TARIFF INQUIRY SEEMS ASSURED

Congress Likely to Vote the Appropriation For the Commission.

FORMER OPPOSITION DYING

President Does Not Want to Postpone Action on this Measure—Future Leadership of Senate is Topic of Lively Speculation—Other News.

Washington—When the members of what very properly may be called "the president's party board" are certain that money enough will be provided to enable them to broaden the scope of their work they will at once begin an investigation which is likely, it is said, to bring to the surface some real facts concerning the relation or lack of relation of high prices to the tariff.

Mr. Taft asked for $250,000 to enable the tariff inquiry board to go on and it is possible that in addition to appropriating the money, generally for political reasons, will also enact legislation which will give the board authority to the experts to collect matter which may be of advantage for use in future tariff legislation.

Money Likely to Be Granted.

In the senate today the present session several of the standpat Republicans said openly that they would oppose any measure which would give the tariff experts any greater authority than was conferred on them under the Aldrich law. Long debate on the finance committee, and when the senate finance committee reported favorably to the bill, the opposition to it was so great that it was thought that the senate would not even consider it. Today, however, the opposition was not so great as it was a few days ago, and it is not improbable that the bill will be passed before the end of the week.

Cannot Count on Burrows.

Senator Aldrich is the chairman of the committee on finance, a position which is always accorded to the leader of the party which is in control in the upper house. The Republicans have a large majority on the finance committee, and, while Senator Aldrich is not considered a standpatter, Senator C. Burrows of Michigan, who succeeded Senator Hale in little likelihood that Mr. Burrows will be returned to the Republican ranks in the coming election in which the party now controls the legislature, and therefore that $250,000 will be granted for further investigation into business conditions with a view to the framing of tariff bills by the experts.

The Democrats declare that the Republicans are not sincere in making their change of position is due wholly to the fact that they are in the minority. The work which the tariff board will do will be of benefit to the Democrats to enable them to do it, will be to collect information which will be of use to a rival who entered the house of representatives at the same time as Senator Root, and it may be that this information will be of benefit to the party which will be in control of the senate. Representative Charles E. Townsend of Michigan is the "president Burrows' seat, and it may be that this gentleman will be the leader of the house of representatives.

Root's Future Puzzle.

Senator Root's position in the senate is a puzzle to the politicians of United States has been in a sense a leader in the senate as a representative of the country, and in Washington, while he has been in the senate ordinarily is put down as an able lawyer, he has not been the chosen adviser of the extremely brilliant men who have preceded Theodore Roosevelt.

Next to Mr. Root the senator has not been long to the senate, but he has shown, every probability, considered out of the question to the senate as a leader. It is true that Senator Lodge is a leader, but he is not a leader in the sense that Senator Aldrich is the leader of the senate.

Leadership Yet to Be Nominal.

The Republican senators today are among themselves as to the leadership of the senate, and of establishing the responsibility for bills to the man who is selected to lead the party. This means simply that the senate at present except power into the hands assessed will be to handle Balinger cross fire, strength and influence. There is no one in the United States today who will be made this responsibility will be made this—or right at the senate. Senator Lodge is a leading Republican, but he is not a leader. There is no one into line if it is necessary to use compulsion.

PLEASES SCHURMAN

Cornell President Sees Good in Big Philanthropy Scheme.

Believes Congress Should Grant Request for National Charter—Would Change Only One Small Detail.

Ithaca, N. Y.—In an address before the Council congress on Friday night President Jacob Gould Schurman of Cornell commended the scheme for the Rockefeller foundation for which congress has been asked for a national charter. President Schurman devoted his entire speech of several thousand words to this subject and in summing up he said:

I recognize that section No. 2 of the bill, which defines the object of the Rockefeller foundation, authorizes and empowers that foundation to do anything and everything which may promote and advance human civilization, that is to say, morals and religion, art and science, manners and social intercourse, and all that concerns the politics, economic, and material well being of individuals and communities. This is a vast field for the exercise of philanthropy.

