PROMISES KEPT, SAYS PRESIDENT

It is not a future to be afraid of. It is, rather, a future to stimulate and enlist us in the finest of the hopes that are in us. We may enter it with confidence, for we know that we understand it, and we have provided ourselves with the means and sources of understanding it.

And look! Look at the lot we are not afraid of! Look at the men who are not afraid! Look at the days to come! Look at the men who are not afraid! Look at our part in what is to be done! Look at the opportunities! For we must be prepared both to receive and to profit.

There must be a just and settled policy with regard to the industries which constitute the full force of our enterprise and of our industry as a whole, to the organization of that power upon worldwide foundations that cannot be shaken. No nation should be left shaken. No nation should be left to struggle alone to say quietly in which its own honor and integrity and the fortunes of its own people are involved, but no nation can say wisely that it cares nothing what happens to any other nation or to the peace of the world. The effect of war can no longer be confined to the peoples who are at war. No nation stands wholly apart to interest when the life of the world as a whole is at stake. Neutrals are drawn into confusion and distress. The only way to escape them is to be resolved, if the healing and compelling forces of peace are to be evolved when peace comes again, to new standards of justice and fairness, ship must be generated by means the world has never tried. And the test time of the world must not be like the test time of the past. We must be ready to sustain the whole world's life while the seats of disturbance are cooling and settling, before it is attempted to set up the new foundations the new structure. We must be ready to see the future as circumstance and interdependence permit rather than as we might wish. That is more than justice. That is the very embodiment of it.

I have not spoken especially, gentlemen of the Congress, of the work you have on hand, but it has been much in my mind. I shall take it up with you to-morrow morning in the regular course of business. The United States does not wish to hurry any of the great tasks of peace and progress. It is not in haste to put its own business affairs in order that it may take up the interrupted tasks of the world and assume its proper place in the new life of the world that is to be. But it does wish to see the field cleared and the work of definite preparation begun. It realizes that the new life of the world must be built upon the firm foundation of the principles of right and justice and fair play which lie at the heart of all enlightened systems of law and all governments that are genuinely free. It realizes that the principles of peace must be organized and safeguarded as well as established and that the seed of war in the systems of the world must be eradicated. It realizes that the principles of peace cannot be established except as the standards of right are established, except as coercion is taken away from the hands of those who would wrongfully use it for their own aggrandizement or selfish purposes. It realizes that the basis of peace is the community of power and the unity of purpose of those who love justice more than they love anything else in the world.

We are ready to give proof of our purpose. We have been privileged to lead in the concert of peace. We should be not free as we have not been to act in the confidence that, throughout the nation, that first choice of the people will be accepted as a free and powerful guide and assistance as we meet the many problems which in effect if not in purpose, sought to confront us. We are ready to co-operate with those whose action now is to be chief in the days of change and test. We are ready to lend our efforts and our counsel to any thing that promises peace and justice and the happiness of mankind.

We hold very definite ideas. We have a very definite policy to which we are sure the people of the United States will support us. We shall not be obliged to withhold our hand or conceal our purpose or principles in order to get the public favor. We shall not be obliged to compromise with those who do not love justice for its own sake. We shall not be obliged to trim our sails to every passing wind that blows. We shall not be obliged to keep silent when we ought to speak. We shall not be obliged to act upon principles we do not approve. We shall not be obliged to withhold our support from those who do act upon principles we approve. We shall not be obliged to hesitate to say what we think of those who do not act upon principles we approve. We shall not be obliged to pretend friendship for governments we do not trust. We shall not be obliged to act upon any other principles than those we have always professed to act upon. We shall not be obliged to do anything we have always declared we would not do. We shall not be obliged to do anything we have always declared we would do. We shall not be obliged to do anything we do not believe to be right. We shall not be obliged to do anything we do not believe to be right. We shall not be obliged to do anything we do not believe to be right.

COMMENT

The report of State Inspector and Examiner, Nat B. Sewell, upon the expenditures, business methods and conditions connected with the building of State Aid roads in Nicholas county is published elsewhere in this issue.

