COAL COMPANY TO BUILD NEW TOWN

Rapid Preparations for Development of Adjacent Mines

COAL LANDS IN NEW TRACT

New Town Will Have Population of Ten Thousand in Six Months— Millions Will Be Spent in Development of New Territory.

Whitesburg—The Consolidation Coal Co., the corporation now engaged in sinking Jenkins, the boom mining town in the Elkhorn coal field, makes the announcement that it will begin construction within the next few months, of a similar mining town on Potter's fork of Boone, above here, in this county, at the terminus of the present contract on the Louisville & Eastern railroad. This territory is also covered by the big 100,000-acre track of coal lands the company recently purchased from the Northern Coal & Coke Co at an immense outlay of capital.

The announcement of spending $40,000,000 in the development of the Elkhorn and adjacent coal fields within the next few years looks to be absolutely certain from present plans and operations being started. Already actual preparations are complete for the installation of two large lumber mills on Potter's fork to manufacture the timber necessary for building operations which are to begin in the middle of the summer. The J. L. Prentice mill, now located at Hivia, is one of the mills which can be moved over on Potter's fork within the next few days.

The town on Potter's fork will perhaps not be as large as the Jenkins on Elkhorn, but will contain no less than 5,000 people.

Jenkins, according to an official announcement, will contain 10,000 people within six months. Already hundreds of carpenters are rushing the building of the miners' homes there and what was a wilderness a few days ago is being transformed into a bustling, bustling mining town.

HARLAN SEES PERIL

SAYS COLLEAGUES ON SUPREME COURT TELL STANDARD IT MAY MAKE NEW PACT.

PREDICTS MUCH LITIGATION

Places on Record Document of 8,000 Words Criticising Language of Fellow Justices—Business to Be Thrown Into Confusion, He Says.

Washington, May 16.—Associate Justice John M. Harlan, dissenting in the Supreme court his formal dissenting opinion in the Standard Oil case, in which he takes issue with his colleagues in ringing words. Not satisfied with his oral dissent in the decision rendered, as handed down by Chief Justice White, Justice Harlan yesterday oversaw the stenographic report of his remarks from the bench. The oral dissent formed merely a framework for the complete document, containing about 8,000 words. Justice Harlan's brand of nullification was the modification made by the majority of the mortgage covers property permitting subsidiary corporations of the Standard Oil, after dissolution of the combination, to make "normal and lawful agreements" among themselves. Chief Justice White characterized this modification as a "minor matter." The modification is made by Justice Harlan that he is convinced the modification will throw the business of the country into confusion and invite widely extended and harassing litigation. Perhaps the worst of which will be felt for many years to come.

Justice Harlan.

He Calls It Mischievous.

In connection with that he terms a "mischievous modification," Justice Harlan quotes the chief justice as saying that "it does not necessarily follow that because an illegal restraint of trade or an attempt to monopolize or a conspiracy to accomplish such results is unlawful, the mere act of organization of the subsidiary corporations by the New Jersey holding company is a restraint of trade or attempt to monopolize or monopolization, but whether it would arise from agreements between or acts done by such corporations after the transfer of the stock to the holding company."

Taking the language in connection with the chief justice's opinion, says Justice Harlan, the decision will be construed to mean that, in effect, in formed—unwisely, I think—by the majority of the new Jersey corporation, being an illegal combination, can go out of existence, they may join in an agreement to divide territory among the states, if such agreement be not "undue."

Says Court Reversed Itself.

As in his oral remarks, Justice Harlan devotes himself largely to criticising the court for holding that not every restraint of trade is unlawful. He reiterates that the court reversed its former decision in the Trans-Missouri Freight and Joint Traffic cases, holding that several hundred words from each of these opinions, quoted by Harlan.

"These utterances show so clearly and distinctly that the court has decided that this court many years ago, in effect, if not in express words, expressed the antitrust act as prohibiting only such restraints as were unreasonable by reason of being in contravention of the common law, or by reason of being, in their direct effect, in contravention of the public policy declared by the legislative department of the government, but all monopolies or acts part of such trade or commerce.

