WILL GIVE COMFORT KITS.

Because of limited room on the transports the Army has now barred comfort kits from the personal baggage of soldiers. However, since these have furnished such real comfort and pleasure to our boys, the American Red Cross is arranging for as large freight shipments of these as possible to be distributed through its Foreign Associations. For these have made universal appeal. One lad writes another boy was so pleased at receiving one some shirts paste that had been slipped into the bag he drew. Another popular measure is sold of a package of cookies from the fair-haired sweetie with whom he corresponds. Not even as much as a toothbrush is the concession. When he was hauled a soldier let comb, brush, and even a toothbrush he by knew to borrow, and he immediately made a mental addiment from his next pay day to go to the American Red Cross, which had proved his friend in his hour of need

OUT OF MANY RACES RED CROSS MAKES ONE

One of the greatest services which the Red Cross is performing in this war is the unification of the many races of which America is composed through the Home Service, which, through its 16,000 committees, is looking after the welfare of the soldiers' families in every corner of the country. America has always been called the Melting Pot, and truly, but the process has been slow. The war has accelerated it. The Indiana of the west, the negroes of the south, the Italians and Eastern Europeans of our industrial centers, the Mexicans of the Southwest, Scandinavians and Swedes and Germans and Japanese and Icelanders—all are now enlisted under one flag, and are united heartily in the war because it was America's war and they are Americans.

That they feel this is patent to those who have seen and talked with these men. Witness the Italian, who in the assembly hall of one of our mobilization camps was waiting with a group of fellows to take the oath of allegiance. He stepped forward solemnly with tears in his eyes and with a vivid gesture pressed a corner of the American flag that hung over the desk to front of him to his lips. A group of native born soldiers who had been looking on with avowed indifference broke into applause and cheers. Proud then, are these soldiers were their brother Americans.

Both work as this is valuable not only for the morale of the men; it is binding the nation into one organic whole as it has never been bound before. To give concrete expression to this unity the Red Cross plans through its Christmas Roll Call, to be held the week beginning November 16, to increase its membership from 22,000, 000 to the limit of available membership. It wishes to give in this way notice to the world that every American, irrespective of creed or birth, stands behind the President unequivocally for the principles for which we have been fighting—that a new and indivisible pledged nation for honor and liberty and good faith.

SICK FOLKS HUSTLE FOR THE RED CROSS

Through the National Tuberculosis Association and the Journal of the Outdoor Life, fifty thousand members are going to help organized to get tuberculosis patients in every county in nation but every fellow "open cabaret" as a member of the Red Cross is enlisted in sending Red Cross Christmas Roll Call. Special campaigns have been organized in all of the large counties, of which there are nearly 3,000 scattered throughout the United States. Efforts will be made to enroll one hundred per cent. in each institution and also to go after all patients and enroll them as well. Every patient in the sanatorium will be responsible to get one more patient. The movement will be a contribution of the tuberculosis workers of the country to the Red Cross.

Since the National Tuberculosis Association and its affiliated agencies are being supported by the Red Cross through direct appropriation during the year 1918, the object of the tuberculosis patients in the sanatoria, or be on

RED CROSS AIDS FARMING IN ITALY

Through efforts of the American Red Cross scientific farming is now being taught the younger generation of Italy, thus eliminating considerable waste and replacing old-fashioned implements with modern American-made machinery.

Schools of agriculture have been established, and the Department of Civil Affairs of the American Red Cross, co-operating with a similar Italian organization, known as the "Comitato per gli Orfani de Combattuti Morti in Guerra," has opened a school of farming, conducted by Salesian Fathers, in Bella just outside the Porta Portese, one of the historic gateways of Rome.

The boys of the orphan, all orphans of peasant soldiers, are given training in scientific and practical farming, the object being to strengthen their attachment to the soil, also to instruct them in good and intelligent farming methods. Lectures and courses of instruction are accompanied by field work with modern implements. The direct supervision of the youngsters Fathers of the institution, who work side by side with the boys in the fields, teaching and demonstrating.

When the Soldiers Are Getting Well.

The convalescent soldiers are being cared for in Italy by the American Red Cross. There are sixteen hospitals already in operation and twenty-six others in process of construction. At these hospitals, in addition to the care of their wounds and their general health, the soldiers are being taught useful trades. There are typewriters sewing machines, and other facilities for making at each hospital, and the soldiers find that, in addition to occupying them with a useful trade while they are well, the use of these "toys" gives them hours of pleasure during the tedious period of getting well.