Regarding the statement that the work had been completed on two miles of the Blue Lick road at the time the examination was made, local officials state and the record shows that at that time 5 miles of this road had been finished and only 2 miles remained to be completed. On August 24 the record, which was published in The Mercury of that date, showed that 6 miles had been completed on the East Union road as a cost of $19,052.42.

County Treasurer, Harry Kennedy, desires us to state that the error of $1,789.34 referred to in the State Inspector is available. was composed of items regarding which there was some uncertainty as to the proper account to which the orders should be charged. These items were rectified by Mr. Kennedy himself, at the time of his settlement with the Fiscal Court last April.

An unknown man, going home with his Saturday night jag, fell and happened in a cattle in his pocket, stamped for the land dropped it on the corner of Limestone and Main streets Saturday night. Then enters mystery into the story. Nobody knows how the bottle broke, but it caught on fire and such a big fire! Another curious gathered that a traffic cop had to disband the crowd.

Lexington Leader.

Whadda you mean, disbursed? Is that the way cops treat folks in Lexington?

Judge Mitchell and County Road Engineer, Norton, went to Frankfort Tuesday to ascertain when the State Aid funds due the county would be available. Judge Mitchell stated to The Mercury Wednesday that the money would be paid to the county by the State in December and that the road work will continue.

When Judge Mitchell ordered Arcelius Crouch and Harve Lamon, colored, confined in the county jail on a charge of gambling, to be put to work on the roads, he was severely criticised. Judge Mitchell ordered that they be given an opportunity to think it over.

Saturday was the coldest September 16th on record, the temperature for the day was 50 degrees, the highest being 64, and that was nine degrees below the normal for the day. The coldest on Sept. 16th on record was in 1904, when the thermometer registered 43 degrees.

Five-thousand cattle were on the market at Mt. Sterling Monday. Prices $7 to $7.40.

Miss Yancey Appointed

Miss Jessie Yancey, County Superintendent of Mason county, has been appointed on the Textbook Commission by Gov. Stanley to succeed Mrs. Desha Breckinridge, of Lexington, resigned.

Mose Feltner Killed

Mose Feltner, for more than fifteen years a prominent figure in the Eastern Kentucky Feud, was killed near Harland, Ky., Sunday night by United States Marshal G. A. Sizemore.

STATE INSPECTOR SEWELL REVIEWS OUR ROAD WORK

Finds That Force Account Work Has Been Too Expensive Says Stricter Supervision Is Needed In Work.

The following is the report of State Examiner Nat B. Sewell on the expenditures, business methods and conditions connected with the building of State Aid roads in Nicholas:

MILEAGE AND COST

At the time of this examination, 30 miles were completed or at a cost of approximately $101,000, or $3,366 per mile.

The Maysville-Carlisle road is completed for a distance of 9.429 miles, at an average of $3,423.88 per mile. The estimated cost of completion is 25,000. About 4 miles has been completed at a cost of $6,267.60 or an average of $2,040.67. The estimated cost of completion is $3,560. The Barter-Williamsburg road is completed, but has been resurfaced by contract does not exceed $11,985.64, with the exception of the bridges The Carlisle-East Union Road, 7 miles in length, is being resurfaced by contract does not exceed $11,985.64, with the exception of the bridges The Carlisle-East Union Road, 7 miles in length, is being resurfaced by contract at a cost of approximately $101,000, or $3,366 per mile.

The building of roads by the force account plan has proven unnecessarily expensive in Nicholas County, as it has proven in other counties where comparison has been made of the force account plan and the contract plan. Ample evidence appeared to the Examiner that both money and time were injudiciously expended in the force account work that would not have been tolerated under the contract plan. While the Examiner did not find evidence to indicate that any of the public charges of willful misappropriation, by the Fiscal Court, it is undoubtedly true that much of the unnecessary expense could have been avoided if the Fiscal Court had sought more diligently and had used the knowledge and experience of the State Road Department, as well as that of other counties, in planning and in executing a system of road work for the county.

