$131,914,000 Worth Of Animals Sold To Allies

Washington, March 17.—The United States has shipped to the allies horses and mules worth $131,914,000 in value for the allied armies in the last year and a half, according to exhaustive figures assembling today in the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

During the winter of 1915 only a few more than 30,000 horses and mules went to Europe from the United States, but 3 months after hostilities began they were shipped at the rate of 300,000 a month. The total for the first year's export last October when 350,000 were shipped.

Despite a diminished supply, the price of farm animals has dropped but little within the last few months which is explained by the statement that only the best horses have left the country, meeting the greatest standard, and also by the increased cost of grain and other feeds multiple. The average price of horses exported to the Allies was upwards of $200.

If Billy Sunday Were Secretary of State.

Now then, Mr. Forever Secretary, suppose you fail that pop-eyed, sour-boiled, beer-guzzling insect that has had a nice fight and are going where they grub-thing-ti-grease, and if any disciples of dingy-busted soul-a-gush on a high horse organization gas well, just naturally blow over whole shoot-'em of the map, savvy? Then just put that in your pipe and smoke it, you greasy, tobacco-eating, cigarette sucking, swearing, lid-eared, bald-headed, spindle-shanked spasm of Satan.—Exit.

Menace To Health

Who would have thought that the tin can is a menace to the public health? The experts say however that discarded tin cans containing rain water are breeding places for the mosquito which is the most active agent in spreading malaria. A hole in the bottom of each can might have to be made for the saving of a human life. Certainly it would have been assisted in preventing a deficiency. Many cans Frank Grove Hill is standing for have no business also if the proper new airman. And if we must decorate our back yards, let's be so it that the can has a hole in the bottom.

Keep Your Bowels Regular

Hides May Be Candidate.

The Kentucky political correspondence of the Cincinnati Enquirer had the following to say Sunday's issue:

"State Senator J. Breckenridge Hines has about made up his mind to enter the race for the Democratic nomination for congress in the Ninth District, if he should not be suffering from a severe attack of the grippe. Certainly it would have within the next two or three days. Representative D. H. Smith, who is standing for reconstitution and opposing Representative Ollie James, W. Reed Morehead and State Senator Howard Williams. Stanford Journal.

"Senator Hines probably will be the only candidate from the lower end of the district. W. J. Brandstett, Catoosa, had the governor's ear for consideration for some time, but it is said he has decided to stay out of the fight and may be for Hines, who is seeking Senator Alice W. Young's support notwithstanding that Judge Hines is an official of Judge Young's home county.

"Senator Williams is relying most upon the support of the agricultural and labor elements. Representative Builds, in addition to the organization he has built up through his three terms in Congress, will have support of former State Chairman E. H. Vanzant and his connection in the upper end of the district. It promises to be a highly interesting race. Judge Riley has notified his opponents that he will at least make a first speech in the campaign at West Liberty, Monday, March 20, and that he has selected them be letter to be present on that occasion.

For Women Only

March 11th, 1916.

To The Editor.

Within the past few months a dozen lingerie Bureau has been started in Cincinnati for the purpose of recommending suitable Boarding and Lodging Houses to young women strangers in the City. Her records show that there are numerous young women from our city, who come to Cincinnati in search of employment, and your paper would kindly call attention to the existence of this Bureau. It will be useful in directing them to us when they arrive.

Miss Annette Mason, the Executive Secretary of the Consumers League, a National organization for the improvement of industrial conditions for women, is in charge of the Bureau and is endeavoring to make it useful to women in many ways. Yours respectfully,

Civil Service Examination

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an open competitive examination for rural mail carriers at Carlisle and other vacancies as they occur. Applicants must be at least 18 years of age, with an allowance of one year for each year of service in the military or naval service of the United States, not exceeding four years in all. Examination will be held at Carlisle on April 8. Further information may be obtained from the secretary of the local civil service board at the postoffice.

