SYNOPSIS.

George Anderson and wife are a remarkably loving man and wife. Clarence Bond, their friend, is a confirmed bachelor. He and Anne and Clarence Anderson discuss them as the story opens. It is found that the body of Anderson has been found in the river. Clarence discovers the man he met with a bandage on his arm. The body removed to the Morgue. Clarence, Detective Flynnigan and Coroner Hall examine the clothing found on the body. Anderson's watch, a present from his wife, is found with the inscription "Initials Only." Clarence buys a watch of letters found in his daughter's room. Anne's watch shows that the watch was disposed. This letter was signed "Initials Only." Clarence discovers Dorothy Dorothea with Beauvalet. He overhears them planning to meet at the summer house. The name of Dorothea Dorothea is found to be the former Miss Cummings. Clarence is offered for the position of secretary to Beauvalet. Beauvalet reveals the secret of the murder of a watchmaker, Mr. Challoner. Mr. Challoner's daughter gets telephone messages asking her to meet a man whose initials are "Initials Only." Clarence is employed by