Mr. Rockefeller has conceived a vast scheme of philanthropy, for the benefit of his fellow citizens of every kind. His character, ability and organizing skill are adequate guarantees that he will carry out his scheme wisely and successfully with the most valuable benefit and blessing to mankind. It is to the interest of the nation that he be given a free hand in the disposal of his colossal beneficence. So long as he confines his influence remains it would be wise and safe to give the foundation the sort of organization he desires. Nothing can now prevent Mr. Rockefeller's necessity to limit the scope of his beneficence, which is necessarily one of the efforts of mankind to attain a higher civilization.

"The only changes I would desire to see in the proposed bill is the total or partial elimination of the method of electing trustees by cooperation. The organization might well be left a close corporation, if Mr. Rockefeller so desires, for a generation. But after that it is to be expected that it would inure both to the efficiency of the corporation and to the public welfare—to say nothing of the democratic principle—that of a democracy—if the majority of the trustees were appointed by the president of the United States, with the advice and consent of the senate, or elected by some other high abilities, whose appointment or election may also be regarded as representing the people of the United States, whose welfare is the principal object of the foundation.

TRADE IS STILL HEAVY

Business Conditions Are Irregular, However, and Much Depends Upon the Crops.

New York—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Conditions of business are still irregular, but the volume of trade continues heavy. Certain unfavorable developments have apparently been expressed and their effect on business sentiment has been out of proportion to their real significance. Much, as usual, depends this year upon the crops.

No connected action has been taken to curtail production of pig iron, but several more furnaces have blown out in the week and others are expected to do likewise. A proposition has been advanced among merchant furnaces in the region of the Integral Pennsylvania districts to shut down for 20 days between now and July 1. Inasmuch as demand for pig iron is concerned, conditions are, if anything, more quiet than in the preceding weeks, but prices now show some resistance to the declining tendency except in steelmaking iron. Producers of coke are curtailing more freely in response to the blowing out of furnaces, and it is estimated that the weekly output is 160,000 tons less than at the end of March. In finished lines the situation is somewhat mixed and no great changes are reported. Railroad contracts for structural material are pending. Rail requirements of the railroads apparently have been limited, and two exporting mills are for 28,000 tons.

The primary dry goods market is steadier, but still rules generally quiet. Cotton goods are a shade firmer, as shown by an advance of a quarter of a cent on drills and sheetings, and curtailment of production is steadily increasing. It is reasonably quiet in the finishing trade, but retailers buy readily if and carefully without desire to anticipate beyond immediate requirements. Duplicate orders for fall woolens are coming in, and the jobbing trade in worsteds rules quiet. Dress goods continue light.

A good volume of new orders for the fall of fall run have been placed by shoe manufacturers in all sections, shipments from Boston for the week are slightly larger. Hide leather is stronger and the largest tanner of sole announces an advance of 2 to 3 cents per pound. Side leather receipts are well sold up and booked ahead on many grades. Some kinds of upper leather are selling well, but other descriptions continue neglected. Sales of Western packer hides during the last ten days aggregated about 175,000 hides, and this has served to steady the market.

Failures and Exports.

New York—Bradstreet's review says:

Business failures in the United States for the week ending with April 28 were 189, against 193 last week, 248 in the week of 1909, 223 in 1908, 163 in 1907 and 179 in 1906.

Business failures for the week in Canada number 21, which compare with 15 last week and 23 in the corresponding week of 1909.

Wheat, including flour, exports from the United States and Canada for the week ending April 28, aggregate 2,859,-000 bushels, against 3,000,000 bushels last week and 896,312 bushels this week a year ago. For the 64 weeks ending April 28, exports are 122,211,417 bushels, against 98,543,000 bushels in the corresponding period last year.

Corn exports for the week are 514,-814 bushels, against 462,641 bushels last week and 1,000,000 bushels in 1909. For the 43 weeks ending April 28, exports are 11,295,852 bushels, against 29,372,344 bushels last year.

TOBACCO MARKET.

Louisville, April 30.—Total offerings last week 1,000 hhds; sales 1,000 hhds; against 1,000 hhds were burley and 300 hhds dark tobacco. Offerings were light and sales were at steady prices. Offerings were light and sales were at steady prices. Offerings were light and sales were at steady prices
