WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Uncle Sam Wants Goats for Service in the Army

WASHINGTON—Whether for additional protection against short-haired goat should be classified with a pasic pet, a foreigner or a six inch gun is a question now demanding the serious attention of the wise men of the war department.

The war department wants goats. Goats that will eat mosquitoes, or at least that will eat the bushes in which the mosquitoes breed and congregate, are particularly desired. Just how many goats the department will want has not yet been ascertained because the acreage capacity of a goat for weeds and browsing has not yet been accurately determined. However, the officers are looking for goats if they can find the right kind. Appropriation to charge to goats it it has not yet been decided whether this should be equipment, sanitation or miscellaneous expenditures.

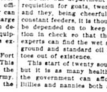
The root of the trouble is Fort Washington, over the Potomac. This has long been known as one of the worst mosquito posts in the army. The hospital there usually has the "R. O." sign out, and the compounders of quinine and kindred remedies have come to look upon the post as a regular meal ticket.

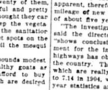
All that seems to all the fort is malaria. Now, as every one knows by this time, the malaria mosquito is the only insect to carry malaria. Usually it is a rather simple matter to get rid of the mosquitoes by eliminating their breeding places, which are always collections, large or small, of stagnant water. But in the case of Fort Washington there has been trouble getting at the breeding places. There is the stretch along the water front that is not wet enough to drain and yet is too wet for any farm purposes. The grass and weeds there have been cut and cut, but they will not stay cut, and, as the perverted government cannot let the war department have money enough for a sea wall or other such permanent binding on the edge of the water.

So the war department has put in a requisition for goats, twenty of them, and they, being cheerful and pretty constant feeders, it is hoped they can be depended on to keep the vegetation in check so that the sanitation experts can find the wet spots on the ground and eliminate all the mosquitoes out of existence.

This start of a story sounds modest but it is as many healthy goats as the appropriation can afford to the Billies and nannies both are desired.

There Is Balm in Gilead and Salve in Africa





IT joy expand like a choking cancer, or does it burst forth as water from a broken pipe. There is still balm in Gilead and salve in Africa. There will be a grand inaugural ball. There will be such a scene of gaiety as the modest electric light bulb seldom exulted upon.

The die is cast. The gorgeous event will come to pass despite the prohibition of President-elect Wilson. Preparations are going forward like a detachment of Turks retreating from the Balkan frontier. While the worst may prove a trifle disappointing to the strictly fashionable set, and somewhat dazzling to the new chief magistrate, there will be all sorts of couposons than. The tickets will cost $10. There will be more room in which to swing partners.

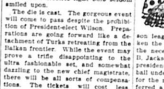
The colored people has been everybody to it. He has put the ball committee on music up a tree and circumvented Governor Wilson. He has chartered Convention hall, the largest auditorium in the town. He will have an affair that will make Washington society look like cotton fading from a redwood tree.

The National Negro Woodrow Wilson league of Richmond, Va., has to its initiative. The league has decided upon the following as guarantees: Gilbert H. Jackson, the colored millionaire, is president of the league. The inaugural ball under negro auspices is scheduled for the night of March 3. It was decided by a day to order the tickets and reserve room in which to swing partners.

Gold pieces at half price never went so far as they will at the ball. Between five and six thousand have all ready been sold. The price per ticket is $2.50.

President-elect and Mrs. Wilson have been extended a cordial invitation to attend a private soiree which the league will give prior to the opening of the ball.

Spirit Squad Is Needed as Adjunct to Police



A AN innovation, a "spirit squad" has been suggested as a desirable addition to the Metropolitan police force. This, it is explained, would greatly tend to clear up some mysterious robberies that have been reported to the central office.

The reason why a spirit squad is necessary was told the other day by Maj. Richard Sylvester, superintendent of police. Major Sylvester declares that many of the robberies which have been reported to the police occurred only in the dreams of those who reported them.

Speaking of the queer kink in the human brain which forever seeks things to happen, Major Sylvester said:

"Every wake of life we meet with queer and at times surprising experiences, but the police hear and see more that tends to question humanity than any other line of work.

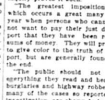
"It seems strange, but nevertheless it is true, that persons have suffered from robberies which are reported to the police as facts to the extent of thousands of dollars, they have awakened suddenly with all the excitement and alarm that would attach to such a robbery, and have reported the supposed intruder, only now to realize that the whole thing was a dream. An inquiry proves it such.