Referring to other decisions as precedents, Justice Harlan calls attention to the use of "reasonable" in these decisions, Justice Harlan calls attention to the use of "reasonable" in the Addyston pipe case.

Quotes Decision by Taft.

"Taft, chief justice," continued Justice Harlan, "that according to the decision of this court in the freight association case, 'contracts in restraint of trade or intercourse among states were within the statute, whether they were or were not regarded as reasonable at common law or not.'

In further support of the statement that the whole country furnished by the courts and congress, understood that every restraint was prohibited, the Justice quotes at length from an address by Senator Sherman to which Nelson on behalf of the senate poll clary committee in reference to a bill to amend the Sherman antitrust law by inserting the words, reasonable and unreasonable restraints.

ELEVEN YEARS OF HEALTH.

Kidney Trouble Never Returned.

Mrs. Everett Griffith, 2845 E. 1stSana Ave., Evansville, Ind., says: "I was certainly in bad shape from kidney disease and it is really a wonder that I am alive today.

The kidney secretions were irregular in passage and were abnormally thick; I had bad spells with my head and at times I was scarcely able to stand. My left flank below the knee became so weak and swollen that I began to treat myself for dropsy and my back was so sore and lame I could hardly rise from a chair without assistance. I was finally induced to take Doan's Kidney Pills and in six weeks I was well. My cure was made in 1895 and I have enjoyed excellent health ever since."

Shouldn't He?

A very good sentiment nowhere, any how, is that a man love his wife, and who likes his little joke at someone else's expense was sitting in the theater. A man behind him, not knowing it, did not like it, and he said whispered, "Will you please ask your wife to remove her hat?"

"You'd better do it yourself. I'm afraid."

"Lean me your corkscrew, please, sir," calmly remarked the sheriff.

FEED YOU MONEY

Feed Your Brain, and It Will Feed Your Purse.

"Ever since boyhood I have been especially fond of meats, and I am convinced that I overate, and failed to masticate my food properly.

"The result was that I found myself, a few years ago, suffering from attacks of the stomach, and kidneys, which interfered seriously with my business.

"At last I took the advice of friends and began to eat Grape-Nuts instead of the heavy meats, etc., and soon substituted my former diet.

"I found that I was at once benefited by the change, that I was soon relieved from the distress after eating, digestion that used tonfollow my meals, and that I was back from my kidney affection had ceased.

"My nerves, which used to be unsteady, and my brain, which was slow and dull from a heavy diet of meats and greasy foods, I, not to say, clear, and gradually, and now the brain is active, and my nerves steady.

"Now every nerve is steady and my brain and thinking faculties are quick and active as can be for years past.

"After my old style breakfasts I used to suffer during the forenoon from a feeling of weakness which hindered me seriously in my work, but since I began to use Grape-Nuts food I can work till dinner time with all ease and comfort." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

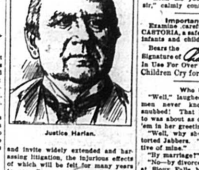
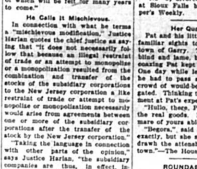
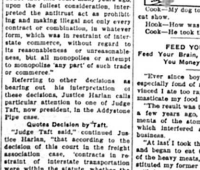
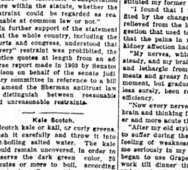
MODERN CRUSADERS Who Have DIED FIGHTING DISEASE









FEW weeks ago one of the students of that dreaded disease, cerebro - spinal meningitis, made his home in Leland. He was a bright young man of promise, and his death was a severe shock to his many friends. Every one of the members of the family was stricken with the disease, and the fact that only one died is considered remarkable. The disease is one of the most fatal known to medical science, and it is a wonder that more do not die from it. The germs are carried from victim to victim by the mosquito. Reed, Carroll and Lazear collected specimens of the germs and inoculated mosquitoes. Lazear died and Reed came back to the states in a weakened condition, and finally passed away here at his home. Every effort was left undone by the kind, faithful wife to relieve the sufferer, but all efforts were in vain. Last year it was found that the yellow fever germs were
