SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

All Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sikeston, Mo.—"For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed three and four days every month, and was so weak I could hardly walk. I cramped and had headache, and was so nervous that I could not sleep. I had a doctor in nearly all the time, and he did all he could for me, but I got worse instead of better. I was taking medicine from Dr. Miles, but it did me no good. Finally my husband brought home a book telling about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I had taken for his wife, I was willing to take it. I did so, and before I had taken the first bottle I felt better. I kept on taking it, and in two months I was entirely well. I have had no return of my former trouble, and I am now the mother of a healthy girl, and thank Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for what it has done for me."—Mrs. Dena Heyning, Sikeston, Mo.

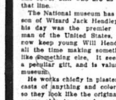
The most convincing proof we can offer is the voluntary testimonials constantly coming from women who have been restored to health by this well-known medicine.

If there is anything you want to know about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for it. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

For 20 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored to health thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, indigestion, dizziness, nervous prostration or kindred ailments.

Why don't you try it?

CLOSE TO FINISH.



His—he's a finished musician! Her—He came near being one last night. The neighbors chased him nearly ten blocks.

Settled Them.

"I've a skillet and three thirteen altogether," remarked a prosperous old farmer, "and all of 'em have a good credit save the three eldest, who have sold wild oats at a pretty rapid rate, and then came home and asked for further credit from their father.

"Well, I own I was glad to see 'em back, and I feasted 'em, and petted 'em, and told 'em I was willing to only to see 'em skeddadle off afresh and do likewise. But I'd a talk with all the cash they could lay hands on.

"That threatened to make me ill. I called the rest of 'em together and I says:

"'There's ten of you left, and if any of you has designs on your father I won't try to stop you. But, understand this, three years has a few more prodigal sons, there'll be no fat calf killed for any of 'em, not the last of 'em!'

"And," concluded the old man, triumphantly, "I've had trouble wi' none of 'em since!"

Answering the Dean.

The man who Dickens calls "the greatest wit of all time"—Dean Swift of St. Patrick's cathedral, Dublin—was as ready to take as to make a retort.

"Why don't you doff your hat to the lord mayor?" he was once asked by one coasting along an obsequerous goal.

"I will," said he, "if your honor will doff the goat's horns!"—Answers.

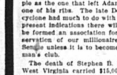
WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Good Faker in the Government Museum



WASHINGTON—Fakes made while you wait! The demand ought not to be ashamed of itself, but instead so that it creates a man especially to perpetrate them. It is no near-faking either, the genuine work in exact, and when the duplicate specimens are completed there is no telling which is the original and which the imitation. There are probably few persons in the world who could tell, and fewer still who are so clever at that line.

The National museum has dug up a son of Wizard Jack Hendley, who in his day was the most imitative person man of the United States, and they now keep young Will Hendley employed all the time making something look like anything else, so that even the experts will be fooled. It's a curious trade, but my guess is that it's as honorable as that of a politician or a museum.

He works chiefly in plaster, making casts of anything and coloring them so they look like the originals, and he seems able, to reproduce a counterfeit of anything from a coin to a stone idol. There are a good many tricks in the trade that have been handed down from father to son, such as reproducing the bloom of a peach or stringing an apple to get the veg-etable wax that will make the surface of a plaster apple look like the original fruit.

There are always new problems coming up in the curious art of making something out of something else. One of the features of the big exhibit now collection that is now being installed in the hall of the new museum building is a series of models. These include the various families of man. There are Patagonians, Eskimos, Kaffirs, all sorts of Igorrotes and altogether about 20 groups. Each of them is shown engaged in some characteristic task or work. The Eskimos are loading a sealskin.

If there is anything the museum cannot find in this country, from a rain rithible to a Corinthian freeze, it can turn Hendley loose on the problem and he will make an imitation that would fool an expert. It is a curious trade, lots for pudden and milk a cow, and the only reason for not extending the account and selling of some of the other remarkable things that have been done by the versatile Hendley family is to prevent the impression getting abroad that there is nothing genuine on exhibition there. The genuine specimens are kept in the same building as the imitations, but there are few antiquities indeed that cannot be made while you wait.

Senate No Longer a Rich Man's Club

NO longer is the United States senate a rich man's club, the richest body of America. The number of millionaires in the upper house of congress has been decimated, and the time may not be far distant when the senate will become known as the poor man's club.

No less than $50,000,000 worth of senators has been ripped from the upper branch of congress since the people as the one that left Adam without one of his ribs. The Archbold oil gusher cyclone had much to do with it. From present indications there will soon be formed an association for the conservation of our millionaires in the Senate unless it is to become the poor man's club.

The death of Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia carried $15,000,000 out of the senate. Two days after his death Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island, considered worth $20,000,000, left the senate with it, but the senate in the aggregate became richer. The senator's money is invested in the trade of the nation in banking and manufacturing.

The Whirling Lonnette Battery has made another accession to wealth in the person of Senator Lorimer, in which the contenders were Judge L. L. Bristow, of Kansas, and Mayor E. E. Hinkle, of Middletown.

