VOL. XLVI CARLISLE, NICHOLAS COUNTY, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, MAY 4, 1911 EIGHT PAGES—NO 38

Pineville's Good Roads Meeting.

According to the press reports the good roads convention at Pineville was attended by fully 500 enthusiastic advocates of highway improvement. Ten counties were represented by delegates and the meeting was in every way harmonious and successful. This augurs well for good roads in Southeastern Kentucky.

The formation of an organization covering the various counties represented is a good indication that the movement will not fail. Another encouraging feature of the meeting was the presence of county officials among the delegates. County officials have to deal with the road question and it is encouraging to know that so many of them are becoming interested in permanent betterment and are seeking to get away from the costly and all but fruitless methods of road working that are generally prevail in Kentucky.

The road problem in the mountain counties is a serious one—more so than in many other counties where the topography is more favorable for road building. It is a problem which presents different aspects in different counties and every county must handle it according to its own capacity. It is a good plan, nevertheless, for the counties to take counsel of each other, and for that purpose a meeting is supplied by the organization of the South-eastern Kentucky Good Roads Association.

The enthusiasm and earnest zeal with which the people of that region have taken up the road question is but another exemplification of the wholesome interest there is being manifested in every part of the State. Unless all signs fail the year 1911 will see some splendid results in the way of highway betterment, along with a material gain over where it is the sentiment for good roads.—[Courier Journal.

Home Rule Near at Hand

The news from Ireland this week must have delighted every Irishman the world over. O'Dreyer has made overtures to Redmond looking to peace and future co-operation in the struggle for Home Rule. Now is surely a successful issue. He makes some concessions which Mr. Redmond may or may not be able to comply with but the great cause of Erin has been abandoned and with it all excuse for further independent action. This is not the time or place to discuss the merits of the long and sickening feud that has divided Ireland into two hostile camps. The division has been terribly bridged time to time since. From this day on England will have to deal with a united Ireland and the Liberals will be further strengthened by the passage of the veto measure that has occupied the attention of the whole British Empire for nearly a quarter of a century.—[Western Weekman.

Statues of Lincoln and Stockel at Frankfort

Two important statues of men who played a part in Kentucky's history are now completed by famous sculptors and it is expected that both will be erected in the Capitol at Frankfort before the administration of Governor Wilson comes to an end. One of the statue of Wm. Goebel, which has been modeled by a sculptor appointed made by order of the General Assembly. The other is the statue of Lincoln, which is the gift of J. F. Speed of Louisville. Both are said under way and it is reported to members of the Capitol Commission.

The statue of Lincoln, which promises to be the most notable one ever made, is being modeled by the sculptor A. A. Weinman, who made the Lincoln statue now on the Lincoln farm in Larue county.

Burley Growers to Get Money.

The Burley Tobacco Society has announced that on March 15th the distribution of 30 per cent of the money received from the sales of loosed tobacco of the 1910 crop will be made, amounting to 2740,000. This makes the second distribution this year of $2,000,000 three other smaller distributions of money are expected. The money goes to farmers of Kentucky, Indiana, and Ohio, members of the White Burley pool.

A Fine Pony.

Clarence Barbee, son of J. F. Barbee, of Millersburg, has sold to J. K. Alley, of Winchester, registered Shetland pony. Dick Tater, by Commander Nutt, Jr., 252. The pony is a typical Shetland, well proportioned, and has taken a number of premiums at the different fairs for the best model pony.—[Paris Kentuckian.

Famous Race Mare Killed.

Maud S., the famous trotter owned by the late George M. Stevens, was put to death Wednesday afternoon at Springfield, Ky., the death sentence being specified in Mr. Stevens' will. Maud S. was thirty-five years old and blind.

Emergency Districts.

At the last session of the legislature we introduced a bill to create a fund for the organization of [illegible] school district in extreme cases has been vetoed for two months.

Last Friday which was Good Friday was the forty-sixth anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's assassination, which occurred on a Good Friday. The anniversary of the shooting had not occurred [illegible] Friday since 1906, and it will not occur until 1922.

It is estimated that each individual in the United States eats [illegible] annually. In other countries [illegible] Imports are so low as to be inconsequential. The farmers of [illegible] the nation's [illegible] better the remaining two-thirds. In or 1,560,000,000 pounds that we eat annually, is made in over [illegible] farmhouses.

A. T. Kendall, who lives at Shiloh, a little village four or five miles from Louisville, claims to have fired the last shot in the Civil War. He was a member of the famous eighth Kentucky, which was the last body of troops to surrender, and he fired the last shot before they surrendered in May, 1865. Kendall is now old and feeble and thirty-three years he was a member of the Legislature.

The prevalence of scabies among sheep in this State has caused over 1,000 sheep-growers much financial loss and in some instances to ultimately effect the [illegible] of wool. The situation has become so serious as to cause the Federal Government to send an inspectors here to help stamp out the disease. Much work and great care is necessary in order to do this, and no pains should be spared by the proper authorities in the work of eradicating this disease, the prevalence of which has already cost the sheep men of the State thousands of dollars.—[Lebanon Enterprise.

The tobacco market has been active in Montgomery county for the past week or so, and over, a half million pounds have been sold. A. R. Robertson, buyer for the Louisville Tobacco Company, has been a big purchaser, while Lexington buyers have also been in the field. The prices have been ranging from 5c to 12c per pound, with 11-12 cents being offered for some extra crops. The acreage in this county this year has been decreased over 1,000 acres from 1910. Plants are coming rapidly and seem to be unanimated from recent cold weather.—[Mt. Sterling Advocate.

A Mt. Sterling special says: One of the most terrible tales of a wild whisky craze was told in the courts here just come to light. Last fall Charles Duff, a farmer residing in Logan county, Kentucky, was given a sentence of sixteen years in the penitentiary. It weighed 1,100 pounds when it reached Mt. Sterling, one year, or more, ago, and after paying the fees of the officers of the court it did not reach the consignee weight. It was sold on the court house steps in March 11 and when weighed up again for the penitentiary it weighed but 700 pounds, thus costing Mr. Duff $17.60, the highest price ever paid for a prisoner in the penitentiary of this section of the state, and probably in the entire state.

Living London.

Of all great cities London is still the greatest. Its population is still greater by nearly 2,000,000 than the next city of our own Greater New York. Another city has over a million inhabitants. It is the most powerful kingdom of the world, moral and material force that the world has ever built. Even its antipodes is supplied by London orders more than 2,000 years old. Today it contains more Irishmen than Dublin, more Scotchmen than Edinburgh, and more Jews than all Palestine.
