STICK TO FIRST PRINCIPALS

Don't Forget Your Fight Against the middleman and his toll.

You never could get a good price for your country butter because there were too many middlemen making a profit, and now since most of the producers have gone to selling cream they appear in the guise of the cream buyer and the middleman still gets the cream they buy while another one of the producers pocket.

Sell Your Cream Direct to the Tri-State Butter Company, Cincinnati, Ohio—the Time-tested Market of Over 20,000 Producers.

Your money is SURE—your shipment SAFE. No shipper ever lost a dollar dealing with the Tri State, and every one is guaranteed against loss or damage in transit.

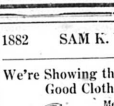
THE CARLISLE MERCURY.

ESTABLISHED 1867--OLDEST NEWSPAPER IN NICHOLAS COUNTY

VOL. I— CARLISLE, NICHOLAS COUNTY, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, APRIL 12, 1917. NUMBER 15

COMMENT



Believe only half that you hear and nothing that you hear someone else has heard about reasonable interest rates. Honor is a dirty bird, whose filth increases as she flies.

Lady Walnut Hall, the industrious little Lexington lass, whose sparkling record is nearing the hundred mark, without a day missed, will celebrate her first birthday today. We suggest congratulations.

We hope that those of our subscribers who have but yet read the President's address to Congress will read it now. It is published on page two of this issue of THE MERCURY. Wouldn't if ever so splendid an address be made by an American, not even excepting Lincoln's Gettysburg oration. For the beauty of its diction alone it will be immortal. We suggest that that is the word in the English course of the upper classes at the local high school this spring. We know that every school boy is tip-toed will read it in years to come.

On the second roll call, Miss Rankin, the first woman Congressman, arose and in a sobbing voice said: "I want to plead by my country, but I can't vote for war." For a moment she remained standing, supporting herself against a desk, and as cries of "vote, vote," came from several parts of the House, she sank back into her seat without voicing audibly the word required by the negative.

Where was the woman, God bless her, and may she be ever thus true to her woman's sympathies, and may the ever ring out of Congress and Senates and keep herself the unsullied personification of all that is tenderest and best in life.

The magnificent address of President Wilson, month installed, has been published in the German press. It has called forth a storm of abuse from German editors of the official organs of the Kaiser. Especially do these editors ridicule the distinction drawn by the President at between the German people and the Hohenzollern dynasty. That is the point we warranted in drawing this distinction; that we are casting our lot on the side of liberty and democracy against absolutism, let the world be the judge. Besides her husband, the Kaiser himself prove. The Kaiser's own analysis of the German government is as follows:

First—He has Emperor and King by divine right, by the direct election of God.

Second—The State is my property, to be used by me justly, but with absolute freedom from interference, criticism or advice.

Third—The weapon of the government, the army, is entirely my own, and that no other hand touch it.

Fourth—I make myself as the chosen instrument of God and as such perform my duties as Regent and Sovereign. Consequently, whatever said, I, not, as the Kaiser Monarch, as given to me direct from Heaven, by the grace of God, have been called by the Supreme Ruler, and in order to feel sure of this country, I am the sole ruler. I oppose me I shall crush to pieces."

Not long before, addressing a regiment of the Prussian Guard, the Kaiser said:

"And here my grandfather, again, by his own right, set the Prussian crown upon his head, once more emphasizing the fact that it was accorded to him by God. We of God alone and to Him alone are responsible for our actions, and that he (the Kaiser) considered himself as the chosen instrument of God and as such performed his
