Government Sending 16 Experts To Assist—Dr. Mayo Here—Wholesale Inoculations Expected.

(Special Frankfort Correspondence.)

Frankfort.—Chairman Joe Newman, of the State livestock sanitary board, has responded to the 31 county judges in Kentucky to call mass meetings of livestock owners and organize vigilance committees to combat the foot and mouth disease. All men engaged in business at the Bourbon stockyards signed a circular letter which went to more than 1,000 shippers, asking them to cooperate with state and national authorities and to show the farmers how to do likewise. Eighteen infected cattle were found in Oldham county and the entire county is under quarantine. The stricken animals were slaughtered.

Another Jefferson county dairy farm was found to be infected. Its 84 cattle and 20 hogs were ordered destroyed. Dr. E. G. Houck, of Chicago, expects to be the most successful foe of the foot and mouth disease in the government service, is here to confer with Dr. J. A. Porter, in charge of the government work here, and state, county and city officers. Washington, D. C., officials remain until the end of the fight is in sight.

Health Service Survey.

The United States public health service estimates that 1500 cases of trachoma exist in the mountain section of Kentucky, according to a report issued recently. Seven counties in 1912 showed 12½ per cent of the population to be suffering from this communicable disease, formerly considered as a foreign ailment not existing to any extent in the United States. This discovery led the public health service to make a survey of studies of the prevalence of the disease, and in a recent survey of 23 counties 18,016 persons were examined, of whom 1,240, or 6.9 per cent, were found afflicted with this disturbing eye disease. In some of these counties the percentage found infected was as high as 12 or 15 per cent, while in others it fell to 2 per cent. The majority of those examined were school children, and the findings may be taken as a reasonably accurate estimate conditions among adults.

Almost all of those examined were whites, as the negro population is small in the mountain sections of Kentucky. Inasmuch as the bulk of the population in these counties comes from old American stock, foreign immigration not having reached them, the prevalence of the disease. The United States public health service regards its estimate of 22,000 cases in 15 mountain counties as conservative, though approximate, and has established loan points at various points for the treatment of the disease and the education of the general public as to the means of its prevention.

Wholesale Indictments.

Wholesale indictments as a result of violations of the cattle quarantine, growing out of the foot and mouth disease, are predicted by J. W. Newman, state commissioner of agriculture, who declared that he intended to lay information before the October grand jury immediately. With this end in view, he held a conference with Lorraine Mix, assistant commissioner, and Attorney General Garnett. Newman predicted that the number of indictments would run into three figures.

The mystery surrounding the life size portrait of George Washington which hung for three-quarters of a century in the old Capitol and which has just been reconstructed by Pauline Partlan, a Philadelphia artist, has been cleared away. H. V. McCluer now, after days of search through old records, has discovered an appropriation of $500 made by the General Assembly in 1816, in which Oliver Frazer, a Lexington artist, was mentioned as the painter. The picture is a copy of Stuart's portrait of Washington which hangs in Washington. Oliver Frazer, who was born in Fayette county in 1802, died was the son of Alexander Fraser, who studied in Europe and painted in two continents. The picture was covered with dirt, caked with grease and lastly worn when the state offices were moved to the new Capitol and the Sinking Fund Commission presented it to the Kentucky State Historical Society. Gallagher, of Fraser, Ford, who recently came home from the Lexington school of road building. He laid out the advantages and the possibilities of the Hancock road, and also showed that if the county did not take advantage of the offer of state aid that it would be contributing 5 per cent of its taxes to other counties without getting anything for it.

SENATE NAVAL COMMITTEE DECIDES TO ENLARGE SEA DEFENSE OF THE NATION.

FAVORS ARMY OF 125,000

Senator Chamberlain Approves Larger Land Force—Smoot Seeks 75 Million Craft—Thomas' Stand Is Called Treason to Democracy.

Washington, Feb 22.—The senate naval committee decided to enlarge the submarine fleet of the United States by one nation. In calling up the army appropriation bill Senator Chamberlain declared in favor of a moderate army (not from 40,000 to 125,000 men) and said any further reorganization of the army must go over to the next congress.

The naval committee increased the number of submarines of the emergency type from the one provided for in the bill to five, and has a surface speed of not less than 14 knots an hour, and to cost, exclusive of armor and armament, $1,400,000. It will submarines of a type to exceed $500,000 each, exclusive of armament, which would have been the limit now increased to 16.

The appropriation of $200,000 for the aviation corps was increased to $1,000,000.

The senate committee agreed with the house in the naval appropriation bill, but provided that half of the total number of ships called for under must be spent in actual use duty.

Smoot Wants 75 Million Craft.

