Rev. J. K. Nunnelley Laid To Long Rest.

Georgetown, Ky., Jan. 31.—All that was mortal of Rev. J. K. Nunnelley was laid to rest Thursday morning. The chapel in Georgetown College was filled with sorrowing friends who came to pay their last tribute of respect. The auditorium was decorated with iconic flowers which bore their silent message of sympathy from many friends to the bereaved widow.

Rev. M. B. Adams of Frankfort read a Scriptural passage from which Dr. Nunnelley had taken a text for his last sermon, after which Rev. T. J. Stevenson offered a prayer and words of comfort to the family. Dr. R. A. Dixon and Dr. Adams gave a biography of his life and commented upon its usefulness and his being an example to others. Several of his favorite songs were sung by a quartette composed of Mrs. Bettie Davidson Jones and Miss Lois Calhoun and Messrs. E. T. Hord and John L. Hill.

The out of town relatives and friends who attended the funeral were:

Mrs. J. Brent Gardner, Mrs. Alma Webb, Mr. Robert Nunnelley, of Louisville, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Tramp son of Lexington. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Reed, Memphis; John and Thomas Weathers of Winchester; Rev. T. J. Ecton of Lexington, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Nunnelley and sons, Messrs. Coleman and James Nunnelley of Lexington, Mr. Julian Allen, Mrs. Mary Ingels, Mrs. Sanford Allen and Mr. Granville Allen, all of Millersburg; Mr. Lewis Rogers of Paris; Mr. J. W. Allen, Mrs. Almon Ratliff, John R. Crockett, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Keagle, Mrs. C. W. Peters, Thomas J. Allen, J. W. Allen, son of Mrs. Allen, all of Sharpsburg; Rev. and Mrs. M. B. Adams and Mrs. J. M. Alcorn, all of Frankfort, and Mr. J. M. Pence of Winchester.

Electricity Makes Wool Grow.

According to Prof. John Wertheimer of Los Gatos, California, the application of the influences of high voltage wires on animal and vegetable life during the past year have proved that electricity will more than double the normal increase of the flesh of animals and greatly increase the yield of wool.

On his experimental farm on Mt. Tyler plane, Wertheimer, J. W. Aller, and Shropshire sheep, one half of the number being placed in a field under the power wires of the Great Western Power Company, while the others were kept entirely away from the electric influence that might emanate.

In the field under the electric power line the production of lambs attained by attraction over two lambs to each ewe. In the adjoining field where no electrical influence was having the lambs averaged less than six to each ewe.

Spinner differs.—Prof. Wentworth declares, were conducted in the same way. Then the sheep kept in the electrically influenced field the fleeces grew more than 20 per cent heavier than those from the other sheep kept remote from such influence.

Preparations are now being made to give up both fields and place the animals on wheat. The power current will be requested to extend the power lines throughout the entire 1910 year so that the measure of the influence of the powerful electric current may be increased. Prof. Wentworth declares that he is very confident that the yield of wheat in the Tyler field will be over 100 per cent heavier than in the adjoining field. Big Purchase of Hens.

Messrs. Kennedy & Hickman, Hyman Bell, manager, have purchased of Orville Barnes 100 hens that weighed 60 pounds, or an average of nearly 6 pounds each. Mr. Kennedy tells us it was about the finest lot of poultry he has ever handled. Mays ana Leg Cabo.

ARE our merchants ready for the competition of those alluring spring catalogues from the great metropolitan department stores. Of course the bargains in these are not better, when you consider that the home merchant gives you his personal attention and the chances to return goods that are not what was represented. But the public forgets this trade is to be dominated, and the only efficient salesman is the home newspaper.

In the Bath-Fleming district Senator Isabel L. Vice, Republican, is announced as a candidate for reelection to the State Senate. Trimble Standaker is announced also. He is a republican too. If it was not for the Prohibition question, a democrat could be elected from this district.

New Ruling of the State Registrar.