You will find CERTAIN-TEED affording equal protection from the snow and ice of the Arctic, and the sun and rain of the Tropics. It is literally "the roof of the world."

Making roofing is the General's chief business. He makes one-third of all the roll roofing made in America—thirty-nine other manufacturers make the balance. Such predominance is due to the General's ability to make the highest quality roofing at the lowest cost.

Every advantage that men, money, mills and machinery can offer is used to increase production, maintain quality and lower the cost. The result is that today CERTAIN-TEED, the world's best quality, costs less than inferior roofing cost ten years ago.

CERTAIN-TEED is made of the best quality long fibre thoroughly saturated with a scientific blend of soft asphalts, the formula of the General's board of expert chemists. It is then coated with a blend of harder asphalts, which keeps the inner saturation soft and prevents the drying-out process so destructive to ordinary roofing.

CERTAIN-TEED is guaranteed for 5, 10 or 15 years, according to ply (1, 2 or 3). Experience proves that it lasts longer.

CERTAIN-TEED is made in rolls; also in slate-surfaced shingles. There is a type of CERTAIN-TEED for every kind of building, with flat or pitched roofs, from the largest sky-scraper to the smallest residence or out-building.

CERTAIN-TEED is sold by responsible dealers all over the world at reasonable prices. Investigate it before you decide on any type of roof.

PROP

A Cryptogram

By F. A. MITCHEL

It is said that "all's fair in love and war." Whether or not the adage be true, this story is an illustration of Dr. Imogene Blair, a county leader of eighteen and the idol of her parents. Imogene's decision as to whether she should accept Frank Shackleford as a husband was the only reason why she hesitated. Big chance to get a real estate opportunities' come infrequently. Big chance to get a nice home on the best pike in the world for a very low price. Only $5,000 MIGHT get it.

HURRY.

Here's MONEY—Big Money—for the Man Who Wants! 117 acres, two houses, two splendid barns, 100 acres tobacco land, 2 1-2 miles from Millersburg, right in the middle of that famous Red Sill District—halfway between Millersburg and Bowden—and Hillsboro and Ruddles Mills. Will make a fortune by quick action to buyer, who must be diligent, honest, economical, and when he stood in the middle of the balcony and gave orders by clapping his hands who thought him a god.

Imagine, notwithstanding all this extraordinary attractiveness, a Miss Shackleford, and there lived in the world seventy men and could not find her father, a hotel headed by Caroline to Send Mr. Hines. Shackleford had hoped she would marry him, but she had refused him flat. He was not at all slowly as a rhetorical figure, and she was not the kind of woman who did not know her own mind. Besides, Shackleford's asthma explain general with his declaration.

John knew that he was the favorite of the entire family, and he had decided to await himself of this opportunity. He had proposed to Miss after her daughter's engagement and showed him a piece of poetry which was written "M. L. B. 1. 2. 17" and asked him to explain what it all meant. Miss Caroline had told him that it was considerate of a lady friend to write with the initials, showed it to him, and, without delay, he was informed that it was unable be said.

"I think it's a love message. The first two letters, O. L., probably stand for O, Laura. I'll be the sixth letter in the alphabet. So we have O, Laura, I, the second letter in the next letter, and we must fill in after we have found the 'L' in the twenty-first letter of the alphabet, or just the whole word. Why, it's easy, I—you." Quite likely the latter B is the initial letter for the word love in some other language than English.

"Just what I thought," said Mrs. Blair, and without stopping to give the young man a chance to confirm that she was chuffing her she whisked out of the room.

Now, when Shackleford had visited Imogene one evening he had taken a bunch of letters from his pocket in order to read some of them to her and a few of which he had slipped from among those letters in the dark. Imogene, as it fell, so that it lay under the sofa on which the couple were sitting. It would had picked it up the next morning and handed it to the young lady. The most easily excited emotion in the breast of a young lover is jealousy. Imogene felt sure that her former had deceived the poor man with whom she was now engaged, and that the letters and figures given above were a code by means of which he managed to a friend. She showed them to her father, who found it convenient to agree with her. Mr. Blair promised to decipher the cryptogram and called to John Stebbins to help her. Whether or no she believed his flimsy interpretation is not known, but certainly she seemed to consider it so. Taking the paper back to her daughter she gave the meaning John had put upon it.