Mr. Harry Kennedy, Cashier of the Farmer's Bank of Carlisle, has served as Treasurer of the road fund since the beginning of the present system. In checking the accounts the Examiner found that Mr. Kennedy has kept no books or records of his own accounts in the individual ledger of the bank. This was strongly criticised by the Examiner and both the Treasurer and Fiscal Court should require him that a cash book and other records necessary to a complete system of accounting should be kept hereafter. Though the records of the Treasurer were found to be correct, a complete check of his account was made. The Examiner found items aggregating $1,789.34 charged to State Aid Road Fund, accounts that should have been charged to other funds. These items were brought to the attention of the County Judge and County Clerk, and it was suggested that it was possible to determine whether these clerical errors were made by the Treasurer or by some of the employees of the bank who have assisted in his work.

All State aid road funds have been deposited in bank to the credit of the Treasurer and the banks allow 2 per cent. interest on the daily balance. This account has been open continuously over a year and has earned more than $1,500.00 interest, but, due to this date, no interest has been paid to the county and no interest has been made. This is extremely poor business management and should not be permitted. Mr. Kennedy, as the fact that the County is paying 5 per cent. interest on the bonds and that the banks are getting the profit of the deposits of the funds on bonds and paying only 2 per cent. for the same, it certainly is incumbent upon the Fiscal Court to give attention to the location and proper disposition of this interest. There is no reason why the interest on the balance should not be paid either to the County or semi-annually.

The examination shows that Mr. Kennedy, as Treasurer, has properly accounted for all moneys coming into his hands, and that he has executed, as surety to the bonds, the proper bonds required by law and has paid and properly collected all moneys due the county.

The examination shows that in every county building State Aid roads, where it would have been wise in the first year's work of road building, and, certainly, before practically all of the bond issue has been expended to

Mr. Rodman Wiley, State Road Commissioner, is now engaged in working out a system through which the State Road Department will be more accurately and fully informed of the expenditure of money and the progress of work in counties building State Aid roads. It contemplates a uniform value to Staff and county that county officials co-operate with every way possible toward a clear understanding of the work and accurate relationship between the representatives of county and state in the affairs of State Aid roads.

Respectfully submitted,
NAT B. SEWELL,
State Inspector and Examiner.

CARD FROM G. C. MYERS

"HON." JAMES MITCHELL:

After a hurried reading of your interesting article in the Advocate, in the short time before the paper goes to press, I will endeavor to reply as far as I can. It may not be as interesting a piece, not having the time nor the assistance of a Roland Attorney-ship, by the way, gets his office rent free in the Court House for some such things for rent, but I hope it will have one qualification I can boast of, brevity.

Your reason given for not appointing me road engineer is a big one and simple. My record in any way is as good as yours (and that is not saying much for it). My real reasons are: (1) I did not want the job and don't now. (2) I told that you would not appoint me because I did not vote for you, although I did as three times out of four—(3) Because I made an unsuccessful attempt to defeat you for the office of Sheriff. Last spring he would not free my membership of Lexington. You were trying to sell the job. In your article you say your memory is wonderfully bad as it has been in many other cases in connection with your Judicial acts and coupled therewith is a Waterloo complex. For example, I do not object to objecting to a newspaper controversy, for your official acts will not look too well under the spot light of a public investigation and again, if you cannot get any closer to the truth you should not attempt it again.

Your private attorneys and your political chicanery are of small importance to the people who have responsibility and ignorant squandering of the public funds. It concerns every taxpayer in the county and more especially the conversations will not clear your record of official stain of disgrace to the least of it—see Mr. Sewell's report. Your favorite Times for proofs of bond issue that we have to pass.

This paid insertion will close this controversy unless you want to discuss it further.

If one (1) cent had been put out at compound interest at the beginning of the Christian Era, there is not enough money in the world to pay the interest on the sum that would have amounted to till the present time for one year at 6 per cent. Would like if some of Miss Lizzie Gardner's expert mathematicians would try their figures on the above problem. Compound interest for 1916 years at 6 per cent.
