NEGRO CAUGHT BEFORE BLOODHOUNDS ARRIVE.

Mack Jones, Charged With Murder, Captured As He Was Crawling From Cornfield.

Paris, Ky.—Considerable excitement prevailed in this city when it was learned that Mack Jones, the negro who shot and fatally wounded another negro, was hiding in a sixty-acre cornfield adjoining Griffith's woods, where a posse surrounded him. The first intimation received that the negro, who made his escape after the difficulty was in the woods was given to Deputy Coroner Rudolph Davis when he went to Claysville with a posse accompanied by Policeman Fred Link, to summon witnesses before the Coroner's jury. Mr. Davis and Officer Link were told that a negro had been carrying food, clothing and water to the fugitive, and they brought this information to the sheriff, who dispatched a posse of about fifty men to the woods and ordered them to surround the escape of Jones.

Bloodhounds and a telephone message had been sent to Lexington for Murphy's bloodhounds, but before they arrived the man was caught. Deputy Sheriff Ernest Martin having discovered the negro in the woods as he was crawling through the weeds, endeavoring to make his escape. He was brought to town by Mr. Martin and Deputy Sheriff Ben Allen, and Jones' wife was entertaining trial Monday before Judge Denis Dundon. It is said that he shot the other negro and escaped not guilty to the charge of murder.

A NARROW ESCAPE

PILINGS SAVE "JOY RIDERS" AFTER AUTO PLUNGE THROUGH RAILING OF BRIDGE.

Chauffeur Is Arrested For Taking the Machine Without Permission of Owner.

Atlantic City, N. J.—Crashing through the railing of the boardwalk on the Meadow boulevard when running about 50 miles per hour, a touring car containing three joy riders dropped to the sand on the Thorofare. The machine landed in an upright position on submerged pilings which kept it out of deep water. Of the three occupants only one, Benjamin Machle, of 411 Mediterranean avenue, was injured. He is suffering from a lacerated arm.

George Lacey, driver of the car, and James Mills escaped injury. Lacey was arrested on a charge of taking the car out of the garage without permission of the owner, John R. Snyder, by whom Lacey was employed as chauffeur.

SENT TO WORKHOUSE.

New York.—Frederick Pinkus, millionaire linen manufacturer, will spend 11 days in the workhouse on Black well's island, for he was charged by a third stone age methods of kidnaping Miss Hortense Myers of 1,400 Park avenue, pretty little dressmaker, under the white lights of Broadway. According to the girl, Pinkus, who is a widower, tottering car, overtook her as she was walking home from a dance in front of her brother. She says he offered her a ride. Then, she says, after having read many tales of bold, bad millionaires who kidnaped girls in motor cars, she accepted. Mrs. Rose Pinkus dropped his cigarette case. Mrs. Pinkus, who is a society woman in the car seized her by the shoulders and dragged her out.

TWO WERE KILLED.

Shute and Sarcheck tons of hot metal, ejected by a leak in Ladle No. 3, made its way along the ground until it reached a pool of water. The result was a terrific explosion of showers of metal in every direction.

Different Styles of Egg Cases.

cots throughout the year is the one which has a "hen and chicken" to market. He learns that during certain months the hens are there in a shortage in different kinds of poultry products, and he plans to produce as large a quantity as possible of these products during the scarce period to catch supply. He then ascertains in which markets he can dispose of these goods to best advantage, and prepares and packs them according to the requirements of those markets.

Poultry products are concentrated and valuable, although not extremely perishable. Therefore, improved means of transportation make it possible for the poultryman to place his goods in the best markets without greatly increased expense.

Feed During Molting.

The molting period is a natural process and not a disease and no medicinal treatment is necessary or desirable. Feed molting fowls just as well as you can, but it is never the time only remember that molting is the time during which the most nutritious food should be given than at any other season. Meat, green cut, clover or alfalfa or any leguminous food is needed more than ever when the weather is warm than that fowls are not inclined to eat as much food as good; so are beets, turnips, bulbs or cut clover, which will be relished. They should have little corn or other heat-producing food.

POULTRY NOTES

How turnips for poultry food.

This is the month to wage war on lice.

Almost all varieties of geese make good sitters.

Dry bran makes a good chicken feed when mixed wet.

There should be shade provided in the poultry yards.

Feed sweet milk occasionally during the summer months.

Overfeeding is a common cause of disease among turkeys.

A turkey cannot grind its food without having sharp grit.

Oats are the best feed for growing bone and large frame.

Fowls should not go to market must be above suspicion.

