Rich Men's Children

BY GERALDINE BONNER

A story that deals with the conflict of generations and the bold passions of the far West.

A story that portrays in a strikingly vivid manner the sturdy characteristics of the pioneers of the West.

The historic rush for yellow metal in '49 made millionaires of many sturdy characters that formerly knew nothing but poverty. The story this writer has woven around the children of two bonanza kings is one of strong heart interest from the beginning to the end.

A valuable story for young people of to-day. It will hold the attention and impart its great message. We can recommend this story to our most discriminating readers.

There is no more interesting period of American History than that relating to the Forty-Niners. This romance is woven from its most virile features.

SYNOPSIS.

Mrs. Keziah Coffin, supposed widow of a whaling ship master, lives in Harniss, Cape Cod, following the death of her brother, Zenas Kendall, who had been a prosperous ship owner, without a will. Zenas, a self-apparently refused, Capt. Elkanah Daniels, who married Prudence Kendall, Zenas' niece, and who had been appointed executor of the estate by the probate court, and Nathan Hale, a young lawyer, whose father, Capt. John Elkery, the new minister, and aroused considerable local interest by his sermons and by his personality. Keziah caused a sensation by attending a "Communistic" meeting in Boston, and by declaring herself a Socialist. Elkanah leaves for a whaling voyage. Grace applicates for her position as housekeeper. Keziah engages her at once. Capt. Nat Hammond, a whaling captain, becomes a hero by bringing the body of Capt. Elkanah's son, Ezra, home for burial. Keziah's nephew, Nat Kendall, left for home over, declaring money is responsible for all evil. Keziah is somewhat startled when informed of the arrival of Nat Kendall, a nephew of whom she had never heard. Nat proves a likable young fellow. Daniels communicates with Elkery and Nat, and the latter comes to Harniss. Nat is caught by Keziah's cat, and is rescued by Nat. Trey becomes friends. Elkery and Nat become friends. Nat calls on Grace and they take a walk. Nat meets Capt. Hinckley. The clergyman tastes Grace's cooking. Keziah and Nat have a talk. Nat tells Keziah of his love for Grace. Keziah is somewhat disturbed