—To relieve some of the difficulty of undertakers in securing burial or removal permits when the local registrar lives in a rural or remote district the State Registrar has issued the following rule, which will relieve to a great extent the friction encountered in the operation of the new law:

A local registrar may act as sub-registrar to any local registrar of his county or adjoining county and may sign the name of the local registrar of the district in which the death occurred to any burial, removal or transit permit when the undertaker or person acting as such, has presented a complete death certificate and complied with the law and rules and regulations of the State Board of Health. Such permits shall constitute authority for burial or removal.

The sub-registrar shall sign his name with a prefix "per" under the name of the local registrar for whom he is acting and shall forward at once the death certificate to that local registrar, who will be held responsible for it as provided by law.

The sub-registrar may charge the sum of twenty-five cents for his services to be paid by the undertaker.

Given under my hand this sixth day of January, of the year nine-teen hundred eleven.

High Art.

Probably more vulgarity has been perpetrated in the name of High Art, than under any other pretense. It has been our privilege to see at first hand the world's greatest art galleries, and to have seen not a few of the specimens of so-called High Art. We give it too, as our deliberate opinion, that many of these works of art are well calculated to bring the blush to any modest man or woman.

Not that we have been able to make a moral distinction between the picture of a nude person, in an art gallery or in a ten-cent museum. Indeed, the naked-ness, whether pictured on paper, skillfully carved in marble or in living form, is indecent, if not immodesty, in any form or in any place.

It is also a significant fact, that many of the masters in the field of High Art, have been men of shamefully impure lives, and have evily put on paper, or carved in marble thoughts and figures that were first in their minds.

It is to be expected, that the advocates of High Art, will exhort. That these holding such views as we have here attained do not possess artistic taste and temperament. Granted for the sake of the argument that this is true, it would likely be better to be destitute of fastidiousness tasteless than to indulge an extravagant admiration for nude paintings and statuary. Better be pure-minded than "temperament" we would at least advise us to repress such taste." As it appears to us, the possessors of the "artistic taste" hardly entitles one to liberties and indulgences not vouchsafed to ordinary mortals. (Western Recorder).

Local Authorities After Dynamiters

That the authorities of Montgomery county intend to enforce its law and stop and the effort to dynamite the tobacco warehouse of Alex E. Robertson in this city last Tuesday night is evidenced in the following notice which is being circulated all over the country in an effort to get some one to give clews to work on the case.

Reward—A reward of $1,500 is offered as follows. $500 by Alex E. Robertson for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons guilty of the attempt to dynamite the warehouse occupied by him in Mt. Sterling, Ky., on the night of Tuesday, January 10, 1911. $500 to the city of Mt. Sterling on the same conditions, and $500 by the Commonwealth of Kentucky for the arrest and conviction of the guilty parties if said crime was committed by the act of a man or more persons in conspiracy to injure the property of another."

The reward signed by Mayor Samuels and A. E. Robertson, Policeman Hamilton has been working on several clues and seems confident of his ultimate success in running down the dynamiters. Mt. Sterling Gazette.

There is every danger that the voters of Kentucky, both Democrats and Republicans, will this year take so much interest in the nomination and election of State officers that they will overlook the importance of electing proper men to represent them in the next Legislature of the State. We believe we are correct in our opinion when we say that it is of more importance and more importance to look well after the selection of those who are to make our laws than it is to elect men whose duty it is to see them enforced. The next Legislature of Kentucky will have grave questions to settle, the proper settlement of which mean much to the future of Kentucky.—[Madisonville Hustler.

Counting Eggs As They Are Laid.

A Buffalo man has patented an egg marking device which is described as "adapted to be attached to a hen to mark the eggs as they are being laid." The purpose is to ascertain the laying capacities or qualities of a hen by marking each egg as it is laid, and this is accomplished by a device attached to the hen itself. Securing rings, apparently of metal, are passed through the cartilaginous septum of the hen and cooperate with spring devices in securing the marking devices in position on the hen so that as the egg is laid the marking device is brought into position to produce on the egg the distinctive mark appropriated to the particular hen. The patent was issued in September, 1910.

Poultry Product.