Geese live long, but it is not wise to keep ganders over four years old. Geese begin to lay when they are about one year old.

A turkey when a few weeks old will forage for itself and has a voracious appetite.

If you want large, healthy chicks, don't crowd more than twenty-five in a brooder.

Yard the young stock during the day and house at night to avoid summer losses.

Do not get the idea that there is no money in poultry unless you raise thousands of chickens.

Feed for growing pullets and rockers should consist largely of cracked oats with the hull removed.

Fowls in the day time, if kept exercising in plenty of sunshine and fresh air, will keep warm in the coldest weather.

It is variety the hen seeks in summer, and if she has her natural system needs until the price of eggs is doubled.

Select a warm place away from the windows for roosts, and have an inclined platform under them to catch the droppings.

In parts of England, turkeys are fattened on Indian corn, scalded Indian meal and boiled potatoes, with bones given corn for a change.

Both chicks and fowls need some sort of protection from the summer sun. If you have no trees, bushes or vines, supply an artificial shelter

Health & Beauty Hints

By Katherine Morton

The most telling charm a girl can have is a sweet disposition and her office, also, is the quality of the voice utterly ignored by young people. One hears the terrible twang indigenous to the country hoarse from the kiesselgur, nasal lips, nasals in the finest raiment speaking with the hoarseness of ravens or with voices as hasty managed as those of monkeys. Yet there are abominations for training the voice to honeyed notes and the owner of the dulcet voice is a power in every circle she may enter. For although the voice is the easiest of all the physical woman's beauty to cultivate it is worthless if generally harped-upon and neglected. A sweet, timbered and beautifully used voice is the purest music.

The reason why somebody becomes their enemy hear the manner in which they are speaking, and the voice begins is needed for the right effect. Many a girl has been ruined by a voice that is not in the right manner, telling you that she has the right amount of gayety and your tale of sorrow will bore her.

According to voice specialists, the commonest effort to remedy a defect in the pitching of the voice too high, and this is accomplished by a nervous tension which holds the throat taut and strained. The breath is held back and hurried, which cuts the overtones and destroys the vibrations. So the high pitch remains in the throat alone, and since reserve breath and a wholesome use of the lungs and nose are needed these organs and the bones must receive their share of attention. The steadiest breathing exercise, taken for a day or a day in a full and rhythmic manner, will accomplish more than a month of voice through the help the exercise lends to the nasal and lung breathing, too, is often advised for bashfulness and nervousness and from these kinds of timid youth, which if not corrected will grow into sometimes lost until life's end.

For the girl who has several health is none of the best and whose voice soon wears out, a diet of milk and eggs and a diet of molasses and coarse bread is to be recommended. Sweet milk and buttermilk are the best for the voice, and the latter is of special benefit, while a raw egg, beaten up with a little honey, is a good thing before breakfast is almost certain to ward off hoarseness during the day. Raw eggs are very healing and feeding to the throat, and the yolk alone should be given for oftener to under nourished persons, since the white is a burden to digest.

Anything which interferes with the general health will affect the beauty and strength of the voice, and since the voice is the woman's all and none is so delicate it is most wise for any one out of condition to cultivate it. But a lot of the ugliness in youth and voice comes from the nerves alone. The young people are not corrected for their voice in childhood time, they are allowed to sing at too early an age. They shout and sit in rooms too hot and dry, then have the example of other boys and girls, children, or get the habit from their mothers and fathers. But it is never too late for the girl who has been neglected in this way to improve greatly, if she will only realize that a sweet, well-modulated voice is one of a girl's greatest fascinations and that all her success in its attainment lies in herself.

New Ruffles.

Many new ruffles have appeared this spring. Provence as a novelty is a soft tulle in the old colorings, edged all around with a broad fraydout ruche, and the ends are finished with tafeta center and a soft marabout edging.

The neck ruche—or ruffle—now goes all around the neck, and is made of tulle in ostrich feathers, but slightly curled, and the usual colors are black and white, ivory or gray—the latter mixed with white or in some pale self tone.

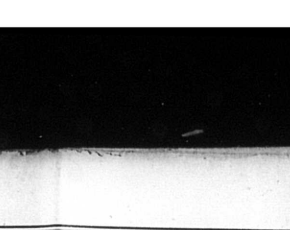
A neck ruffle with ostrich feathers with triple ruches, one above the other, is effective when thrown over the shoulder and fastened with a small shoe-illounted on soft satin are not only becoming but of exquisite

PAY ROLL IS MISSING.

