

The COAST OF CHANCE

By ESTHER CUMBERLAND
Illustrated by G. B. BROWN

CHAPTER VII—Continued.

The door of the room opened and a woman came in. She was dressed in a simple, practical way, and she had a look of earnestness about her. She came to the bed and looked at Clara with a look of sympathy.

Clara looked up at her with a look of surprise. She had never seen her before, and she was not sure what to say. The woman looked at her for a moment and then she spoke.

"I am glad to see you," she said. "I have been thinking of you very much. How are you getting on?"

Clara looked at her for a moment and then she spoke. She had a look of surprise on her face, and she was not sure what to say.

DOIT SELECT YOUR KIDNEY.

Little kidney troubles gradually grow more serious and cause a great deal of suffering. It is better to select your kidney early than to wait until it is too late.

Do not neglect your kidney. It is the most important organ in your body, and it is the one that is most often neglected.

Star Song.

When sweet love has been given,
And the heart is true,
The song that is sung,
Is the song of love.

When sweet love has been given,
And the heart is true,
The song that is sung,
Is the song of love.
