candidates had the courage to deny it, though the man who said it or any who heard it, could prove that Mr. McKinley had not made a most successful President, though tens of thousands of good Democrats, the writer of this included, differed from him radically as to his policies.

It is to this low plain of "statesmanship" that we object.

We should like men like Clay, and Breckinridge, and Beck, and Carlisle to arise to represent the great state of Kentucky in the Senate.

We should be pleased to once more sit for hours and hear men of great minds suggest remedies for existing evils and leave behind them some food for thought.

We should be delighted to see once more in Kentucky men in power whom the people regardless of party, could look to for protection from all wrong.

We know this is an idle dream just at present, but we shall not be frightened from expressing our opinion on these matters hoping that by some mysterious power the minds of the coming generation may be attuned to better things, and that our children's children may not be afflicted with cheap statesmen, as we are to-day.

The debate has been called off, and Kentucky saved from some shame at least.

President McKinley's Will.

The will of the late President was probated at Canton, Ohio, last Friday, and its provisions are to the credit of the man. He had just been inducted for the first time into the Presidency when he wrote it, and that he gave all he had to his wife, with the exception of a support for his aged and infirm mother, and upon their death to be divided equally between his only brother and sister, shows beautifully to his credit. Nothing can show the equity of a man's heart while he is living more perfectly than the reading of the will he leaves behind.

Dennis L. Haley, one of the oldest and best known residents of Frankfort and the father of Assistant Adjutant General Percy Haley, died Saturday. He built the Capital Hotel at Frankfort.

It is strictly here; everybody knows it. Testimony? The stock itself. The pen sufficiently nimble to tell all the good points of our

FALL AND WINTER SUITS

Has not yet been found. Glance among the various priced suits. The Cheaper sorts are excellent and the styles just right. It seems $10 insulting to link Ten Dollars with these clever Scotch mixed and nobby, checked cassimere suits. And the

All-Wool Serge Suits at $10

It simply shows that the meager purse is amply able to get clothing of excellence for a small outlay. Single or double-breasted coats. We will keep you dressed right up to date, if you buy clothing here.
