WARDENS TO PAY BILLS

ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL MAKES RULING ON HANDLING OF PRISON FUNDS.

The Custom of Depositing Money in Treasury and Drawing Warrants Is Found to Be Illegal.

Frankfort:—The wardens of the penitentiaries must pay the current expenses of the institutions out of their own revenues and turn the balance over to the state each month, in the opinion of Assistant Atty. Gen. J. W. Logan, to whom the question was referred. It has been the custom for all the revenues from the prison contracts to be turned into the state treasury and for the current expenses of the prisons to be paid on warrants. The questions arose when the prison bill calls demanded that, inasmuch as the prisons produced more revenues than they cost, their bills should be paid in cash instead of with interest-bearing warrants like other departments. The argument was presented that contractors for supplies charged more because they had to wait for their money.

During the investigation it was discovered that the statute requires the wardens to keep an account of the funds received and expended, to strike a balance each month and on the first Monday in each month to turn into the state so much of the balance on hand as the commission considers not necessary for the expenses of the institutions. Assistant Atty. Gen. Logan interpreted this to mean that the wardens are to pay the expenses, all except salaries. The opinion is rendered by the fact that the wardens are under $50,000 bond.

Good Showing at Recruiting Station.

Maj. M. Scott, petty officer in charge of the naval recruiting station at the Federal building at Louisville, "completed a report for the year from January 2, 1912, to December 2, which showed that 463 applications for enlistment positions were made during that time, a record for the number of any previous year. The number accepted was nineteen four, which, while a comparatively small percentage, is a good showing as second to the record for Cincinnati and above that of Columbus and Toledo, O., which are in the Louisville district. The number of applicants for 1913 was about 200, while the number to be taken on will be about seventy. The total enlistment for the Louisville recruiting district for 1912, up to December 25, was 1,200, of which the recruit formulated 387, Columbus 41, and Dayton 34. Petty Officer Scott has received a letter from the officer in charge of the battleship Kentucky in which he says that while his record was very good, and proved the best of all the vessels in the fleet, he should be unable to better it in the coming year. Mr. Scott's record was made when he took about 200 sailors during 1912. The officer assigned to the task of looking for young men and the fact that the Government was allowed about $400 more, with the possibility that this amount will be increased later, gives him reason to believe that the coming year will mark a rush for the navy.

KILLED IN CEMETERY

RICHLY-CLAD WOMAN SLAIN ON THE EDGE OF A GROVE IN GRAVEYARD.

There Was a Ragged Wound, Evidently Done With a Dull Knifeblade.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

Boston, Mass.—A young woman, dressed in expensive clothing and wearing four rings, in one of which are large diamonds, was found murdered in Holy Cross cemetery, in Malden. She was identified as Mrs. Mildred Donovan, of Revere, Mass.

There was a ragged wound, evidently made with a dull knife, in the woman's throat. Her head had been battered.

The body was found in a clump of bushes at the edge of a grave. The assailant in which the bushes had been trampled down, the torn condition of the victim's clothing and the scratches on her hands and face also showed she had fought for her life.

After rifling the movements of the woman the police announced she last night with James H. Donahue, known to the sporting world under the nicknames of "Kid" Carter and "Patsy" McKenna.

Jennings says he knows nothing of the woman's death. He had been arrested earlier in the evening on a charge of fatally shooting Thomas J. Pierson during a saloon fight, and calmly admitted that he had another in his career. He had been held in a two named Hill in Everett four years ago and that he drew a man named John Ryan at Benton Harbor, Mich., shortly before that.

BRIDGE GOES DOWN

Collapses Under Big Engine and Seven Men Die—Workers on Structure Buried By Debris.

Huntington, W. Va.—The first day of the new year was marked by a terrible peake & Ohio railroad the greatest disaster in its history. It came by losing an engine of the heaviest type, pulling the Chesapeake Special Train No. 15, plunged through a temporary bridge spanning Guyan river at Grandview, Ky., and carrying seven men to death. Seven men were buried to death and half a dozen others were injured.

The Grandview bridge, the scene of the disaster, was known to railroad men as a hoodoo bridge, the making of the history of the road. Twice before the bridge was being double tracked and pending the completion of the work, a temporary bridge was put in.