Carcass and feathers as well as eggs, the state of Missouri last year produced $46,000,000 worth of hen fruit. This is an enormous amount of money for 111 counties to produce, to be sure. And in most cases it was an incidental crop, a sort of by-product, not being the man's main business. Few employments are more profitable in a small way than raising chickens. Experience has shown that twenty-five hens is the right number for most people to undertake as a flock. If less numerous they do not do so well, while a smaller number may require as much attention as twenty-five.

(Crowded out from last week.)

John Arrasmith, of Lexington, was here a few days last week.

Carl Hoeh has returned to his home at Winchester after spending a week with relatives here.

C. Hawkins and wife came down to see their new nephew James Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Thompson. The little man first saw the light of the world on Wednesday, Jan. 11, 1911. Frank Holt will establish an ice plant here. Work is being rapidly pushed to completion and the proposition which won her many friends. Sue was sick but a few days. Burial at Elizaville on Thursday afternoon. The Lodal and Schaf here Sunday School gave two beautiful floral designs. The family have our sympathy. The people of this vicinity are greatly worked up over the tobacco situation. Quite a large number had sold their tobacco to be delivered here, and had dates up until about the 1st of March for delivery. The managers here received word Saturday not to receive any except those bought by T. J. Daugherty himself. The Ewing Deposit Bank had ample number of warehouse receipts sent them some time ago telling them to hold, but they did so, and now the head managers at the Mt. Sterling office refuse to take it. The feeling is very bitter here. William Moores, of Lexington, was in this section, Mrs. A. J. Jolly. The school was dismissed last week on account of diphtheria, but as only a few cases developed, will begin again Monday.

President Clarence LeBus of the Burley Tobacco Society, and Secretary T. J. Daugherty, of Fayette county, sold their tobacco crop of 1910 on the loose leaf market in Lexington, one basket of 785 pounds bringing the record price of 40 cents a pound. The entire crop of 6,125 pounds brought $2,450.00 and the American Tobacco Company was the purchaser of most of the crop.

Twenty-six members of the Oldham county statutes have signed a petition asking for the passage of a law to abolish the office of Democratic party have been enacted into law.

Storm in Frankfort.

A regulation tornado swept over this vicinity Sunday night, the force of which almost lifted pedestrians off their feet. Several stacks of hay were badly disfigured in the country, some three sustaining loss being J. W. Haines and H. C. McDowell, a large barn on the farm of E. L. Tilton, outskirts of the city, was blown down and completely wrecked by the severe windstorm on Sunday night. The damage is considerable. (Tribune-Democrat.)

Trigg county will toss up the paddle April 8th to determine whether or not liquor shall be sold. The last time it was tried the paddle lit with the dry side up.

And now comes cooking food by wireless. At the Chicago electrical exhibition to-day Mr. C. H. Thordason will conduct a wireless lunch counter. Oyster stews, steaks, ham and eggs, etc are to be publicly prepared by wireless heat, that the public may see for themselves. To make sure, the pans and platters in which the food will be cooked are to rest on crushed ice, which in turn will be supported on a slab of marble—all open to public inspection—to prove that no other heat than "wireless" is used. Nor is this all. An electrical farm in full operation, it is announced, will be exhibited by the Electrical Storage Battery Co.

A Word to the Church Members.

Christian voter when you cast your ballot for open saloon are you not compromising with wrong?

If some one should approach you with the proposition that he would give you $500 for the liberty of teaching your boys and growing boy to use liquor you would grow very indignant at such an offer. Some say you don't, but you will if in an illicit way at a "blind tiger" perhaps, and you might as well have the $500.

How many of us be to think for a MONEY consideration you would allow anyone to attempt to destroy the home and the prohibition comes to the county and abide by the law? Prohibition as easily lays and men in it to drink as he can and by his allurring methods secure more trade for his saloon, what do you say? In the first place it is not a fair deal and in the second place it is ALL the boys you're included. If you would not compromise with wrong when the proposition for private consumption was made much less should you do so when it is proposed to attempt a whole sale ruin of character.

When your license the saloon you share the responsibility for all the ruin that it brings. When there is a broken home, you are a silent partner with the saloon keeper you gave him permission. When there is a murder committed by a drunken man, the product of the saloon, who to the sight of God is to blame when he pronounces a curse upon "him that puteth the bottle to his neighbors lips."

