

Farmers Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse

Open January 2, 1912

A GREAT SUCCESS

The Farmers Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse opened on Tuesday evening under the most favorable circumstances, and considering the inferior quality of tobacco this year, was the best sale of any record in any warehouse in Kentucky. While it is impossible for us to give the exact average of the sales, the prices ranged from 40 cents down to 5 cents.

A great deal of inferior tobacco was brought in, and we suppose that was the best market.

Some good grades were in the flour and W. B. Dudley brought the best that was sold at 60 per hundred, the crop belonging to L. E. Rice. There were very few rejecters and every one seemed to be pleased.

The crowd that came, buyers, speculators and sellers, flooded the town, and made the kind of Carlist in old tobacco times. When the tobacco was piled up in the warehouse, the crowd was so large that it was necessary to have a guard to see that the buyers and sellers were treated alike, and that the warehouse was not over-run. It was necessary to have a guard to see that the buyers and sellers were treated alike, and that the warehouse was not over-run.

The Farmers Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse is now open for the sale of tobacco, and is located at the corner of Lexington and Third streets, in the city of Lexington, Kentucky.

The warehouse was opened on Tuesday evening, and has since that time been a success. It has been a great success, and has been a great success.
