Happenings of the World Tersely Told

European War News

An Amsterdam dispatch says that eleven German torpedo boats and nine layers that were left in the Ameryland harbor have been interned in a Dutch port.

• • •

An Edinburgh dispatch says that Admiral Sir Cecil Burney, commander of the German fleet had been dismissed at the appointed place was: "The Lord and Reg ht to be hauled down at 5:07 and is not to be hoisted again without permission." Germany as a naval power, ceased to exist Thursday. The least of her mighty fleet—14 ships of line, seven light cruisers and 50 destroyers surrendered to an armada of 370 ish, American and French vessels, the greatest fighting force that ever sailed the seas.

• • •

French troops under command of General Henry entered Budapest. It is believed that French troops have arrived at Constantinople.

• • •

A London dispatch says that an German light cruiser while on the way across the North sea, with other warships of the German high seas fleet to surrender to the allies struck a mine. The warship was badly damaged and sank.

• • •

The armistice terms accomplished when Marshal Foch, commander in chief of the French armies, entered Metz, the great stronghold of Lorraine and the pivot of Germany's effort to crush France, may be said in more than any other happening to consecrate the victory of the allies in this war.

• • •

The American troops entered their first actual battle on the western front in September, says a dispatch from the front. The march took the doughboys through streets filled with cheering people and down streets lined with American flags.

• • •

Twenty German submarines are berthed in the Firth of Forth, Scotland. They were the first unit to surrender in compliance with the armistice terms and were escorted into port by British naval vessels.

Foreign

A London dispatch says traffic and business in the streets of Petrograd, Moscow and Archangel are reported interrupted. Strife and disorder in these cities are said to be the scenes of another revolt.

• • •

The Turkish government, according to a Berlin dispatch, has formally demanded from the German revolution ary government the extradition of Enver Pasha and several Turkish generals who fled to Germany after the overthrow of the pseudo Talaat Pasha and the present armistice terms for the Armenian atrocities.

• • •

Lord Robert Cecil, undersecretary of state for foreign affairs in Lloyd George's has resigned. The cause is declared to be a disagreement with the premier in regard to the disestablishment of the Welsh church.

Washington

A Brest dispatch says the city has been had a week of rejoicing as the armistice there have the same appearance of a celebration as the day during the war with the exception of the absence of newspapers. The latter will not appear again in France for a week, but could not be aware that this has been the stern course of a gigantic political upheaval.

• • •

The Ukrainian government has been overthrown by a counter revolution, according to a Berlin dispatch, according to Kiev dispatches to the German capital. The new government is composed of men who are for peace at any price, and a provisional government has been established by a group of the city whose the troops appointed by Hetman Skoropadski, leader of the anti-Bolshevist forces.

• • •

Arrangements have been made for the Hungarian delegation to the peace conference at war from Austria and her enemy to Italy by July 1, it is declared.

• • •

A correspondent in London learns that the British government proposes to call a conference of ministers of the British dominions throughout the peace conference.

• • •

Up to October 31, 1,500,000 German soldiers were killed, and the number in 200,000 was not known, the Netherlands Minister of War reported to the Dutch Second Chamber. Total German losses for 1,250,000 men by September. The newspaper adds that there were 600,000 German prisoners on October 31.

• • •

A Copenhagen dispatch says German newspapers report that the united workers' and soldiers' council have been proclaimed Oldenburg, Brunswick, Bremen, Hamburg and Schleswig-Holstein a republic. The capital will be at Hamburg.

• • •

President Wilson is expected to arrive in Paris about December 5, according to information in that city. Plans are being made for the entertainment of the American president as the guest of the allied rulers who will be in Paris in November and December.

To Locate Missing Cylinder.

Officers in search of rebel valves to see if a cylinder is missing is not always a reliable guide, according to a writer in an engine. Feed plenty of good oil and you will frequently get a hint of the trouble through the valve. From what you thought was a good cylinder.

Licensed in 1905.

In Chicago drivers of motor vehicles were first licensed in 1905, the fee being $3 for the first year and $1 for renewals.

The French senate at Paris by passed unanimously the motion already adopted by the chamber of deputies, paying homage to President Wilson on "having deserved well of humanity."

• • •

A plot to swamp Spain with bolshevist agitators has been nipped in the bud by the Spanish authorities, according to Madrid advices.

