

Tibetans Spare White Child, First Born In Perilous Land

Two-year-old girl, with Missionary Parents, Arrives in Los Angeles After Months of Travel Brought by Fierce Bands in Heart of Asia

What Baby Ogden, the first white child born in Tibet, says: "I was born in a cave in the mountains of Tibet, and I was brought to Los Angeles by my missionary parents. I have been in America for some time now, and I am very happy. I like to go to school and play with my friends. I also like to go to church and hear the missionaries speak. I am very grateful to them for bringing me to this beautiful country."
