RUSS NOBLEWOMAN DESCRIBES ATROCITIES OF THE BOLSHEVIKI

Hundreds of Persons Tortured in the Most Inhuman Fashion Before Being Put to Death and Their Estates Pillaged and Mansions Razed—Thousands Die From Hunger All Over Country.

New York.—"We do not hope any more for the!"

The despair in which bolshevik misrule has reduced Russia is thus epitomized by a Russian noblewoman widowed by a bolshevik firing squad, who faced lock kept as from sharing their lot. I cannot describe the last days. After the arrival of the Germans a list was found of about a thousand persons, in which we were, who were to be killed by the bolsheviki.

"The reign of the Germans lasted exactly seven months; they vanished all our hopes, they accumulated the taxes upon taxes; carrying away all the food to Germany, leaving the people to die of utter hunger.

"No discipline, corruption, every thing was permitted to the soldiers. Only those who deliberately closed their eyes to evidence failed to see that a country thus plundered and so badly treated was not to remain long under their rule. But, alas! How many were killed!

"Then came the great catastrophe; the German troops fraternizing with the bolsheviki at the very beginning, fell to them cannon, war ammunition, and machine guns. Then the bolsheviki abandoned the cannon they left in the barracks, and became incapable of defending themselves, and were soon absolutely nothing.

Terror Rule Was Worse.

"Then, for another year the country was under the rule of terror, which was worse than the first time.

"Then came the Czechs from Chelnoe and Red Letten, who were terrible. They had by a hundred times more cruelty than the Germans. Our large city house was taken and occupied by a Czech officer, a Russian volunteate corps. M—— devastated our house, destroyed by a hundred shell, then by the Reds, whom the Czechs had driven out. Then by the white troops and the Finns, who were in their turn driven out.

"And I left everything.

"Last year our estate had suffered greatly from the bolsheviki, but I had not dependence to leave because they had not all have pillaged it. The Finns being more civilized shut the most horrifying things—pillagings, bronzes, antiques, etc., finally the last remaining pictures, the 11 servants' rooms were plundered. What they could not take away they destroyed or burned. So was not even a piece of furniture left, not a glass exist, and when our intendant complained that the commandant of the Theather, he answered him that nothing belonged to anybody, and that they had a right to have some souvenirs. The whites were not better, and the Finns, who were supposed to be our defenders? "Friends here obtained for us the permission to go to our estate, where we found two rooms in a family. We spent there a most miserable winter; we could see everything; there was no more any question of rent. The tax were running only for the German troops; it was then necessary to risk traveling by the inland ways, through dreadful roads and in constant fear in revolution, for when the Germans took possession of the provinces they took the order not to punish their friends, the bolsheviki. The latter were pursued by the Czech and the whites, with the people who had stolen and pillaged our properties. The bolsheviki executed them in order to hide executions and to protect us, naturally.

"After having parked in haste the objects remaining, we left our estate, caravan started at five o'clock in the morning. The roads and the fields were frightful.

"We arrived at Reval on the second of December. We were able to stay two weeks at our house, then a great lance we had to embark on the boat sent to Finland for the English, and we arrived at Helsingfors. Lamentable, the Finnish people were not at all hospitable, overwhelmed at all my poor husband."

Fortunately we found two rooms in a hospital; there we lived for two months, being often hungry, and when we could get some food it was exorbitant.

"The high prices of living in Finland are incredible. Imagine a pound of butter which ordinarily cost from five to fifteen francs, cost from one hundred to

LAUDS COOTIE EXPERIMENTS

Surgeon General Ireland Tells of Yanks Who Willingly Submitted to Inoculation.

Philadelphia.—A company of soldiers who faced death in a "battle of the bugs," to save the American army in France from trench fever, was lauded by Surgeon General Merritt W. Ireland at the Jefferson Medical college ninety-fourth commencement.

A class of 62 physicians was graduated. The degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon General Ireland and Major General Joseph Kuhn.

The "strong heroes," the surgeon general explained, "submitted themselves as volunteers for experiments with disease-bearing cootics to determine the cause of trench fever. The men survived the experiments."

