

Are We to Destroy a Lesser to Create a Greater?

"It is understood that one of the first things that Governor McCreary will ask of the Legislature is to abolish the Prison Board as elective by the Legislature and create a new board appointed by the Governor."

The above quotation is from a recent article in the Louisville Evening Post, headed "Strengthen the Hands of the Governor," and it attracted our attention immediately and aroused our curiosity as to the real of the Post in making such a statement. We shall not enter into any controversy as to the need to strengthen the hands of the Governor, but will limit our remarks to the fact that the Governor, while he is authorized to appoint and discharge the members of the Prison Board, he is not authorized to create a new board in place of the old one.

It is to be noted that the Prison Board is a body of five members, elected by the Legislature for a term of two years, and that the Governor has the right to appoint and discharge the members of the board. It is also to be noted that the Prison Board is a body of five members, elected by the Legislature for a term of two years, and that the Governor has the right to appoint and discharge the members of the board.