The fallroad officials, it is said, had been warned of the danger since the bridge was put in, but no action was taken pending investigating this phase.

HOTEL BURNED.

Keystone, W. Va.—While celebrating the new year a party of young people accidentally set fire to the Hotel Wilson and, fanned by a gale that was sweeping over the mountains, the flames quickly spread and within a few minutes the entire building was in ruins. Guests were awakened from their slumbers by the fire and escaped in the streets in their night clothing. Residents of the town gave the homeless people what aid they could, but many were chilled before they could find shelter. Three unidentified men who were in the hotel when the fire broke out are missing and are believed to have perished in the flames. The hotel register was burned. Coroner Jones will investigate to learn their names. They came here from Bluefield.

The third, who was left alive drinking ten in a secluded corner of the cafe when all suddenly fell from their chairs, dying.

They evidently had placed poison in the wine glasses.

A photograph of the trio was found in their possessions addressed to the girl who told of their threat.

"TRUST ME, SIT DOWN!"

Columbus, O.—"Trust me, I will handle it. Sit down! Sit down!" yelled Billy Sunday when 10,000 persons were on their feet at the Billy Sunday tabernacle following a cry of "Fire." It said the blaze was of incendiary origin. Only by the quick work of 116 ushers and the sharp, commanding voice of Sunday was confidence quieted and a panic averted. The blaze was of no consequence.

GANG OF WORKMEN ARRESTED.

Louisville, Ky.—A wholesale arrest of a gang of 125 section men, employed by the Louisville & Nashville railroad in the vicinity of Shepherdsville, was made at St. Matthews, three miles east of Louisville, when the men, who refused to comply with the order of Magistrate R. O. Sorrey to quit laying a track in the county road. The men were released on bail, but were held until officials of the railway company obtained their release by furnishing bonds.

Stanford, Ky.—Mrs. Susie Vinson, 23 years old, wife of William Vinson, a prominent farmer of Garrard river section of this county, was burned to death in her home. She had been in the dressed and was sitting in a rocking chair in front of an open fireplace, when her clothing ignited.

Fremont, Ohio.—While skating with several companions, on Noble's Quarry here, William, eight-year-old son of Stan. Buchman, broke through the ice and was drowned. The body was recovered.

WILL BE SHORT LIVED

SENATOR CULBERSON'S OPINION OF THE NEW PARTY.

Texas Statesman Tells Why He Sees in It No Menace to Either the Democrats or the Republicans.

Senator Charles A. Culberson of Texas, one of the Democratic leaders in the senate, gave his opinion to either the Democratic or the Republican party in the new third party movement launched by Colonel Roosevelt. The senator from Texas, who is a careful observer of political sentiment, was discussing with some colleagues the probable effect on future politics of the recent conference of Colonel Roosevelt and his friends in Chicago. Senator Culberson did not share the anxiety of some of his political associates that Colonel Roosevelt would make trouble for the Democrats in 1916.

"There are some fundamental considerations which convince me that the Roosevelt party is a temporary and short lived," said Senator Culberson. "This party rests in the first place on a false assumption. It is founded on one man. This is manifest, and no amount of loud contrary assertion can change this patent fact. He fought for the doctrine of the square deal primarily, would have accepted it if he could have secured it through the regular and the new party in sheer desperation to reach the presidency again.

"The new party is organized and established to gratify his dangerous and unhealthy ambition. Consequently it will perish with it. Its dissolution will be hastened by the fact that it is founded on false principles and revolutionary doctrines which are subversive of sound and stable government. Thousands of people voted for Roosevelt at the last election from the sheer impulse to register an emphatic protest against the existing order of things. That impulse was stronger than the form of government. Such basic and enduring party principles as the Democratic party represents and a protective tariff, which are founded at but not aforesaid in its platforms, have been approved and tried by the Republican party. This will not be the case with the new party, which is founded on false principles and revolutionary doctrines which are subversive of sound and stable government. Thousands of people voted for Roosevelt at the last election from the sheer impulse to register an emphatic protest against the existing order of things. That impulse was stronger than the form of government.
