BEN SCOTT'S WAR STORY

for us and we were taken to meals and entertained in the homes of the wealthiest and most influential families of the city. Our money was no good for nobody would take it. If I remember right, I was presented a pistol—I was free to wander with American doughboys and we got it. Soft drinks, cigars, tobaccos, picture shows were all free for us and we had a wonderful time during our leave. On Thanksgiving Day a 100 handsome motors called at the hospital and were placed at our disposal to go where we pleased. All drivers refused to accept pay. I was given a superior leads to the home of the mayor of the city where at noon we ate dinner. That evening a Thanksgiving Dinner was given in our honor by the Y. M. C. A. entertainment. The following day I went famous actors and entertainers. After dinner we were given an especially arranged theatrical program in which many of the big stars of the stage and the singers of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Co. took part.

We spent ten days in New York, seemingly with everybody trying to outdo the other in being nice to us. In spite of the good time I was having I was glad when the time came for this time to proceed to Camp Merritt. We were heartily welcomed and I was glad that I was on the last leg of my journey back to My Old Kentuck Home. I had seen enough of the foreign countries. On my way back I experienced some very serious moments and unfounded fears that possibly all was not well with my relatives and friends back home. I left there over a year in 1913 and didn't know whether the little town had been washed away or not. Arriving in Camp Taylor on Dec. 19th, the first person I saw were my old friends Hugh Evans and Vibert Sewell from Carlisle. They had come to Louisville on about home and learned that my father, brother and other relatives were well and had kept fairly well reversed on my condition. Within a few days I was home and it was indeed a my pleasure at getting first hand news from the folks at home was unbounded.

Remaining at the Camp Taylor hospital for several months, I received a letter from Colonel Starling. It was the happiest and most welcome letter I had received in the world's mail and I was welcomed me by my old friends fully expired me for whatever I had undergone while in the army and at the same time I was given the opportunity to thank each and every one of them and assure them that the hospitality and warmth of their welcome will never be forgotten and that it meaning greatest reward I have ever had.

And now that my story is ended, let me answer this time, once and for all, a question that many have wanted to ask me—merely as a matter of curiosity but have not asked because of delicacy—and that is, how I got to be known. Yes, I got my title fastened a question of a doubt and most positively I know that during my participation in the war I killed more Germans than any other man in the world. In the number computed for by my rifle would reach four or five times that many but I KNOW I made four pay the supreme penalty for their dastardly crimes against humanity and their violation of the law of God, civilization and humanity. I am not sorry nor have I any qualms of regret. I merely did my duty, a plain duty and it is true that I never to have to go through the same ordeal again. I sincerely hope that there again between America and any other nation of the world who tries to discredit America and humiliate and disgrace upon Uncle Sam as Germany has done. I am ready to do my duty by going to shoulder that old Springfield again if they'll let me.

Took Medicines As Vinvin Grabs At Straw—Now Is Thankful He Was Warned In Time.

Paducah, Ky.—"Just as a drowning man grabs at every straw, so have I been trying every new medicine I heard of in an effort to get relief from stomach trouble, and during the search had not been in vain, for I have found simply marvelous relief through Tanlac," is the statement prominent Paducah business man, who has been a sufferer from indigestion for the past twelve years, but now connected with the Gardner Furniture Co., Paducah's largest house of its grades.

"I had liver trouble for a long time," he continued, and for months I suffered an infection that left me in terrible condition. I had no appetite, constipation bothered me almost continuously and I usually felt tired and worn out. I frequently became dizzy, and sometimes I would get so that I must walk over again, because my knees and ankles with clerk-like regularity now, the dizzy spells have ceased to appear and the terrible cough is 100 per cent better. I have gained seven pounds in all time 'prep' walked 22 blocks last evening and didn't feel tired a bit afterwards. Before, I'd fatigued me to walk to the store. I have recommended Tanlac to a number of friends. It helped me when its virtues had failed."

Tanlac is now being introduced and explained in at Turesan & Sen's Drug Store.

In loving remembrance of our friend, who was failed in the town of death, on Sunday afternoon, June 15th 1919, in early human blindness we question why this bright young man in all the glory and strength of youth, with such a promising future before him, should be suddenly stricken down from life, and home, and friends.

VERNON SMART

And yet why should we ask, knowing the "Lord never leaves a missing mark," and therefore has taken our brother to a better home, where he will be always brightened with his presence, into that, Heavenly home, where his splendid qualities shall shine undimmed.

Then sorrow—

Be not upon this world,

Will our creed in us aspire,

For we know as sure as earth

With us, you will meet.