"Another proposition is that which occurs a great many times a year. Persons have lost money, but do not want to pay their just debts or refuse to pay a note, jokingly hinting the sum of money. They will prearrange the facts to look like a robbery to support, but are generally found out in the end.

"The public should not believe everything they read and keep their burglaries and highway robberies, for many times the most startling of these investigation, are shown to be without foundation.

"So, the spirit squad—"

Politics at a Funeral Leads to Swift Arbitration



ALL THREE of the big political leaders were involved in the row over the corpse of Charles Curtis, a well known negro of the capital, and the funeral was delayed one day. Curtis, who was a strong democrat and organizer of the local Democratic league, died Tuesday. His erstwhile friend and intimate pal, George Robinson, head of the house of representatives' sergeant-at-arms' office, called up on the widow with his condolences and was horrified to find that a Republican undertaker had been engaged for the last touches. Robinson protested and the widow allowed him to go ahead and select a Democratic undertaker, who, he said, would not present the bill for a cent.

Robinson went on his mission. A friend who knew the undertakers appeared at the house and the ensuing argument drifted from business to politics, and finally to fisticuffs, and the two men had to hunt up Robinson at the house barber shop to try to settle the matter by arbitration. They all made such a row there that the capitol police gathered in all hands and took them before Captain Megaw, superintendent of the capitol police, who fined them $5 each and left to acknowledge the complications.

As a last resort, the interested parties brought them up before Justice Smith, the plain and unvarnished man of the people, who sat on the house and steam roller savant. He decided in the matter in a terrific hurry. He fined both colored undertakers $10 each, the Republican alike, and hired a white undertaker.

And the odd part is that the final undertaker is a full Moore enthusiast.

Enough for Twelve—or Twenty-Four.

The casual brother says there will be one or two dozen people at lunch-eon. He will telephone us 15 minutes before they arrive. Yes, really, that's the host he can do. So we prepare for one or two dozen people, and they must sit down to luncheon because we can't have a buffet meal. We struggle with the problem, how many chickens are required for 12 or 24 people? The answer, however, is really obvious. Enough for 24 will be enough for 12.—Katharine Baker, in the Atlantic.

Turkish Postage Stamps.

Because of a passage in the Koran forbidding the making of images, Turkish postage stamps have no pictures, but bear instead the sign manual of the sultan, which is, in fact, an impression of his imperial hand. This signature is said to have had its origin with the Sultan Mourad I., who, on completing a treaty with the Italian republic of Ragusa in 1386, not being able to sign his name, applied ink to his open hand and stamped it upon the parchment.

GOOD ROADS

PUBLIC ROADS OF COUNTRY

Increased Mileage of Highways Within Period of About Five Years Has Been 48,256.

Even with a high-powered automobile that could keep up a pace of 90 miles a day indefinitely, it would take a man more than 45 years to cover all the public roads in the United States. A young man of twenty starting out to accomplish this tremendous task would be eighty-five before he had covered the last mile of public highway in this country.

After an investigation extending over many months, the director of the office of public roads has ascertained that there are now 2,199,645 miles of public roads in the United States. The figures include all the new roads built during the year 1912. In 1904 there were exactly 2,151,375. It appears, therefore, that the increased mileage of new roads within a period of about five years has been 48,256.

The investigation just concluded, under the direction, in an interview, shows conclusively that the movement for the improvement of public highways has obtained a firm grip on the country. The percentage of roads that are really improved amounted in 1904 to 7.14 in 1904, while in 1909, to which year statistics are available, the percentage was 8.66.

It is interesting to observe the growth of improved methods in road construction. For instance, the total mileage of stone roads in 1904 was 26,816, while in 1909 it was 39,217. The total mileage of gravel roads in 1904 was 199,202, while in 1909 it was only 192,878. This also is an interesting fact.

The house of representatives, by a vote of 92 to 8, passed a bill prohibiting the intermarriage of whites with Ethiopians, Malays or Mongolians in the District of Columbia.

The United States revenue cutter service broke all its previous records and humanitarian records during the fiscal year of 1912. Thousands of human lives and hundreds of tempest tossed vessels, valued with their cargoes at nearly $11,000,000, were saved by the cutters and their crews.

ONE ROAD BUILDING FAILURE

Lack of Proper Care to Thoroughfares Constructed by Inexperienced Men Shows Results.

