Rural School News Log Royal 2121

I am writing this at Pike Hotel, in Pikeville, which as you know is near the West Virginia line. It is a fine little city of 1,000 inhabitants, asked build-ing. The good churches, fine schools, but they are soon to build a new graded and high school building at a cost of $40,000 which you see will be an excellent one. But I cannot tell you more now except that Saturday I visited the Middleton Coal Mine and will tell the boys and girls more about it later.

The trustees and teachers are enrolling and lining up, by order of Louisville to attend K. E. A. There are 180 schools in Pike county, over 400 teachers hold certificates, 150 trustees, including the city board, and only three have not enrolled and attended K. E. A., and yet those three carried away the honors last year in the Educational Rally as they had the most present of any other county in the district. But we have had splendid crowds at our meetings in each county and the trustees and teachers are going in large numbers.

But I shall not tell you more about my trip or my work now. I never lifty fifty Kodaks there and to will attend K. E. A. at Louisville next week.

I shall be home Wednesday night and in the office all the time until the Harrison County Meeting which I will spend the day at Moorefield on school business.

The club boys' corn is in my office and a gallon of Bonanza county white seed corn will be given to each club boy Saturday, April 25. Boys, be sure to come or send for your corn Saturday.

Trustees, teachers and all, get ready for K. E. A.

All of teachers of the city schools will please hereafter leave the Louisville School Board to attend the annual meeting of the K. E. A. Teachers of county schools, trustees and a member of the county board will also attend. The local board will take Tuesday in order to visit the Louisville School Board on Wednesday. Supt. R. Dean Squires is on the program of the K. E. A. for a discussion of "The Possible Improvement in Our Public Schools."
