GERMAN CRUISER SUNK AMERICAN VESSEL AFTER SAVING THE CREW.

RAIDER AT NEWPORT NEWS

Prins Eitel Friedrich is in Need of Repairs and Provisions—Crew of Boat Declare It Carried Cargo of Wheat —No Contraband Was on Board.

Washington, March 11.—The German cruiser Prince Eitel Friedrich, has just arrived at Newport News, bringing the captain and crew of the American prize vessel Wilmot H. Percy, which the German warship sunk at sea on January 17.

The owners of the former have claimed damages for the vessel's destruction of any kind, official and diplomatic lawyers were much perturbed over the matter, but nobody was willing to make any comment until the facts are fully established.

The customs officers at Seattle wire that the manifest of the William P. Frye, which was loaded there, show that she carried 192,561 bushels of wheat.

Crew is Taken Off.

The Frye sailed from Seattle on November 4 for Queenstown and Falmouth. She passed Tatoosh, Wash., the next day and had not been heard from since. The Prince Eitel Friedrich officers report that on the ground that she was carrying contraband of war, the vessels stopped the Frye in the South Atlantic on January 17, took off Captain Erickse, 31 of his crew, and then sank the freighter.

The Frye was valued at $1,500,000 and her cargo at $700,000.

Has 300 Persons on Board.

The Prinz Eitel Friedrich put in at Newport News, presumably for coal and supplies. She also is said to be in need of repairs and may remain here. She is reported to have 326 French and Russian prisoners of war aboard. One report, which was unconfirmed, has it that the Frye's crew was chased to the mouth of Chesapeake bay by a British cruiser.

Immediately after she dropped another the coast guard cutter Onondaga went alongside. While at sea the German cruiser has been provisioned by the men on one side and black on the other.

Started Out Tang Tao.

The Prinz Eitel Friedrich started out to be a merchant ship, a sister ship to Tsing Tao. She was built in Germany for lines of the North German Lloyd and on reaching Tsing Tao shortly after the outbreak of hostilities and the German marine authorities at that port equipped her with naval guns and turned her into a warship cruiser. She carries a crew of 250 men and officers.

The cruiser sailed from Tsing Tao before the Japanese attack was begun and early in November she was recorded off off the western coast of South America, where for several months she has been active in the capture of British and French shipping. One of her exploits was the sinking early in December of the British steamer Charcas off Chile.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels announced that permission had been requested to allow urgent repairs to be made to the German cruiser and that Prinz Eitel Friedrich in the Newport News shipyard.

The neutrality board of the navy, headed by Rear Admiral Pratt, Captains Winterhalter and James Brown Scott, immediately called a meeting for the purpose of determining the point of law involved.

The character of the vessel will determine the question as to what will still be possible to allow her to make repairs and to take on coal and supplies. Daniels declared it was extremely improbable to allow a belligerent to do so. However, as a matter of fact there are a number of prisoners aboard the vessel and this may change her status entirely.

By FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY, International News Service Correspondent.

Petrograd, March 10.—The great battle in the grip of battle in the Polish region south of the Vistula river in Poland, where the armies of Grand Duke Nicholas are striving to die Hindenburg from their positions in East Prussia, is raging in that region has fully failed, the Germans retired to a line of defense which they had prepared before, and the Russians are now shelling these positions with the ultimate view of driving the enemy entirely from the territory.

Put in the meantime heavy fighting is in progress north of the East Prussian border near Lomza, Plonsk and Przasnysz. The Russians are making a strong offensive all along this line from Augustow on the north of the Bobr and Narew rivers to a point south of Plonsk.

The German bombardment of Ossowetz has been without effect and the garrison nothing compiled with the efficient fire of the guns in the Russian forts, caused great losses to the Germans.

The following official statement was given out to explain some misleading points in the German accounts of operations relative to the retreat from Grodno.

The German retreat ordered under command Russian pressure. The German lost thousands of prisoners and six cannon. One fight, in which the Germans were defeated, a hill, cost them a corps (the Twenty-first corps) of 15,000 men, and 15,000 men in all.

Washington, March 11.—Here are the principal points in the note of conciliatory note sent by Secretary Bryan to Carranza:

1. The United States emphatically denies the action of the constitutionalist forces under General Obregon in its peculiar speech at Vera Cruz.

2. The patience of the United States in hearing rebuttals as a result of resolutions in Mexico City and Washington has been exhausted.

3. The United States will hold General Carranza and General Obregon personally responsible for the murder of any more American citizens in Mexico.

4. The Washington note was made to express official information received here that several Americans had been murdered in Mexico City.

The Swedish minister requested an audience with the president for the purpose of demanding immediate release of Ernest Frost, a Swede, arrested subject in Mexico City.

Washington, March 10.—Developments came swiftly in the Mexican crisis. Here they are:

Secretary Daniels ordered the battleship Georgia and cruiser Washington to Vera Cruz in connection with this program and the plan of evacuation.

J. Carranza resented latest United States note, but at last General Hillman he would reply to it formally. He said Obregon had not kept food supplies out of capital.

Obregon and his Carranza troops reported to have evacuated Mexico City and Zapata and his troops were glad the place.

Regarding Railway North.

Dispatches came through an embargo on railway shipments and precedents in Mexico City announcing the leaving of all traffic northward. Villa states it was impossible for anyone to leave Mexico City for the north.

The Villa agency, however, announced that Zayala, have had begun repairing the railroad northward, and expected that traffic would soon be restored in six days, the message said.

When clear Admiral Caperton arrived at Vera Cruz he was met with the battleship Georgia and cruiser Washington, which had been ordered to that port. Evacuation will be given to him. The Washington is the flagship of Admiral Caperton and a sister or mother on Mexico station.

