MOTHER! LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE

If cross, feverish, constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs"

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, while tongue is coated as this waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs." then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given to any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Adv.

Miss Eaton.

Mrs. Eaton—This paper says dividend forces of light have been detected in the ocean at depths of more than 1,000 feet by an English ocean graphical expedition.

Mr. Eaton—Some of those cannibal mermaids left the sea hunting a reckon.

SAGE TEA AND SULPHUR DARKENS YOUR GRAY HAIR

Look Years Younger! Try Grandma's Recipe of Sage and Sulphur and Don't Know.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays, we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a bottle of this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell by the way it darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and glossy and you look years younger. Adv.

The Way It Goes.

"Judging from the way that man talks, he must be fairly hard up. Do you suppose he's hungry?"

"Oh, no. He's been keeping six motor cars and has had to dispose of one. The man who's consoling him gets a salary of $2,000 a year."

An Apt Student.

A young woman who came to Cedarville to take her degree of doctor of philosophy, married her professor in the middle of her second year. When she announced her engagement one of her friends said:

"But, Edith, I thought you came up here to get your Ph. D."

"So I did," replied Edith, "but I had no idea I would get him so soon."

A Philosopher.

"Week before last," said the kind lady to the patient waiting in front of a dollar from me because you were so good and kind to my little dog when it was quarter because you were blind before I realized that you were a fraud. Now how you are for sneering at my generosity?"

"Reason," said the beggar to the facts."

"Don't you think you'd do better if you chose one affliction and stuck to it?" asked the lady.

"No, ma'am," said the beggar. "There's nothin' so fatal to the fair play requirement as all one's material powers in native specialties."—Judge.

CHILDREN SHOWED IT
Effect of Their Warm Drink in the Morning

"A year ago I was a wreck from coffee drinking and was on the point of giving up the position I held with credit from because of nervousness.

"I was telling a friend about it and she said, 'We drink nothing at meal time but Postum, and it is the best comfort to have something we can enjoy drinking with the children.'

"I was astonished that she would quit the children to drink any kind of coffee, but she said Postum was not coffee, but a most healthful beverage for children as well as for older ones, and that the combination of Postum with cream and adults showed that to be a fact.

"I was skeptical and determined to give Postum a trial, following the directions carefully. It was a decided success and I was delighted to find its rich delicious flavor returned.

In a short time I noticed a decided improvement in my condition and kept growing better month after month until now I am healthy and can do my work in the school room without any unpleasant result and regret very much having quit drinking coffee for any money."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost per cup about the same.

"There's a Reason" For Postum.

—sold by Grocers

The Call of the Cumberlands

By Charles Neville Buck

With Illustrations from Photographs of Scenes in the Play

(Copyright, 1910, by W. J. Watt & Co.)

SYNOPSIS.

On Misery creek Dwight Fiske finds George Langdon, a landscape painter, unconscious from a fall. Langdon is taken to the home of Judge Fiske, where he is cared for by Fiske's daughter Jean. Dwight Fiske, a lawyer, is engaged in a feud with Woodhouse Fiske, a cousin, and with Woodhouse the man who shot Fiske. Dwight Fiske is a candidate for congress against Woodhouse Fiske, who has a powerful ability in Kansas. While recovering from his injuries Langdon paints a picture of Jean. That gentleman explained that he had found an opportunity to buy a farm from business for a day or two, and wished to see Samson comfortably ensconced and introduced.

The first day Fiske and Samson had the place to themselves, but the next morning would see the others.

The next day, while the mountaineer was out on the flats, the party of men at the club had been unveiled to a total of six, far in excess of the carefully arranged plans of Mr. Fiske. Mr. Bradburn had succeeded in inducing Wilfred Horton to run down for a day or two of the spring festivities. When Horton arrived that afternoon, he found his usually even temper ruffled by lots of misfortune. Scratched gossip, until his resentment against Samson Smith had been translated into danger heat. He did not know that Smith also was at the club, and he did not that afternoon go out to the Smith place, but received from his usual custom as to permit his horse to be taken around to the club grill.

Jean, so as often the case to carefully designed affairs, the one element of chance had disarranged the fates. The success of Parkish's scheme was gone accident. The carefully arranged meeting between the two men, the artfully plotted passing of each within sight and hearing had brought no clash, had not Wilfred Horton been under the deadening effect of alcohol. Since his college days he had been a heavy drinker of liquor. Tonight marked an exception.

It was with a sense of relief and hilarity of the welcome accorded him that Smith also was at the club, and he did not that afternoon go out to the Smith place, but received from his usual custom as to permit his horse to be taken around to the club grill.

At the dinner table Samson Smith was introduced to Wilfred Horton, and acknowledged their introduction with a very bad day. The final straw had been broken by the sight of his cousin Woodhouse Fiske, where he had found in his room on reaching the hotel a copy of a certain New York weekly

"Don't You See That This Thing Is a Fake?"

paper, and had read a page, which was dedicated to the Fiske family, carefully prearranged. It was in him to destroy the paper, but as he was known on publication, but Wilfred Horton knew that Samson Smith had it not been so carefully brought to the attention of the latter by the hand of the stranger infatuation which a certain Woodhouse Fiske had entertained for a partially civilized strangers. Samson Smith was a man from York via the police court, and who knew his kind knew that the political character of the same name, which was the same as that mentioned, and the character of the same name, which was the same as that mentioned, and the character of the same name, which was the same as that mentioned, and the