About forty years ago, Adams county, Ohio, turned loose a thousand dollars of its main roads. At that time very few roads were built by the science of road making. Usually a local man appointed to the job would select a piece of work and secured local help to improve conditions. Very little if any, attention was paid to the character of the building materials. Stones were to be laid and still less to the proper qualities of stones secured from the quarries near by. Hard and soft stones were placed side by side as brick are now laid in our common or Flemish bond, save a writer in an exchange. After a few years in wear and erosion, with no attention given to repair, these roads were in a condition almost worse than before improvement. Adams county is a good example of a community that has improved its roads and then paid no attention to their up-keep. A few hundred dollars spent judiciously on each road would have kept them in good condition for many years. As conditions are now, enough money has been spent to build the roads over, but because of lack of proper care, they are only second or third class and the county is still heavily in debt for these roads.

The WASHINGTON NATIONAL MONUMENT

TO see one of the world's heroes, probably, have more monuments, more use and other enduring deed done, and erected than to him who was on little designated "First in War, first in Peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen." Surely the most important and most imposing of all the honor tributes of respect paid is the Washington national monument, that simple and stately white shaft that rises on the banks of the Potomac river at Washington and affords from its top the most magnificent view of the beautiful capital city which Washington founded and which bears his name. Yet few of the persons who gaze in this twentieth century upon that has been deemed fitted a "pedestal" for Washington was in kindling and fix many before a margin of chance a national tribute deemed being a national disgrace.

The towering shaft that so ably typifies Washington's stability and strength of character was in the making for more than a quarter of a century. Not that work was continuous ever during that period, but from the time a span of years intervened between the location and completion of the tion of the completed monument tak-ing place on the twenty-second day of the month that holds the anniversary of Washington's birthday. The Washington national monument is, in horizontal outline, a parallelogram with a square, whereas the structure might be described as the form known to a marble tower, the former being approximately fastened to the latter by means of iron, which takes the form of a wedge-shaped mass that may be used by visitors who do not prefer to patronize the elevator.

The walls of the monument, which are fifteen feet in thickness at the base and decrease to a thickness of only eighteen inches at the top, comprise a grand total of twenty-eight thousand stones, many of these stones having been contributed by the states of the Union, by foreign powers and by patriotic citizens and other organizations. There are, all told, about one hundred and seventy-six carved memorials of stone and marble embedded in the walls, but each testimonials could not, from the very character of the structure, be effectually guarded after the monument was completed and more than one-fourth of the total number have been stones or less marred and damaged by vandals and relic hunters. An especial target for such unwelcome hunting was from the projecting pieces of stone that originally appeared in the representations of state seals or coats-of-arms, and almost every one of these details is missing.

The monument, which is so vast in size that an army of twelve thousand men might be concealed within its interior, weighs more than eighty-one thousand tons. Engineers declare that a tone of earthquake and absolutely fireproof structures in the United States, and, consequently, the monument is free from the obelisk, thanks to the forethought of the builders in providing an elaborate system of electric conductors. The keynote of the scheme is found in the fact that the entire weighing about one hundred ounces, which crowns the capstone of the monument. A metal headpiece is connected with rods that descend to the base of the shaft, and in a considerable depth below the level of the soil. The monument has been visited by as many as five million persons in a single year, and, while the work went forward for some years, but additional subscriptions did not come in at a sufficiently rapid rate and finally work had to be suspended for lack of funds. These lay for many years—which is the cause of the monument's unfinished appearance. The exterior which ought to be the top of the monument those visitors who do not care to climb the 898 steps make a fifty every half hour (although but seven minutes are required for the ascent) of the feet), and will accommodate thirty persons. Looking out from the windows at the top of the monument 117 feet above ground, the visitors behold a wonderful panorama of the city and the twenty miles in every direction. On clear days it is sometimes possible to discern the blue Ridge mountains, sixty miles away.

Degrees of Suffering.

Imaginative suffering is very real, because all suffering comes from the mind. Some of it originates there, while some of it is produced by reflex in the body.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

BE RIGHT, the gate and arbor must be right. The wall must be right. Then the gate's hinged. Do what you like for pleasure's sake, then count the pleasure soon departs, the sin remains.—Browning.

COMPANY DISHES.

When entertaining company, a few choice dishes are always appreciated. Fancy cooking is a notable but plain cooking with a few frills.

