THOUGHT--THURSDAY.

Comic Wallace Reid in "Before Midnight." This is one of his best productions.

FRIDAY--"House of Hate," Pathe serial very interesting.

Saturday--Ray Stewart, in "Faith of Men." A good Western and a great comedy.

MONDAY--Douglas Fairbanks, in "Reaul in Morocco." Yet here's another good one.

TUESDAY--Ethel Clayton and Eugene O'Brien, in "Mother." This is some picture.

WEDNESDAY--Comes "In the Balance," with Earl Williams, who is a favorite.

NEXT THURSDAY--We are going to have the Kaiser and that American would and fight, could not fight, but nothing to fight with, and would take three years to train her soldiers. That picture will prove to you that the Kaiser is a fool, and that he has had a fool education and he knows not how to fight for America and for democracy with cold.

Mr. R. There is no fake in Uncle Sam's army. Everything is genuine. It is just what happened. We are going to show you pictures of the "Over There" and "Good Gosh" that the little English nurse who was shot in the Hun. Dates later.