The demand of the intermountain senator, Smoot, for a navy of 75 vessels of the seagoing type to have a surface speed of not less than 21 knots and 25 submarines for coast defense work to cost not to exceed $15,000,000, and 50 aeroplanes and an armament, the entire appropriation to be $25,000,000, was unheeded.

Only the European war has demonstrated, said Senator Chamberlain, "what a submarine can do. It has demonstrated the use of coast cities and the coast line. It has shown that no other thing can do anything else."

Thomas Stand Called Treason.

Senator Thomas of Colorado, an ardent friend of preparedness, said he would rush the country toward bankruptcy by spending a great military establishment.

Senator Brandegee of Connecticut denounced Thomas' doctrine as "nothing less than treasonable."

"I regard it as in accordance with the constitution," said Senator Brandegee, "to warn the people that they are not going to have the army and navy we need for preparedness. I do not believe that, in the history of nations, any nation has had Hiuerbee's victory of Belle Alliance by the Prussian army and Waterloo, following the pursuit of Napoleon and Blucher's annihilation of the best armies are eclipsed by what has just occurred.

"While part of the military were engaged in fighting in fixed positions for years, the others made fortified marches for days. Then followed a nine days' battle which ended with the capture of Paris.

"It is a well known fact that the pursuit could not be faster than the pursuit. Nevertheless our troops, though wearied by continuous marches and fighting, kept close upon the heels of the Russians. The Russians were the first to reach the Vistula river.

"When the German commander in chief was announcing that troops in the vicinity of Augustowo were surrounding and destroying the army of Russians, the army of Hindenburg was fighting and driving down their arms in the forests near Augustowo and in northwestern Poland.

"The victory, which resulted in the largest number of prisoners ever taken in open battle, was also the most decisive given in the world's history."

DARDANELLES RAZED

FORTS AT ENTRANCE HAVE BEEN REDUCED BY ANGLO-FRENCH MEDITERRANEAN FLEET.

Sultan Prepares to Quit Europe—New York Sailing Bridges Sold by the British Admiralty.

Toronto Newspaper Union News Service.

London.—The forts and the ammunition in the Dardanelles have been reduced to a state of helplessness by the Anglo-French fleet, according to an announcement made by the admiralty. The successful forcing of the Dardanelles by the allied fleet is the opinion of many military experts, would be a decisive step toward the ultimate defeat of the war up to the present. Since the French-British fleet makes its entrance into the Sea of Marmora the city of Constantinople will be under its mercy and Turkey will be virtually eliminated from the theater of conflict.

With the opening of the Bosporus, which would be a simple matter after Constantinople has been taken, Russia would be in a position to ship wheat and munitions which she sorely needs, and the enormous stores of wheat which have been collected on the shores of the Black sea would be available for the benefit of the western allies.

The possession of Constantinople would be important. Turkey's power has been confined to a small territory in the vicinity of Constantinople, which has been attached to the capital by a narrow egress to the open sea. The announcement that the Dardanelles forts are practically silenced is particularly significant from the fact that Premier Asquith, Sir Edward Grey stated in the house of commons that the Dardanelles operation was not opposed from the beginning by the general staff, and that the naval authorities had the full responsibility of being Aristotine or nothing.

BILIOUS, HEADACHY, SICK "CASCARETS"

Gently cleanse your liver and sluggish bowels while you sleep.

Get a 10-cent box.

Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver, delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out by nature's daily movement, has to be dosed. When this poison reaches the blood it causes constipation, auto-intoxication and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all decomposed waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means a clear head, clear stomach, sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months.

NATURE'S WORK WELL DONE

Trouble With Mankind Is That the Brain Does Not Suffi-ciently Cultivate It.

A scientific gentleman has reminded the world in the following terms: "Apart from the size of skulls dug up out of the earth, we have proof that the brain capacity now that he had 121,000 years ago. Thus, the brain capacity is proof that nobody in the twentieth century is a Shakespeare or a Bacon or Plato or Aristotle, and we are quite safe in saying that no man now exists with stance area more than one hundred thousand years ago had the possibilities of being Aristotine or nothing.

Unsurprising." Not at all. The race has not been developing in brain capacity in general to get on nicely. The only trouble is in getting it cultivated.

Twenty-five hundred years ago a little brain capacity served quite in southern Europe had succeeded in building up a civilization of sorts. But there was a whole world of barbarians who had brains as large as we have. But the brains but not the civilized backwardness, but not a good physical inheritance, but not social inheritance, it has come to the time when the power of attitude to develop the brain capacity which has brought the civilized white citizen nearer and nearer to his ancestor in early times. Mankind has not developed in brain capacity in general for ages. Civilization has developed in brain capacity in general for ages. Civilization has developed in brain capacity in general for ages. Civilization has