Think on these things before you carelessly put your name to a petition asking for the saloon back to your midst.

L. & E. Extension.

Information was received in Cincinnati yesterday that the Louisville & Nashville Railroad plans to spend $3,000,000 in its ninety-eight mile extension from Jackson into the Eastern Kentucky coal fields. The work on the Lexington & Eastern will make this road the greatest mover of operating work in the country and by next fall an immense coal tonnage will be moved over the road. Most of the coal hauled over the L. & E. will be brought to Cincinnati and distributed from here to L. & E. middle Western States.

When President M. H. Smith announced the plans of the work the statement was made that the road country extension is immediate. It will be at once of the most remarkable railroad construction feats done in the history of American railroads. If the entire line of the L. & N. was constructed on the same plan it would be ranked as the greatest piece of railroad engineering in the world. Railroad men are interested in the work, as the only ones on earth that will be hurt by the Parcels Post law, the Interstate Commerce Commission has made to our merchants that the Parcels Post will not be allowed to build the road. "Two straws will show which way the wind blows," as the old saying has it, and the railroad systems in the country, profits have been put into improvements and the Parcels Post Law, N. 18 recognized. It is one of the most ably managed railroads in the United States and is "Mill" controlled by Samuel Inman, railroad wizard."

The extension of the road will have twenty-one tunnels and seven bridges, starting one and one-half miles from Cincinnati.

Farmers in the Grassi Switch section of Boyle county waged a war of extermination against a flock of more than fifty wild turkeys that swooped down upon their community from the adjacent knobs. Two mile towns and five report cattle belonging to Richard Johnson and flocks of sheep to Ben Walker have been killed by the turkeys. A load of corn was scattered before the feeder in killing the turkeys. A number of the turkeys were killed on different farms. A load of twenty armed farmers attacked the dogs in a body and the dogs were overwhelmed before the turkeys could be killed. A number of the turkeys were killed by the dogs and the remainder were driven to the knobs.

Editoral and Otherwise.

Fortieth Anniversary.

On Saturday next, February 4th, the editor of the Democrat will celebrate his forty-fifth anniversary in the printing business in Paris, by keeping open house from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M. at the office in the Dow building, opposite Hotel Windsor.

Our friends, both ladies and gentlemen, are invited to call, and those who are not subscribers to the paper are invited to become such. We would like to add a large number of new subscribers to our list on that day. [Paris Democrat.]

The Parcels Post.

A man claiming to be a representative of the "Jobbers" of Louisville was here last week soliciting our merchants to sign a petition against the passage of the Parcels Post Law by Congress. We have no doubt but that the "Jobbers" do not want it passed as any was paid by the Express Company, as the Express people are the only ones on earth that will be hurt by the Parcels Post law, but the petitions were made out to our merchants that the Parcels Post would be allowed to build the road. "Two straws will show which way the wind blows," as the old saying has it, and the railroad systems in the country, profits have been put into improvements and the Parcels Post Law, N. 18 recognized. It is one of the most ably managed railroads in the United States and is "Mill" controlled by Samuel Inman, railroad wizard."

A package that costs the Parcels Post 10 cents to carry the agents from Cincinnati to Carlisle is now sent from a Mail Order house in Chicago for fifteen or twenty cents. The Mail Order houses will not deliver it at a reasonable cost.

Under the Parcels Post Law the Post Office Department would deliver it at a reasonable cost.

Under the Parcels Post notice against the Parcels Post next session he should be retired and the Hon. John G. Carlisle sent in his place.

If the Express Companies want to rob the people longer, they must do it against our wishes.

Hot In The Collar.

PADUCAH, KY., Jan. 21. Close on the heels of a statement by a close friend of Judge John K. Hendrick that he will not continue in the race for Governor, the Calloway Gazette, of Murray, which has been a strong supporter of Hendrick, declares the proposed Democratic State ticket suppose and "grafters have the Democratic party in bondage by the throat," declares the Republican State ticket will be elected by 25,000 majority.