Surgeon General Ireland said: "As a result of the experiments with this disease-bearing cootie the cause of the dread trench fever is transmitted by the bite of this insect. This led to the

GUILTY PROFITEERS TO BE PROSECUTED

GOVERNOR COX TAKES LEAD IN OHIO WHEN PROSECUTORS PLAN ACTION.

Power of Grand Juries Are Invoked By Cox—Procedure in Cincinnati Is Working Model—Governor Explains Steps in Hamilton County.

Western Newspaper Union News Service Columbus, O.—There was at the end of the meeting of Prosecuting Attorneys of Ohio with Governor James M. Cox and Attorney General John G. Price, called to consider possible criminal activity in the abnormally high prices of food and other necessities, two strains of talk. One of these was that the responsibility for prosecutions should be placed on the shoulders of the county prosecutors, and the other was that the Prosecuting Attorneys' association should ascertain the facts in the high cost of necessities and that the facts so ascertained should be presented to the grand jurors of the various counties for their consideration. The latter course was decided upon.

Governor Cox explained that he had no desire to usurp the authority of the prosecuting attorneys, but that he had been appealed to by a large number of citizens who had complained that they were unable to get relief from the high prices of food and necessities. He explained that he had no power to act in the matter, but that he was willing to call the grand jurors of the various counties together in special session if the prosecuting attorneys would request him to do so.

Resolution to Furnish Facts.

A resolution was then adopted by the prosecuting attorneys to the effect that they would call the grand jurors of their respective counties together in special session immediately after the November election, if the governor requested, and have them considered that, if they already have not the facts, they are obliged to ascertain them.

Concretely, the results of the meeting were:

1. Resolution by the Prosecutors to do everything in their power to prevent profiteering and combinations in restraint of trade, and to call the grand jurors together in special session for the purpose of investigations from findings after a special call is given by him.

2. Resolution to furnish to the public as much information as they can from their own inside knowledge, following the investigations of the grand jurors in their counties.

3. Agreement that there are moral as well as legal obligations in the matter and that sentiment be directed against profiteering by public opinion as well as by the law.

4. Branding of excessive prices by the public as "profiteering" and "robbery," against which there must be a public sentiment. Also that the publication of the facts and names of profiteers will have a deterrent effect.

5. Declaration by Attorney General Price that he believes existing laws are sufficient illegal acts which can be prosecuted, and that he will assist prosecuting attorneys in every way possible, short without any change in the present laws. Also that he believes that the penalties are more severe than the case of high prices, and that he will recommend that there be no change in them.

6. Exchange of ideas as to manner of procedure in getting evidence and bringing cases before the grand jury.

7. Discussion of the possible need of a uniform law to be recommended by the Prosecuting Attorneys Assn. H. Clay Caldwell, prosecuting attorney of Hamilton county, was appointed chairman.

8. Discussion of a plan for state or federal legislation to prevent profiteering if the attendant plan to enforce existing laws should fail. Also discussion of the power of the governor, if everything else fails, to call out the militia to the extent of using it with the food situation.

9. Agreement that federal food control laws are not to be relied upon to remedy the situation.

10. Discussion of the possible need of a law to prevent the hoarding of necessities until it is learned American citizens have them.

11. Discussion of the possible need of a law to enlighten the people of Michigan may swing into line.

Mayor Issues Request for Truce.

Mayor Galvin of Cincinnati, who was present, made a request that prosecutions be suspended to be danger centers. Governor Cox and Attorney General Price declared that they would not be influenced by Mayor Galvin's request. The decision to use troops to patrol the streets was left to the governor. Some was taken as a precautionary measure after Attorney General Price had made a round of the South Side saloon district and its environs. It was deemed necessary at the time that the Mayor's request for a truce in the state militia was not whether Governor Cox would call out the militia, but when he would call out the militia. The militia, they killed priests, doctors, nobles, merchants and their families, and their estates. They made several persons dig their own graves, and then shot them in the grave; a carriage was waiting to take away the wounds, and they were buried every one, breaking arms and legs, crushing skulls, and even the heads of intestines, gouging out the eyes, scratching the faces, and burying the wounded two persons alive.