Creamed Oysters in Loaf.—Cream oysters as usual and serve them in a bakery loaf. Remove the top with a slice, clean out and scoop out the center of the loaf, leaving a framework, butter well on the inside and brown in the oven. Fill with creamed oysters and serve on a bed of lettuce leaves. Creamed sweetbreads, or mushrooms are a bold substitute for the oysters.

Macedoine Salad.—Season with French dressing a cup of diced potatoes, cucumber and string beans, all cooked. Arrange on lettuce leaves in four quarters. Put a teaspoonful of boiled dressing on each; garnish with hard cooked eggs and olives.

Ice Cream in Case.—Bake angel food in a round tube; when cold cut out the center, leaving a shell thick enough to hold ice cream. Fill and cover with whipped cream and serve at once.

Braised Tongue.—Cook a beef tongue until very tender, then skin it and put it into a dripping pan with three tablespoonfuls of butter, add three of flour and brown; add a pint of water in which the tongue has been cooked and a teaspoonful of tomatoes. Heat until smooth and thick, season with salt and pepper, chopped onion, half a tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce, one cup of cooked or red pepper and the tongue. Cover and simmer for two hours. Serve from the casserole.

AN INJUNCTION that had not the least in it, how long would it take to make the Panama canal, and did you tell them, how long would it take to make it?—W. Boecker.

A SYMPOSIUM OF SALADS.

"There is nothing new under the sun," which is true of salads; yet we may rearrange and garnish combinations so that they appear quite new.

Celery Salad.—Cut celery up into inch pieces and split each piece; rub the dish in a bowl and set on ice. Prepare a cup of walnut meats; mix a heaping tablespoonful of chopped olives, a cup of stiff mayonnaise dressing and a tablespoonful of lemon juice. Add a tablespoonful of salt and a little pepper. Pour over the celery and garnish with the pears.

String Bean Salad.—Drain a can of string beans, season with salt and pepper, lay on lettuce leaves with hard-cooked eggs cut in halves, and pour over a dressing made of Cabbage Salad With Pimientoes.—Shred cabbage and mix with boiled dressing. Add a handful of pimientoes cut fine, and a few chopped, canned green peppers. The pimientoes will give a bright red color to the cabbage. Cucumbers, cold and soft, and mixed with celery and a little apple, make a delicious combination of salads.

Use either boiled or mayonnaise dressing.

Jap Dentist.

A common sight in London street is an advertisement for Sou-and-Sli's dentistry—extractions for a shilling a tooth.

Japan, however, the native dentists conduct their business in a manner which would cause a New Zealand practitioner to open his eyes.

Instead of having a separate room in which to toothache in this Eastern land, they are seated on the pavement and the dentist places his left hand in your left hand, and in a way that is somewhat short. Then he seizes the offending tooth between the finger and thumb, and, with a sharp tag, it is removed. So great is the skill of these professors that they can remove seven or eight teeth in a minute.

Think of Others.

We can only have the highest happiness, peace and blessing with being a great man, by having wide thoughts, and the human race is the object of the world as for ourselves.—George Eliot.

To Remove Iodine Stains.

If iodine is spilled on linen or cotton, pour boiling water through the stain. Repeat this twice within an hour and the stain will disappear. This will remove nearly all kinds of ink stains also.

HOLIDAYING IN THE WINTER

AN IMMENSE AMOUNT OF MONEY SPENT BY WESTERN CANADIANS IN WINTER SEASON.

"An unusually large number of Western Canada people are leaving for preparing to leave to spend the Winter in California."

The above item of news was clipped from a Western Canada paper early in December. In the same paper were items of correspondence telling the intelligence that hundreds of Western Canadians were also taking a trip abroad, spending the Christmas season "at home," as they yet term the old land. The Scandinavian element participated largely in the holiday business of the railroads and the steamships, but they all had return tickets. Early in December the east bound trains and boats were loaded, and an estimate furnished by the railroad people gave upwards of twelve thousand as the number who would make this Christmas holiday visit abroad. The cost means that these people are leaving to avoid the coldness of the winter, nor for any aesthatic conditions whatever. They have come out to Canada and have done so well that they can afford the two hundred and fifty or two hundred dollars or more that it takes to carry them across and back. When they came to Canada they did not have that much money and told how they are wealthy and on their return will bring some of their friends with them.

Then there are those, too, who on their wheat farms have made such a steel money that they can afford to take a holiday trip to the old country, holidaying ground could they have than California now many in other farming districts of the continent could often run over to Europe and that these people can?—Advertiser-Post.
