To Our Carlisle and Nicholas County Friends

You treat us so clever on our customary visits that not-withstanding we do not expect to do much business this coming Court Day, our Mr. Burman concludes to pay you a call anyhow. He will bring however a couple of trunks of clothing samples containing about what we have left in Suits and Overcoats. If you are at all interested, it will pay you to visit his room. To clean them up we are making very low prices, very big sacrifices particularly in winter suits and heavy overcoats. If you have half an apology to buy either, you will save a lot of money. If we were to take up half of the columns of this paper we could not say enough. As to the reductions we are making, come in the room and investigate. Whether you wish to buy or not, come in anyhow.

We are still giving away Automobiles. Automobile tickets with every cash purchase and mottoes just on account.

Very Truly Yours,

D. HECHINGER & CO.

Changeable Climate

IS A CONSTANT THREAT TO THE HEALTH OF THE PEOPLE.

Dr. Hartman, of Columbus, Ohio, discusses an important health topic. He says:

Yes, it is the climate, not the germs, that we have to fear in this country. The germs are present, to be sure, and are of some significance in diagnosis. Climate, a changeable climate, is the great cause of disease. The atmospheric pressure varies, the humidity of the atmosphere changes, fever due to the temperature rises and falls. All this presents to the body very great trials to adjust to.

The area of high pressure forms in the northwest, moves rapidly southeast, subjecting millions of our population to its influence. The result is, thousands seek treatments of people catch cold. A small per cent of these thousands do not get well of their cold. It goes into pneumonia, or chronic catarrh, or bronchitis, or laryngitis, or pleurisy.

Now, what I am getting at in this article is to tell you how to avoid all this. No one can prevent them. The very best we can do is to prepare for them, defend ourselves against them.

Good health is the best preventive. The very best. Overwork hearty, work, excess vitality, live in Nature's own preventive and protection.

We do not all have this, however. Some of us must have assistance. The assistance that I use for myself, would recommend for my friends to use, my neighbors and my countrymen, is Peruna. Keep Peruna in the house.

If the children bedlivate they are catching cold, give them Peruna. If you have a cough, a cold, or any symptom that may precede these symptoms that are so well known which precede a cold, a few doses of Peruna avert the deed is done.

Many people are very subject to colds. Others who have weak lungs and are fearful about our winter weather, take Peruna off and on during the whole winter season. The plan is a good one. The result to be anticipated. It does no possible harm to the system. It keeps the appetite regular and keen. It regulates digestion and helps the user through the incipient weather of winter.

"Universal Language" a Failure.

During his student days at the University of Paris Dr. Pierre Piccard, president of Pyrenees, helped to compose a universal language. His efforts were in vain for neither Latin nor anything else could be found. The young men experimented between the characters of the alphabet, but the impossibility for the philologists, big brothers, Max Muller, Bergaigne and M. To Mark Cardinal's House.

A memorial tablet is to be fixed on Cardinal Mazarin's old house at Rueil, minister, London, which as will be remembered was originally the Duke's institute, and was bought for a small sum. The cardinal's establishment he said to have been ruled by his butler, a dragon, and saw to it that he was not troubled with callers at unfortunate hours. He would warn a late visitor that the time for bed was past, with the apology: "You see, sir, the cardinal doesn't keep straight into bed like you or me. He has a little routine to do."

UP THE SAME TREE

By JOHN PHILIP GRTH.

One day a big Newfoundland dog came to the house of Jed Harned, on the town of Royalton, and turned in at the yard gate. He was a homeless waif, and dead set in search of a home. He was as fat as a seal and it was evident that he had the appetite of a bear, too.

It was summer time, and the dog passed around the premises and entered the kitchen and took up a position under the table. Jed's wife was at the washtub and after looking at the dog a moment she burst out laughing and said:

That dog hasn't got the sense of a cabbage head or somebody has fed him to him. He wants food and a home, and the idea that he should come here for them makes me grin."

Jed Harned was the fattest man in the county and it may be said in the same breath that his wife was the hardest worker. She worked for Jed for years as he had made her believe that he had consumption, liver complaint, kidney trouble and three or four other diseases that would be sure to carry him off if he handled at the plow, so he believed him enough to earn the living for two of them. It was a good thing, and she smiled as she wondered what would be left for the dog.

When Jed came home after his day's work he did not kick the wanderer out doors as expected. For the first time in his life he betrayed a streak of commercialism.

That dog has come from fifty miles away," he said. "His feet are sore, and he has had mighty little to eat to-day."

And he'll get mighty little here," said the wife, "if a hard day's work for a man and a dog too."

Don't you quite a good thing, Hetty After that dog's been fed up and got the strength back he'll be well worth for $25 in cold cash."

You crazy man, it. Jed!"

At least $25, and mebbe double that."

And I ran get a new dress and a pair of shoes?"

And a hat and other things. Why, it's the greatest piece of luck we have had in years. I'll get up early to-night to help get the dog in shape."

The wife was willing, and Jed did not have to earn his own appetite at the big table. The dog ate and ate, licked their meals there were only scraps left for the cat. He stood guard for a time, however, and might have been seen to wag his tail when Jed offered coming home and saying:

There, my rare, but do you know what's happened?"

You no more've offered a days work?" gasped the wife.

No, I ain; and if I had been I wouldn't have taken it. I met a neighbor, the feller that owns that dog is here after him."

Great snakes!"

Lives fifty miles away, and says a tramp coaxed the dog away Heard we had it and came here to get him. Says I must give him up or he'll have me arrested."

And you'll give 'im up?"

Say, I'm slowly but surely doin' the feller practical settlements, but I'm a man of honor, and I'll not be the one to rob."

What are you goin' to do?"

Just sneer Jed put a piece off the Hindwestan and tied one end to the dog's collar. The other he made fast to the tail of the dog after he had built the fire and the dog had to be kick sent the wanderer away from his happy home and down the main street of the town. He ran for two miles, and then he trotted back to the house and ask questions. Men and boys were out in force, and he was minded at him. Lawn the long street and through the gate, and then he had to be and little did that dog know that Fate had in Cupid store for the unfortunate with him.

Three miles from the spot where Jed Harned tied the old fat pair to the dog's tail and bade him dimp the earth for the night of a farmer named Farmer Hagby. He had a daughter named Ella, and that regrettable boarding school. He also had a sweetheart, and that young man was while the said daughter was away, and had also had that of the affair until about ready to retire began to howl and the man and his wife ex pected a clash sooner or later, and it came sooner. A stage coach, and just as nice as pie, or she can be as sweet as she likes, and the dog teeth ready to bite. After a week the two particular friends stay under one roof with the query.

Will you let me wish to pay your board or work it out?"

I'm in my father's house," was the reply.

And to mine, and if you think you have going to play lady after I play slave you'll find yourself greatly mistaken."

I shall teach school in the town in the fall."

And until fall?"

I shall have a talk with father in a day or two."

Your father was a fool to send you away to be educated, and he has made a mistake in it. No doubt you've got lots of book learning, but I'll bet you can't make bam for a cent. Oh, you'd make a jewel of a wife for some farmer!"

Miss Irene put on her hat and started out for a walk. She went down to the dock, sat on a coil of rope and then passed through a gap in the fence and sat down under a maple tree.