Hendrick's friend say while reports from over the State indicate he will have the strongest support of any candidate by the voters of the party, he would stand no chance to win after the fight developed between Hendrick-endorsed tickets or deny the statement, saying he will announce his candidacy in time to get in the race.

He admitted he has been urged to enter the race for Attorney General. The failure to call a Senatorial primary has been a hard strain on the friends of the Libraian district Democrats, who are strong for Ollie James.

The Calloway Gazette said editorially: "The rough riders composing the Democratic State Executive Committee apparently think they are playing ball with all the candidates for State offices who are not on this committees slate. We have but interest in the matter because, as sure as gun is iron, the next State officers of Kentucky will be Republicans.

"This talk of 'patriotic primary' makes people weary. Every man with sense enough to let the ground with his head, knows that a brave cause and that the cause are all stacked by this delectable gang. Most everybody knows that they will elect a straight Republican ticket, because the road agents and grafters have the Democratic party of Kentucky by the throat.

"Of course, there is no hope for that, so they have Ollie James on the telegram, and if a man of his ability and love of justice can get a fair deal from this gang, then there is no hope for anybody else. The wonder of it all is that a man like McCreary will allow himself to become the cat's paw of a gang of political thieves and pirates, but the people will have their say in November. If the Republicans put up a decent ticket it will be elected by 25,000 majority."

Plan for Good Roads.

In building good roads each county should have its own definite plan formulated to meet its peculiar needs. It will be profitable, in the end, for each county to employ a competent road engineer, under whose directions all of the work done on all of the roads in the county should be carried on. It is self-evident that if a macadam road or another type of highly-improved highway is to be built, the services of such an engineer are required. I believe that his services may be of fully as much value in directing and supervising the improvement and maintenance of those roads in the county which are not immediately to be highly improved. This is of particular importance in counties in the mountain sections of the state, where the sources of which are not sufficient to enable them to embark extensively upon the construction of roads of higher types. The road engineer ought to know the character of every mile of public highway in his county and he should also know what building materials are available in each locality. Then by correspondence and personal conference with the road supervisors, he could map out exact cost of them as to that can best be done on the roads under his jurisdiction with the material he has at hand.

For years we have had in any county would undoubtedly reveal the material improvements of the more important roads are built under part of the cash available would have to be spent. Even the more remote roads will long be benefited by the construction of a few miles of good road.—Courier-Journal.

Suit Against Bracken County Farmers Settled by Payment of $4,000 and Costs in Court.

The damage suit of W. S. Henderson against a number of farmers in Bracken county has been settled Tuesday. It will be remembered that Henderson was awarded $5,000 damages in the Circuit Court at Augusta, but the case was appealed to the Court of Appeals. The settlement was for this amount to $5,000. Under the terms of the compromise Henderson gets $4,000, and pays the cost in the case amounting to about $1,000, to be paid by the farmers. By the terms of this compromise Henderson discontinues his suit for damages. The case grew out of the tobacco troubles in Bracken county in December, 1907. Henderson claiming that he was damaged by the farmers making him sign an agreement not to buy any more tobacco in Bracken county.

The Late Wm. Tarr.

Wm. Tarr, who died last week, is deserving of more than a passing notice.

He was one of the most kind hearted and genial gentleman that ever lived in this country. In his younger days he was a thorough business man and a liberal giver to those in need. A score of gentlemen owe their education to Mr. Tarr, who furnished all the money to put them through college. If he saw a bright young boy who wanted an education he was always glad to put up the money.

He was not only a liberal giver in this cause, but would contribute more money for any good cause than any other man in the country. He helped to build churches and schools, public roads and anything that would be of benefit to the people.

Years ago he planted a row of trees on one side of the pike from Paris to Millersburg the handsomest drive in the State.

As a mule breeder he made many times more money than any other man in this section. He was driven through from Paris. For many years he was a leader in the daily abandoned them and devoted his time and energy to the distillery.

He has passed to the beyond but his deeds will long be cherished by those he befriended and a host of friends will mourn his loss.

Mr. Tarr was a native of Nicholas county, and was 75 years old. [Paris Kentuckian-Citizen.