Carranza Sends for Secretary.

Secretary Daniels has sent for Rear Admiral Caperton to report to him. For months was in command of the special squadron in Mexican waters. He will discuss the Mexican situation with him and with Secretary Bryan looking to a solution of the problem forced upon America as neutral.

Word reached Capt. William L. Rodgers of the battleship Delaware at Vera Cruz that trouble was feared at Mexico City and that the state was a message to commander John H. Hawkins of the Washington to proceed back to Progreso and stand by for further instructions. Word reached the state department that the Delaware had arrived at Progreso.

TURKS ATTEMPT COUP UPON ALLIED FLEET

Fort Apparently Silenced Djdma Fire on Warships—Some of the vessels Struck, But Damage Slight.

By HERBERT TEMPLE.

International News Service Correspondent.

London, March 11.—Although another spell of bad weather has hindered the operations of the combined fleet of British and French warships and they are trying to force a passage through the Dardanelles, the attack which began last week is not over. Official dispatches telling of the second bombardment of the forts of the Medjidieh Tabia, situated on Point Nagara, the Asiatic shore entrance, supplemented by advices from Athens that the allies have made the attempt to effect a coup by which they hoped to sink some of the ships in the fleet.

Fort Sinnaheh Medjidieh Tabia had been practically silenced and the allied vessels advanced officially on Monday night that its batteries had been silenced, but when the ships of the combined fleet moved forward to concentrate their fire against Cape Helles, on the European shore, they were suddenly greeted by a hot fire from the forts on the Asiatic shore.

None of the ships were struck by the Turkish shells, but it was a remarkable feature of this great fight that the Turkish gunners were unable to get the effect against the armor of the Greek cruiser. Another curious feature which deals in contrasts, is the fact that the Turkish guns are being kept against shots, many of which are projectiles of British make.

FRENCH LOSE FIGHT

VICTORY OVER ALLIES IN CHAMPAGNE EQUAL TO MAZURIA, IS GERMANY'S CLAIM.

BIG BATTLE IS STILL ON

Germany Declares Own Casualties Exceed Those Inflicted in Driving the Russians From East Prussia—Paris Denies Defeat.

Berlin (wireless to Sayville), March 11.—An official statement issued by the general staff declares that the two weeks fighting in Champagne has resulted in a victory for the French equal in importance to the recent victory over the Russians in the Masurian Lakes district of East Prussia.

The German gains are admitted to be greater than the German losses in the Masurian fighting, but on the other hand the French losses are declared to be greater than the German losses.

The statement follows:

"The battle in Champagne has come so near to a conclusion that we can already change the result.

Attempt Complete Failure.

"The attempt of the French to storm those that this aim was not attained, and the attempt to break the German lines may today be qualified as a complete failure, contrary to all allegations in French official reports. The enemy has not succeeded anywhere in obtaining an advantage which could be of any result on our part is due to the bravery and stubborn resistance of our troops, and to the circumspection and tenacity with which the leaders of Crown Prince Rupprecht and Crown Prince Wilhelm carried out the plans of campaign.

"More than 2,450 unwounded prisoners have fallen into our hands, and 20 German bands.

"Besides the German losses against the valiant enemy were heavy. Their losses were increased by the whole of the German forces that took part in the Masurian fight, but these sacrifices are not lost. The enemy's losses amount to at least three times those of the Germans.

German gallantry and tenacity have gained a victory which will be of great importance for the whole campaign in the east."

Paris Denies Claim.

London, March 11.—The official report of the German claims of a great victory in the Champagne district is contained in the official statement from Paris. The communique says the fighting for the portions of the French progress in the region of Perthes and Beausejour and that ground was gained and the German attacks were repulsed with heavy losses. The statement says the fighting in the region of Perthes and Mesnil, while the artillery engagements reports that the German attacks did not result in any gains.

SOLDIERS TELL VIVID STORIES

Give Personal Touches Impossible to War Correspondent in These Days.

JOKERS EVEN IN TRENCHES

Irish Sport Proves Irrepressible in Face of Death—Sing Sight as Seen From the Ex-

Dublin, March 11.—War realities is just now a prolific source of interest. Vivid letters from soldiers at the front or in hospital bases and scrappy notes from the lare with the "wicked fleet" mirror the actualities of war with a wealth of intimate detail and picturesque personal touches impossible to the heavily restricted war correspondent.

The following is written from the front by Corp. T. Trainor:

"We are in the trenches rarely thrown at us at times in the last four hours and we are at it from a different body, so that they must have plenty to spare. There is no eight hours for work, eight hours for sleep and eight hours for rest as you us, whatever the Germans may do.

"The strain is beginning to tell on them more than on us, and you can see by the wounds and prisoners' heads that they are beginning to look rather ragged. As far as is known, none of her crew are fighting fast all round, in fact, let it be said, her fag flying till the last, and she is having till she could back no more.

"Although we ourselves suffered no loss, we had some very narrow escapes. Three torpedoes were observed to pass us, one within a few feet of the bows, but they all missed or were ahead of us. The sea was like glass, so the enemy's submarines, which, however, did so no damage. They should not be encouraged, however. That cruiser did not think, of surrender.

What naval warfare seems like to the British Tommy is illustrated by a recent remark described by an engine room in described by an engineer of the Laurel, who went through the "scrap" off Helgoland. "It was a bit like a row at a fair. I was in a terribly anxious time for me, as we stayed down in the engine room keeping the engines going at their utmost speed, and we could hear the firing above us, but could not see anything. We were in the dark, and the only thing we could do was to keep our engines going at their utmost speed. I was below in the engine room, and I could hear the shells bursting