We miss you in our homes

We miss you in our diversions,

We miss you everywhere and say

That brightened all our lives,

No more your smiling face

No more your voice,

No more we'll hear your voice,

In laughter and in song.

The boys who were your friends,

Will undoubtedly meet and farewell

New say, they have to them,

For we can fill your place.

Each drive that we now take,

Each table is lonely place,

Your grave upon the hill side,

Will have its vacant place.

But your body is dying there,

But your soul is free,

And long once more to talk with you,

Of my pleasures, as our own.

Dear friend, it was sad to hear,

That on your last drive,

The Angel of Death had called you

To witness by your side.

But we know you're better off,

Than you were here below,

"Twas God's will—He knew— His time— His way.

And we bid our humble submission,

And say, Thy will be done.

That when our call shall come,

We'll meet you in heavenly street,

We'll find you waiting for us,

Where partings are complete.

COAL SHORTAGE ON WAY; GOVT. SAYS BUY NOW

May Be Repetition of 1917-18 Conditions Next Winter Says Geological Survey.

MINES IDLE WITHOUT ORDERS.

Those Who Delay Ordering Longer May Not Get Their Fuel Later On.

The United States Geological Survey announced today that because of the probability of another general coal shortage next fall and winter. The announcement is based, the Survey states, upon a nation-wide study of conditions in the bituminous field. Urgent steps are taken at once, the survey says, to place the mines upon a basis of production sufficient to meet is every prospect of a repetition to some degree of the situation that prevailed in the United States during the winter of 1917-18.

The only way production can be stimulated at the present time, it said, is by placing orders with the mines for coal which will be stored for use. "Production during the first five months of the year," reads the statement, "fell 37,250,000 net tons, or approximately fifty tenes per cent, below the first five months of 1918. Mines are producing now at the rate of only 1,000,000 tons a week. An average of 10,250,000 tons a week must be maintained from June 1 to January 1 next, if the country's needs of 500,000,000 tons this year are to be met.

Exit of Delayed Orders.

At no time during this year has the country's requirements for coal been so quickly met. The tendency on the part of consumers to delay orders seems to be limiting production, as the withdrawal of orders was the cause of the present shortage of production, and when the rush of orders for the winter's needs comes next fall there is grave danger that there will be a repetition of the delays and the probability of less adequate supplies than will be available to meet the demands. The result of such a situation would be an abnormal demand for the requirements of deliberate consumers, and a consequent shortage and heavy profiteering.

"It is evident that requirements for this year," reads a Survey statement to the public, "will be much greater than the about 570,000,000 tons of bituminous coal mined in 1918. Approximately 100,000,000 tons have been used from stocks accumulated last year, leaving 500,000,000 tons to be produced. Of this 500,000,000 tons, approximately 200,000,000 tons must be mined during the first five months, leaving 300,000,000 tons for the remaining seven months, or an average of 10,250,000 tons a week.

"Unless this great production has been at the rate of 8,240,000 tons a week by July 1, 1919 production will be 40 per cent of 13,500,000 tons a week.

"This is a serious situation, and of no accomplishment. The capacity of operators and miners to produce coal when there is work on the payroll is about 50% lower than in normal year. This fact alone may be made up in part of wholly if consumers will place their orders at once and not delay a week before the threatened railroad embargo is declared.

"Every effort should be made and bend to have the force and effect of a judgment. Bidders will be required to comply promptly with these terms.

May Be Car Shortage.

"Present wage agreements between operators and miners expire with the termination of years for which they bind. A suspension of mining operations while wage matters are pending negotiated would, of course, seriously interfere with the supply of coal and if it should occur during the winter would cause great suffering and enormous loss of coal.

"There is no room for gambling upon this or any other country's supply of coal. Conservatism is the thing. The fire or the industrial engineer who does not adequate coal supply next winter can be certain of buying coal when there is no other way such assurance can be obtained. Conservatism also promises to be a limiting factor if the fuel tide of 1918 is repeated at the time when the country's record crops are being moved. Any such situation would appear certain, but, nevertheless, it is a possibility that the railroads of the country will be in position of its experience last fall, and there will be cause for alarm unless immense coal production, and for that reason it is urged that every effort be put forth to produce the maximum of the expected production of 500,000,000 tons of coal to be mined next year.

Shortage of labor already is a factor in the situation and there is reason to fear that the labor shortage will become real producing sections, according to the Survey report that from 30,000 to 40,000 men have left the mines since the first of January as soon as they can get open ports and that many have already returned to their former homes and will not be capable of producing but one supplies a ration of the amount of coal mined in districts where the mines labor is largely foreign born, and there are many such districts.

He who needs coal should hesitate no longer. Now is the time to buy coal.
