COMMENT.

Fire Company To Buy Personal Equipments

The Louisville Messenger comments rather fully, we think, upon the possibility of the commission School of Journalism at State University, says the Messenger: "The proposed school for journalism at Lexington is to have a three-year course. If the time is spent in teaching others, covering the floor, collecting bills, standing off creditors, acting time, fooling press, building the fire and learning to make a $60 wage by day with only $24 in cash, the graduates will come forth fully good enough to take the job of running newspapers."

Fire Prevention To Be Discussed
October 9th

Governor McCreary has proclaimed Thursday, October 9th, as the day of the State Fire Prevention Day in Kentucky. The government is taking practical steps to improve the fire prevention work in the state. It will be generally well made for the consideration of the day of the country and of the individuals, namely, alcohol and general delinquency in small villages.