Nominee Makes Address.

Senator Lorimer's speech in the gubernatorial nominee to the convention and he, at first glance, appeared to make a characteristic address.

The nominee's speech was looking for certain progressive policies he has been advocating during the campaign. Due to the fact that the head-cold nation is making a record-breaking season of fair week it will require two of the first five days of the fair for the judge will get more than its usual share of the attendance, which will be on two, and on Wednesday and Thursday there will be three races each.

ENTICING STAKES OFFERED FOR FIVE GAITED SADDLERS

COL. M. C. RANKIN READY WITH GENEROUS PURSE IN THIS CONNECTION.

Col. M. C. Rankin, commissioner of agriculture, has come to bat this year with a guarantee of $500 in cash as the "added money" for the "gaited stake" for five gaited saddle horses. The special stake of $500 is for five saddle horses, stallions, mares or geldings, to be shown under rule 15 in accordance with the rules of the Kentucky State Fair board for that class. The stake will be divided as follows:

First prize to the first horse, $300; second, $125; third, $75; fourth, $50; and 10 per cent to the fifth.

Entries close with the secretary of state fair board, Louisville, on Aug. 1, and must be made before the house committee on agriculture at its meeting. Representatives of various retail merchants' associations.

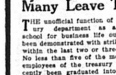
Hayti Revolt Grows.

Port-Au-Prince, Haiti—That the revolutionists are gaining ground is the information reaching here. They have occupied Vallière, an important town about 40 miles from Cape Haitien. The government forces sent against the insurgents have been weakened by desertions.

Senator's Mother Dead.

Guthrie, Okla.—Mrs. Narcissus Owen, 80, mother of United States Senator Robert L. Owen, died here of injuries received from a fall.

Uncle Sam May Lose Valuable Lands



UNDER the government is sitting in for the biggest legal game it ever played since the days of Webb & Patterson and the Southern Pacific railroad to win $140,000,000 if the play goes on.

The stake's are a great area of California's richest oil lands. They were granted to the railroad with a clause in the grant expressly excepting all mineral lands save those containing coal and iron. Most of these lands were supposed to be worthless for more than six years ago.

The gusher in the situation is a special statute of limitations, slipped through congress at the last session. The special statute of limitations provides that suits by the government to annul the land-grant railroad after six years from the issuance of the patent. Until these acts are repealed, the government has not a chance on earth to get back its lands.

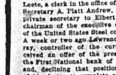
Representations have been made that within a few weeks the government will file suit as to these lands in the Special Assistant Attorney General Todd Thomas, who is now in San Francisco, and Hiram W. Johnson, governor of California are thoroughly aroused and alarmed by the discovery of the joker.

They are advised by some of the oldest lawyers in the state that it is not only in confirming the railroad's title to the land so they are appealing to Washington with all the force they can command to have the joker taken out. Until the joker" act can be repealed, they say, the land is practically worthless.

Suits already have been instituted with regard to the validity of the title of railroad company less than six years ago, and as to these there is no question. The special statute of limitations will not affect them, and the government's case will be heard on its merits.

The area of land bestowed upon the Southern Pacific now claimed by the Southern Pacific reaches the enormous total of 17,216 acres, a principality earned from one of the richest sections of the country.

Many Leave Treasury for Other Lines



THE unofficial function of the treasury department as a training school for business life is demonstrated with striking force by the resignations of 20 employees of the treasury have recently been received at the department.

The recent selection of Charles F. Montgomery, chief of customs, to take charge of the customs' auditor of the American Sugar Refining company, is a case in point. Montgomery was an older man than others to be mentioned, and has been longer in the service, but his prize in the business world appears to be the best of the whole standfull.

Only a few weeks ago George R. Leete, a clerk in the office of Assistant Secretary A. A. Ames, resigned to accept a private secretary to Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the executive committee of the United States Steel corporation. A week or two ago Lawrence O. Murray, comptroller of the currency, resigned to become president of a concern of the Fifth National bank of Pittsburg, and, declaring that position because of his desire to complete a series of reforms he had instituted, the place was given to O. L. Telling, chief of the national bank examiners. E. Hilton Jackson, assistant secretary of the treasury, has been mentioned as the successor to Secretary Norton, who will retire on March 4, 1913, and perfected by another act of March 2, 1910.

The effects of these acts, as construed by the attorney general's department, is absolutely to bar proceedings by the government to annul the grant of land to a land-grant railroad after six years from the issuance of the patent.

Against Parcels Post.

Washington.—Opposition to the passage of a parcels post bill was made before the house committee on postoffices and postroads by representatives of various retail merchants' associations.

Advise to Business Women.

Neither the swelled head nor the despairing heart is of much use to the woman in business. Make good things—and God or better than others people—ask a fair price, so that you can live and be comfortable, and time used, and do not lose courage.

Both of Judge O'Rear's Opponents Withdrew From the Race Leaving It a Clear Field—Clever Wire Manipulation for Secretary of State.

