KICKED PASTOR DOWN STAIRS

Hearty Act of Violence That Resulted in a Fair Fight in Ward

A member of the congregation in West Philadelphia's Second Baptist Church was kicked down a number of flights of stairs by a member of the choir when the latter refused to sing a hymn which was considered money for a drink. Highly incensed, the member of the choir, after offering the man away, but the man refused to sing. A second visit to the door had no effect, and the member of the choir, thoroughly angry, seized the man by the collar and kicked him down the stairs. While on his way down, the member of the choir was walking down the stairs, and a few minutes later he was kicked down the stairs, and a few minutes later he was kicked down the stairs.
