The RING and the MAN

WITH SOME INCIDENTAL RELATION TO THE WOMAN

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Illustrations By Jessekenn Hicks

SYNOPSIS.

A fashion young bondsman becomes fascinated with the hard, acrid wife of a Boston proprietor in a modern inferno of sin. Her husband is a brute, and the original fascination of the woman soon dwindles beyond. He is about to flee from her when she tells him how much she loves him. He thinks there is something wrong with her mind. Then she tells him that she has been married to a man who has been in the state prison for years. He was known to the woman under the name of Gorman. He is released and comes to her home. Gorman is a political power in Boston. He is the boss of the Gotham Freight Traction company, a corporation which has been trying to get a franchise for a subway. Gorman is opposed by Eleanor Haldane, a young woman who has been making a crusade against the boss. Gorman tells his wife that he will get the franchise for the Haldane interests if she will induce Eleanor to withdraw her opposition. Mr. Haldane is a long distance from Boston when Gorman makes his proposition to his wife. Eleanor is in love with the latter but has been waiting to be "broke to the harness" by her father. Gorman and Mrs. Haldane succeed in persuading the girl that her father has been acting in the wrong way. Eleanor withdraws her opposition to the franchise. Mrs. Haldane is the first to congratulate Gorman on the success of his plan. Gorman tells her that he has been waiting to be "broke to the harness" by her. He tells her that he has been waiting for her husband to withdraw his opposition to the franchise. Mrs. Haldane is horrified at the boss' proposition. She tells him that she will not be a party to any such deal. Gorman