Pensacola, Fla.—A package containing $5,000 disappeared in transit from the First National bank of this city to the office of the Louisville & Nashville railroad at Flomaton, Ala. The money was part of a shipment of $15,000 intended as a pay roll and was in bills of small denominations. Reports were current that the west-bound Louisville & Nashville train leaving here had been held up and robbed, but this was denied by railroad officials here.

Social Forms and Entertainments

By Mrs. Helen Louise Cohen



From a Masculine Reader.

L. asks a young man for some good many helpful suggestions in your line for the paper, so I ask your help now.

I have a birthday about the middle of the month and would like to have a few friends in. Would this be proper for a young man to do?

What would you place on the invitations?

What would you serve that would be nice for a young man to serve?

What could we do for amusement, as they live in the country and not at home and there is not enough room to dance in the house?

It is good to know that we have readers among the men in our big family of boys and girls, and we hope to hear from them often. Any letter will be perfectly proper for you to entertain on your birthday, and the rest of such affairs should be very informal that I would just advise the birthday party and ask your friends when I saw them. All you need do is to send them word will be ice cream and a birthday cake to be sorry you cannot have other card playing or dancing, as both are a matter of entire indifference to you. I fear you will have to rely on your own resources for the games, as others that I have in the paper each week.

New Games Requested.

A group of children, ages from seven to fifteen, "play out," as we call it, nearly every night at different homes, and our favorite game was "Hide and Seek," but now we are tired of that, and what you would like to publish some new games—J. B. S.

When I was your age our great game was "Hide and Seek," and I "I Spy." Do not tell any one, but I partly for grown-up children played these self-same games not long ago in the moonlight. Of course one of the real children was having a birthday party recently, and to celebrate the achievement of nine "long" years they played games according to the number of years, including parents, uncles and aunts, down to the attendant nurse-maids and instructed charge, this being the youngest. The census bulletin states that the average size of the family in the United States is five persons, and the census of 1910 will show a decrease, while some wish to have their "grandchild treat" recorded made out. Consequently the Heralds' outings I have after the issue of a list of honors, and the total expenses of the party are divided among the host and those of a barnest exceed $1.00.

The Educational Step-Ladder.

To know what kind of a school you like? It is to educate children for the primary grades.

We know what the primary grades are for: they are to educate children for the grammar grades.

We know what the grammar grades are for; they are to educate children for high school.

We know what the high school is for; it is to educate children for colleges.

But what does college fit you for?—

Old Roman Wall Unearthed.

A part of a Roman wall, once one-time old St. Paul's, London, has been discovered by Fellows of the new center of Paternoster Row and St. Paul's churchyard. The wall, which is about 60 feet long, is made of chalk rubble, and dates back to the twelfth century. On the same site have been found Roman pavements, Roman vases and some, Samian ware have also been found, together with traces of a canal's skull unearthed in High Holborn and a large number of coins of the eighteenth century. Under some of the stables in Paternoster Row—one of the oldest parts of London—Roman remains have been found. They are close to one another, and are believed to have been part of the cloisters of the priory which once stood on this site also.

HOSIERY SCHEDULE SUPPLIES CLEAR ILLUSTRATION OF ITS PRACTICAL EFFECTS.

PROTECTION RATE TOO HIGH

Labor Cost of Production in This Country Much More True in Europe Notwithstanding Difference in Wages.

We have received the following appeal for light on the tariff:

"Is this the Democratic idea of the tariff. That if the tariff is taken off hosiery the American product will be undersold by the German because it can be produced cheaper in that country than it can in the United States? Will this bring down the prices? Will it mean more work for the people? Will the Democratic house force prices down and undertook the public service. The Democratic plan?

President Taft might have voted for the Aldrich tariff bill he says, but it is a maker of history. Great opportunity for statesmanship is the quality of the head that make for history.

He has vetoed his own succession.

McHarg Now Among the "Bosses."

Chicago McHarg's name is on the pages of the late Republican convention, and he is said to be a supporter of Mr. Taft. He says:

"I supported Colonel Roosevelt as a Republican, but I am a Democrat at that time that he was anything else. I am a Democrat now. I am old fashioned, I do not like a young country to be run by young men. I do not approve of anything that interferes with the general prosperity of the country. I do not approve of the Democratic party with the control of production in this country is little more than it is in Europe to the labor cost of the new 10 per cent. In the last fiscal year we exported more than a Million Dollars worth of manufactured goods. In every one of these goods the labor cost was more than it was in the United States. It is polite to rise when guests enter the room. I am old fashioned, I do not like a young country to be run by young men. It is polite to rise when guests enter the room.