RED CROSS CARRIES TONS OF FOOD TO BELGIANS

American Red Cross trucks are now exactly in action along the Belgian front. This report of the work of these trucks was recently received by the Commission for Belgium:

"In the last two weeks we handled 300 tons of foodstuffs and a large quantity of delivered material.

"We have distributed to refugees in the shelled towns, Furnes, Adenkerke, Coxyde, La Panne, Adinkerke, Oost-Cappel, the Tragnar Farm, St. Jessie-Ghesse, and Zeebrugge. On occasion, when bombardments were in progress in the last named town has been shelled, but fortunately with out injuries to trucks or drivers."

For Better Drinking Water.

Because of the dangers for better drinking water in Italy the American Red Cross is manufacturing a large number of water sterilizers and distributing places which are to be turned over to the Italian military authorities at Rome and used according to their discretion.

GERMAN RETREAT BRINGS NEW WORK FOR RED CROSS

In Prezon the retreat of the German armies and the redemption of wide territory has produced a tremendous expansion of all Red Cross activities. The German retreat widens the systematic destruction not only of cities and villages, but of practically everything in the evacuated territory.

This has rendered necessary to provide at once for the housing of homeless refugees in the devastated areas and to the temporary reconstruction of villages. It will be necessary to provide also clothing, cloth and dressmaking supplies, sewing machines, in addition to foodstuffs and medical supplies, throughout all this territory.

With the coming again of winter, the fight against tuberculosis must be taken up with renewed energy. Seventy-six tuberculosis hospitals have been completed and are in operation, but requisitions have been made for nineteen provisional hospitals, all to be in operation before winter. The Red Cross has undertaken to equip to visit every lady in France, and to its estimated that 80,000 French ladies will have over, 40,000 of whom might have been served. One of the immediate objects of the Red Cross is to save those 40,000 ladies in 1918.

Shoes for Belgian Children.

Faced with the fact that Belgian children are no different from any other in their ability to wear out shoes, the American Red Cross, figuratively, has gone in the shoe manufacturing business at Limoges, France. It will endeavor to make shoes for all the children in the various colonies in France which it is maintaining.

THE EVERLASTING MERCY.

"For the sins of men God gave them repentance and for their wounds a healing balm.

"For the errors of men God gave them mercy and for their sorrows a great compassion.

"For the hate of men God gave them love and for their greed, the gift of sacrifice.

"And for the wars of men, which bring sin and sorrow, error, evil and greed, God gave them repentance and a healing balm, truth and a great compassion, love and the gift of sacrifice.

"And the symbol of these is the Red Cross."

This is the opinion of the "Red Cross" formulated by Hallie Alloa H. Silver of the Cleveland Training Class.

Experimental Red Cross Dairy.

The American Red Cross has established an experimental dairy at one of the base hospitals in France. The French government has loaned 1,000 cows for this purpose and it is expected enough milk will be produced to supply some 20,000 injured fighters daily. For army doctors agree that fresh milk is vital in the speedy convalescence of the wounded men.

THE HOME SERVICE IN ACTION AT THE UNION STATION, WASHINGTON, D. C.

RED CROSS TAKES HOME TO THE BOYS

The French soldiers have furloughs which they can spend at home. The English fighters go back to Blighty. But our boys have the ocean between them and home. They cannot come home on furlough, and it remains for the American Red Cross to try and take home to them.

This is particularly true in regard to the convalescent homes. Here all resources to hospital life is avoided. Games, games, books, social evenings and home-like surroundings help them to throw off the grim business of war until they are really able to recover. The homekeeper is a nurse, a mother, a woman, usually a widow, who looks after the comfort of her charges and helps them to pack up all hungary troubles in the old kit bag.

The American Red Cross now has six of these homes in operation.

AMERICAN GIRLS BRING CHEER TO WOUNDED.

"My wound hurts like h——, but I don't intend to pass up this chance to talk to an American girl."

This sentiment, voiced by an American soldier, reflected the feelings of many of his wounded comrades when they arrived in Paris after the recent German offensive drive north of Verdun, according to reports just received by the American Red Cross from workers in Paris. These reports, testifying to the wonderful cheerfulness of the wounded lads, say that many of them refused to continue their journey to the hospital until they had a chance to tell the American women in charge of the canteens.