Imogene was much affected. She told her mother that she would write a correspondence that would be a satisfactory explanation, and she would break the engagement. Mrs. Blair told her that Shackleford would doubtless trump up an explanation and begged Imogene to act with sound, unwilling kind. After a long struggle, in which the mother strove to convince the daughter that Shackleford wanted her only for the wealth she would inherit, Imogene was prevailed upon and wrote him a note breaking with him without writing giving any reason.

So this was the evidence on which this conspiracy was based! Shackleford took advantage of the new year, February, to which he had set for their marriage, to slip the letter in the hot weather. Since then Imogene had met and they found Shackleford engaged to a girl whose first name happened to be Laura, with a fortune to her credit.

This was conclusive proof to Imogene that the paper she had discovered was a cipher love letter. Partly to show the accused Shackleford that she did not love him and partly from the dress of common sense which she accepted John Stebbins.

Some days after this Imogene John received his wife as to her affair with Shackleford. She produced the cryptogram. John looked at it curiously, forgetting that he had ever seen it before.

"What is it?" asked his wife.

"The combination of a safe lock," he replied.

"Turn from zero to 6, then right to 12, left to 17."

"Oh, my goodness gracious!"

But Imogene lived to be thankful that she had turned down a dancer for a practical business man and did not mind the way in which the scale had been turned in favor of the latter.

Tell Others To Have Confidence

He Knows How The Try, Try Again Again Spirit Finally Wins Out

"I suffered extremely with pains in my back and my nerves were in a very bad condition," said Mr. Francis M. Randles, a fireman of the L. & N. office building. "I live at 1031 Fehr Ave., Louisville and have made a special trip to this store to see you." This above statement was made to the Tanlac Man who is introducing Tanlac at Taylor & Isaac's Drug Store, 3rd & Jefferson.

"Yes," continued Mr. Francis, "my appetite was gone and I was so nervous that I could sleep only a few hours at a time. I tried several medicines but none did me any good. You know how I have been confined to my work after he has tried every thing he can think of and was about to quit—better for a day or so until the effects of the medicine die and you are right back again where you started.

"It is no wonder that every body in this city is not taking Tanlac. It is simply because they have not given Tanlac a fair trial. If they only take the first bottle of Tanlac how thankful they will be how their confidence will be restored. If the people of Louisville all knew what I know about Tanlac they would try it by the dozens and this would be the most healthy city in the world. I cannot comprehend it enough.

We believe Tanlac is giving the people of Louisville a new idea of medicine," said the Tanlac Man. "Tanlac is purely a vegetable compound which supplies the blood and nerves with food. It produces strength, vitality, health-fulness."

Tanlac is now being specially introduced at the Turesman-Gray Drug Co., Carlisle, Ky., where it is being explained to scores of people daily.

Tanlac may be obtained in Millersburg at W. D. Waddell's; Paris at Ardery Bros.; Hillsboro at Conner & Son; Moorefield, Moorefield Mercantile Co.; Ewing, W. T. Grover; Carlisle, R. R. Having just printed and delivered our latest revised directory, we most respectfully urge that Carlisle is now too large to continue the old-fashioned way of calling by names instead of by number. This is not mentioned for the reason that we are not accommodating, which idea might be conceived by some, but because experience has taught us that calling by number is the only way of handling the business in the most quick and efficient service.

If you cannot find the number with which you wish to communicate, or if you wish information regarding any number or names you find, or do not find in the book, call Chief Operator, who will cheerfully give you the information or connect you with the Manager who will always lend a helping hand.
