SYNOPSIS.

When the coffin was closed, the doctor said to the woman who was weeping: "You are not dead, but you are going to die. You are going to die, but you are not dead."

CHAPTER XVII.

In which Eleanor Capin is surprised to find that she is not dead, but that she is going to die.

Before she had time to think of the doctor's words, she was again in the coffin. The coffin was closed, and the doctor said to the woman who was weeping: "You are not dead, but you are going to die. You are going to die, but you are not dead."

CHAPTER XVIII.

In which Eleanor Capin is surprised to find that she is not dead, but that she is going to die.

The doctor said to the woman who was weeping: "You are not dead, but you are going to die. You are going to die, but you are not dead."

CHAPTER XIX.

In which Eleanor Capin is surprised to find that she is not dead, but that she is going to die.

The doctor said to the woman who was weeping: "You are not dead, but you are going to die. You are going to die, but you are not dead."