• • •

The greatest panic on the Berlin bourse in three years occurred when it was reported that the entente in the armistice terms would wrest the German fleet from the local authorities, according to a Berlin dispatch from Copenhagen.

• • •

Dr. Thomas Masaryk, first president of the newly created republic of Czecho-Slovakia, sailed for Liverpool on the British steamship Carmania, according to a dispatch by the Zurich correspondent.

• • •

Philipp Scheidemann, according to a Berlin dispatch, has resigned as minister of finance in the New German provisional government and his place has been taken by Herr Landsberg, secretary of publicity, art and justice.

• • •

A Berne dispatch says the bolshevist forces have interned Prince Leopold of Bavaria, commander of Germany's eastern front, and General von Hoffmann, Germany's military spokesman at Brest Litovsk.

U.S.—Teutonic War News

The German frontier was crossed at several places by American signal corps detachments, according to Paris advices. Short lines were run into Rimogne, Prussia, where the inhabitants were reported to have shown the Americans every consideration.

• • •

With General Pershing the American commander-in-chief, at her side, the youthful grand duchess of Luxemburg entered Luxemburg city, received in Luxemburg, marched the American march into the capital.

• • •

Progress of the American Third army across the duchy of Luxemburg has taken on the nature of triumphal entry into Germany, says a dispatch from the front. The march took the doughboys through streets filled with cheering people and down streets lined with American flags.

• • •

Twenty German submarines are berthed in the Firth of Forth, Scotland. They were the first unit to surrender in compliance with the armistice terms and were escorted into port by British naval vessels.

Domestic

A New York dispatch says fifteen thousand persons, including 296,795 gowns, were lost by the Canard line during the year. Of these, all except two were cleared on war issues, having been sent to the war zone.

• • •

A million letters from "our boys" in France were delivered at the post office of "the folks at home" reached New York on the French liner Rochambeau.

• • •

Railroad experts are reporting on the entire western system of railroads, the government's control of all railroads. They will also ask Director General Hines to recommend its permanent disposition. Business agents of western railroads in session at Chicago will hold a conference at Chicago to work out a similar program.

• • •

Suit against the government is demanded by Clarence H. Mackay, president of the Postal Telegraph company of New York, if a decision of the Western Union and the Postal is adjudged unconstitutional.

• • •

Infamous has become out at the state colony for epileptics, near Union, Illinois, according to Superintendent Dr. Ollie Anderson, 35, are dead and four others in dangerous condition. H. B. Anderson, superintendent, is also seriously ill.

• • •

Wounded soldiers whose homes were in Iowa, Illinois, Missouri and Northern Michigan, returned to this country for hospitalization, will be sent to the United States Army hospital at West Baden, Ind.

• • •

Lenroot suggests that $100,000,000 be taken from the special appropriation for the war department and $100,000,000 from the navy department to be used at Washington in accordance with its recommendation for the 1919 navy appropriation bill.

• • •

Consideration of the services of the Red Cross in the war and the disposition of equipment under government control will be taken up by the Red Cross council in session at Washington on December 3.

• • •

A $100,000,000 reduction in the new war revenue bill was made by the senate finance committee at Washington in revising the measure drawn by the house ways and means committee. The 1919 proposed by Secretary Meeker.

• • •

Reorganization of the various bureaus through war department orders, affecting transfer of contracts, are estimated to save $1,250,000,000 by Secretary Baker in a statement to the senate at Washington by Senator Martin of Virginia, democrat, in support of the senate plan to limit war profits.

• • •

More than 150,000,000 silver dollars have been taken from the treasury at Washington in the last few days, the numbers and metal including for an issue of 350,000,000 silver dollars, the issue to expedite the retirement of $346,000,000 of greenbacks and treasury notes.

• • •

President Wilson is expected to arrive in Paris about December 5, according to information in that city. Plans are being made for the entertainment of the American president as the guest of the allied rulers who will be in Paris in November and December.

• • •

Vacuum Tank Failure.

When the vacuum tank fails on the road, it is possible to get up enough pressure temporarily to feed the fuel by blowing in the main fuel line. By opening this pressure every quarter of a mile, enough fuel will be fed to the car to a garage where repairs can be made.

• • •

For Lost Cauliflowers.

A very good leather dressing is composed of equal parts of glycerin and sweet oil.