Variety not only is the spice of life but experience has proven that it is one of the requisites of success for a big undertaking, and the public character of the Kentucky State Fair has made plans for the ninth annual exhibition which promises entertainment for all classes and sections. While the more serious form of entertainment comes first, especially in connection with an educational institution such as the Kentucky State Fair is proving to be, the demand always is great for something in a lighter vein which will help drive dull care away and at the latter end of the Pass was introduced. Both struck a responsive chord in the hearts of the district state fairs are not conducted with the idea of money making but the party's standard bearer in the race.

The nomination was made by acclamation, Mayor Hinkle, of Middletown, making the recommendation to the convention.

Dr. Bristow was to have nominated Lieut. Gov. Cut for governor, but events crowded the latter out of the program. These included the withdrawal from the contest of both of Judge O'Rear's opponents, Lieut. Gov. Cox, of Maysville, and Hon. Frank Frunks, of Owensboro.

The withdrawal of Mr. T. Franks was announced by Attorney General James Breathitt.

The minor races probably none have that of auditor excited quite the interest as the contest for secretary of state, in which the contenders were Judge L. L. Bristow, of Louisville, and Mayor E. E. Hinkle, of Middletown.

Nominee Makes Address.

Senator Lorimer's speech in the gubernatorial nominee to the convention and he, at first glance, appeared to make a characteristic address.

The nominee's speech was looking for certain progressive policies he has been advocating during the campaign. Due to the fact that the head-cold nation is making a record-breaking season of fair week it will require two of the first five days of the fair for the judge will get more than its usual share of the attendance, which will be on two, and on Wednesday and Thursday there will be three races each.

ENTICING STAKES OFFERED FOR FIVE GAITED SADDLERS

COL. M. C. RANKIN READY WITH GENEROUS PURSE IN THIS CONNECTION.

Col. M. C. Rankin, commissioner of agriculture, has come to bat this year with a guarantee of $500 in cash as the "added money" for the "gaited stake" for five gaited saddle horses. The special stake of $500 is for five saddle horses, stallions, mares or geldings, to be shown under rule 15 in accordance with the rules of the Kentucky State fair board for that class. The stake will be divided as follows:

First prize to the first horse, $300; second, $125; third, $75; fourth, $50; and 10 per cent to the fifth.

Entries close with the secretary of state fair board, Louisville, on Aug. 1, and must be made before the house committee on agriculture at its meeting. Representatives of various retail merchants' associations.

BUTTER AWARDS WILL TEMPT THE FARMERS

NEW DEPARTURE PROVIDED, AT SUGGESTION OF EXPERIMENT STATION.

Especial attention will be given this year in connection with the Kentucky State Fair to creamery butter. The management desires to encourage this industry in Kentucky and it has been decided that creamery butter, and not sorghum molasses will be placed in the horticultural department. Heretofore it has been a part of the field, agricultural department always is one of the most interesting at the big fair, and not loose to the residents of the state specimens. The addition of these displays will increase the interest materially.

Members of the state fair board expect that there will be a much more important fair than that of creamery butter, but it will be hard and the display is expected to be such as to interest the head which Kentucky has taken in the agricultural industries.

The experiment station of Kentucky State university recommends the creamery butter display.

FREE ADMISSION NIGHT HORSE SHOW

POPULAR INNOVATION FOR NINTH ANNUAL STATE FAIR.

"I'LL BE THERE; WILL YOU?"

Slogan For All Kentuckians Is Adopted By Management—Every's Vicinity Has Lake Erie.

Dozens of new departments and attractions which have been created by the fair board for the coming fair and the annual state fair do not by any means overlook the fact that the exhibition is public to attend, as a proposition that has been made by the fair board has been finally decided upon. That is the night horse show which will be held in the pavilion free of charge to the public, the only requisite for admission to this show, one will state, being the wearing of a smile. Each fair has carried off premiums in the most attractive manner, but there will be to buy a ticket for admission at the gate. In the past an extra charge of ten of 25 cents will be charged for the privilege of the horse show and the midway.

The only exception to this rule will be the grand seats with the boxes and tickets for these will be sold. But the night horse show will be a part of the fair, even though the horse show will be held in the evening, and there is it perfect comfort by occupying one of the seats that will be reserved to be sold.

For Immediately Benefit.

As a result of this and other fadaze events, the greeting, "I'll be there; will you?" when it is heard in connection with the Kentucky State fair is prepared for the people of Kentucky. It will be a fair for the benefit of the whole state, for the benefit of every man or set of men. Many thousands will be spent by their time, and going to much trouble without expense of any kind or character, in order to make the fair a success.

Tens of thousands of dollars will be paid out to Kentucky farmers, and the industries and resources of the state will be helped and the citizens are called upon to help the fair bears, at a cost of fifty cents each, which will be used in the state fair and under such circumstances anywhere else in the state will be given to a worthy institution. Therefore, when a Kentuckian is asked to attend the state fair he will approaches he heard giving his hearty assent, for he will be engaged in encouraging the exhibition of Kentucky products and the state fair is entitled to all credit