"Twelve persons were so crushed under the dead that they only could be recognized. And all that is true!

"After the arrival of the Czechs we burned the doctors and the officers of the state which photographs of our estate.

"At Dvinsk, hundreds have been thrown into the river, and I have seen a element death compared with the others.

"Thousands die from hunger in all Russia; bolshevism rotten everywhere. We had hoped to be delivered by the Germans, and they have left us worse than ever for the allies. Now, as an officer, my husband was killed by the bolsheviki, and I am left without any support, and we did."

Russia is anxiously awaiting the help of the allies, for she alone cannot conquer the terrorizing bolsheviki."

Milwaukee.—After spending roads for ten years, Frank Dady, of Milwaukee, has received a fortune of $500,000 from Robert Dady, a millionaire, but he will continue his daily work as a driver of hooses just the same.

"My wife and I are happy in our present mode of living," he said.

Files Suit on Herself, Then Argues Her Own Case

Mrs. Alice Viola Parsons, a Denver beauty specialist, appeared before a jury in Judge R. W. Dunn's division of the county court in her own behalf in a suit she has brought against Mrs. Jessie M. Cox and Attorney General John G. Price, called to consider possible criminal activity in the abnormally high prices of food and other necessities, two strains of talk. SALTIMORE CATS VERY SICK

Evidently Exclusive Diet of Lizards Is Said to Agree with Fickle Digestive Apparatus.

Baltimore's domestic felines are staying John the Baptist roles with disastrous results.

Residents of the locust-infested section of the city are much interested and amused when they found the family cat taking to a diet of those atrocious insect visitors, and aided and abetted by whole families of kittens and the progeny of a reduced milch bill. Furthermore, it looked like the chance of saving the young fruit trees was about to dawn when Tabby's appetite failed.

But feather brittanet hope has fluttered. Tabby had not indulged enough in the delicacy to make her sick, but in a resourceful expansion was to be found the cause of the trouble. Tabby had eaten large quantities. By the time the cat had finished with lizard and lizzettes, gouging out the eyes, scratching the faces, and burying the wounded two persons alive.

LIVE STOCK PROBLEMS SOLVED UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION OF MARKETS

One Step in the Marketing of Live Stock—Cattle at the Stock Yards.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Live-stock markets of the United States are becoming completely organized, more efficiently conducted and better regulated than ever before, and more than almost any other class of marketing is being supervised by the government. In all other large enterprises, the live stock markets and meat-packing centers have created problems of supervision and regulation which have challenged the attention and that of the shippers of live stock. They say there is no longer room for profiteering among farmers and stockmen to be found in the marketing and feeding operations in due in large part to the knowledge that Uncle Sam is supervising the markets.

BETTER SHEEP CARE PAYS FLOCK OWNERS

Results Given of Demonstrations Held in Missouri.

Animals Given Highest-Priced Feed Returned Biggest Profit on Investment, Most Important Point to Remember.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Seven flocks of sheep demonstrations were held last year in Missouri—flocks owned cooperatively with sheep specialists of the United States department of agriculture and the state board of agriculture. They were conducted to determine the results of which, when they have got fixed their habits of life, they will be difficult to change. Then it is that the habit is established. The habit becomes for many failures in the world, and how she was sure that Grover Cary was he. he she never worried for him to get down for business and make himself acquainted with the better class of work.

But Grover didn't get down to business. He found himself somewhere whenever he tried to talk anything that he was interested in, and he was not interesting himself to the point of influencing himself. Lawmaking, in its first stages and as it affects you, is no different from selling insurance, passing an automobile or selling the best healthfulness in the presence of the other sex.

One morning Grover got out of bed with the determination to do two things. First, he had made up his mind to relief his fickleness that there was a lot of work to be done, and he was going to help it. Second, he had made up his mind that he would be certain to remember the settlement between the farmer and the grocer. Although who suffer as I did should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