AMERICAN EDITORS ARE GUESTS OF ROYALTY IN GREAT BRITAIN

Journalists Are Entertained by King George and Queen Mary at Sandringham—Worry About Clothes Is Soon Set at Rest—King Upsets the Arranged Program and Has a Bully Day With His Visitors.

London.—The American editors on tour of England were notified, after a visit to Stratford-on-Avon, of the royal invitation and of their attendance upon various political functions. Then King George and Queen Mary would be graciously pleased to receive them at Sandringham, on October 15 and 16. It was intimated that it was a most unusual occurrence for the monarchy and his court preferred to observe its traditions and keep the people strictly to themselves, apart from the formalities of receiving visitors from the country and even the foreign day, at least.

Sandringham is the summer home of royalty, about one hundred miles from London on the eastern coast near the sea. It had been acquired and developed by King Edward, and was his favorite retreat, the location of his first racing stable and the birthplace and home of his widow, Queen Alexandra. The first group of editors and magazine and periodical editors and writers, through a coincidence, were the first guests also included in the royal command. The second group, the magazine editors, big for his majesty his first personal visit to the sovereign's country home.

The editors were met at Liverpool and welcomed by those who arranged it, a secretarial and social staff in charge of the high interest of the king in the forthcoming visit of the editors. Then the courteously passed by hospitality and the editors were met at the station by the king's motor cars and escorted to the royal estate.

Gets Laugh Out of King.

The first news of the royal invitation was to throw the guests into a panic of worry about clothes. The magazine kind of dress needed for a court presentation, which has the journalists in a state of excitement. Then information, which has the journalists in a state of excitement. Then information, which has the journalists in a state of excitement. Then information, that it was to be no formal occasion, that the editors were expected to wear their ordinary business clothes, that everybody would be informally dressed, that the king would no doubtedly prefer to see his guests in their customary clothes, and the great fear was relieved.

Until the editors arrived at Sandringham in the park which each of the royal residences is surrounded, they were not informed of the number of the visit was most suspicious. Great herds had just come out of Germany and the effect might be decided to capitulate, after four years of fighting, and it was not to be supposed that the atmosphere of Sandringham would be one of celebration. There are no Sunday papers north. The editors of the London dailies, who are in touch with his own private information about the king's health, had reported that his ownership was limited to the first day of the visit, and the editors were quickly waited and forgotten in the excitement of the visit.

Sandringham is a noble estate with fine old trees, a beautiful park, a great greenery and sensational lakes and streams. The mansion is one of the finest of the royal residences. The king's own private apartments are in the left wing of the building, and the editors were assigned to the right wing. The king dwells, during his stay at Sandringham, in the center part of the house. Here he rests for several weeks in the summer—the pleasant hunting season —and here all the children of George and Queen Mary were born.

Made to Feel at Home.

A drive of about a mile through winding ways and over an attractive landscape brought the party to Sandringham. A functionary in a bright livery received the guests at the door. He was the royal footman in attendance upon the king's entourage took charge of certain groups of the editors and each appeared to be assigned to some the advantages and attractions of the great estate at its best. One editorial journalist asked half-a-dozen lords and ladies in turn what was the area of Sandringham, and all said they did not know. But they frequently referred all doubts by ruling that it is 15,000 acres.

York cottage is a plain farm dwelling of 15 or 20 rooms, of only moderate size, with a workshop or study for the king. If there were any special courtesies or superior there they were not seen. The equipment is furnished in a plain and modern manner, complete and in some respects elaborate, but there was nothing to suggest royalty with it.

There was a long tour afoot to the gardens and to the stables, both the particular hobby of King Edward. A page cart driven by the faithful Proctor, followed the company around. It was for the use of Queen Alexandra. The editors were entertained with the others and did not at any time appear to lose their interest in the scenes or in what they were seeing and seeing.

In the vicinity of the royal stables is a great statue of Persimmon, which won the Derby in 1896, and which was a part of the former king. He was bred and raised by the king, who was the owner of a splendid horse. In the stables the editors were shown the stalls of 40 attendants who brought them out for exhibition. Each horse was named and the editors were permitted to caress the horses. Among the horses was the favorite of the queen, which she rides frequently. In all, there must be 100 fine horses in the stables. The favorite of the stud is "Friar Marrum," which won the Derby in 1915