PROTECTING FIG TREE DURING COOL WEATHER

Method of Banding Slugs to Ground, Planting Them Fast and Then Pulling Up Over Them to Mound Form.

Winter Protection of Fig Trees

A fig tree has been found to be suffering from the effects of a severe frost. The tree is covered in a thick layer of ice, and the leaves are frozen and falling.

The gardener has taken steps to protect the tree from further damage. He has banded the slugs to the ground and pulled them up to form a mound around the base of the tree.
