HAPPENINGS in the CITIES

This Judge Has Need of All of Solomon's Wisdom

NEW YORK—A love tangle with a new twist has developed here to the bewilderment of Supreme Court Justice Erlanger. Miss Marie Florence Bonfils, beautiful Denver actress, has filed suit for annulment of an infant bond by Fred Sanford Beckhouse, banker of Denver, and his wife.

Both sides admit that the girl is the mother of a baby boy, but there the similarity ends, further, that the profession is in dispute.

Mrs. Beckhouse is alleged that the professor's wife is insane and that the marriage is void. The actress charged the complaint is a conspiracy between Beckhouse and his wife to get rid of the baby's custody.

Prior to the former's marriage, and it was after the birth of the baby, Beckhouse, banker of Denver, is said to have visited her home.

Four years of married life have failed to close the Beckhouse rift with Reno.

According to George E. Coughlin, counsel for Miss Bonfils, the professor's wife designed the divorce romance herself, her husband and her girlfriend lived to expedite the rapidly deepening tragedy in the home of the banker and his wife.

When he showed an affection for Miss Bonfils it stimulated further suspicion, Coughlin declared.

Omaha Miser Defies Old H. C. L. to His Last Gasp

OMAHA—A. J. Sexton, seventy-seven years old, an Omaha miser worth a budget of expenditures of 15 cents a day for the past twenty years, died in a hospital here this week. He refused to increase his expenditures when other persons raised the cost of living. He cut down on the amount of food, he said, when the high cost of living began to be talked about, and refused to buy a doctor's medicine when he was taken ill, because he would not withstand the blood poison which developed from a cut on his hand. Sexton was a miser. Mrs. Harriet Sexton, his wife, died in 1913 of tuberculosis. She, while she lived, was denied the luxuries of life by her husband. Sexton left his entire fortune to his sister, Mrs. Harriet Sexton, who lives in Omaha.

Marriage Licenses Give Out; 15 Marriages Upset

DENVER—In consequence of an unprecedented rush for marriage licenses the H. C. L. the city clerk's office here, which provided the other morning when some fifteen couples were interrupted in the midst of the ceremony by the announcement that the marriage licenses issued by the clerk had been exhausted.

The line got so long a Sweetheart of a bridegroom-to-be had to wait in line for hours before he could get a license. The line of applicants for licenses reached around the block and the ceremonies were delayed for hours.

Fifteen couples were interrupted in the midst of the ceremony when the announcement was made that the supply of licenses had been exhausted. Many of the couples had come from other cities to be married here because of the ease with which licenses could be obtained here.

Famous Lost Gold Mine of Idaho Reported Found

SPOKANE—The famous lost mine of the Coeur d'Alene district of Idaho has been rediscovered, according to reports which have reached here from Wallace, Idaho, and which have been confirmed with quantities of new gold ore which have been brought to Spokane. The discovery is said to have been made by a prospector named Hall, who has been working in the district for several years. Hall is reported to have found the mine in the Coeur d'Alene district, and he was obliged to remain in the district for several days to keep others from locating claims in the vicinity of the discovery. He finally succeeded in getting to Wallace, Idaho, and from there to Spokane, where he is said to have disposed of a number of rich specimens of gold ore.

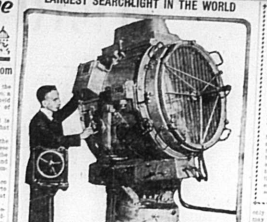
The lost mine of the Coeur d'Alene district is said to be one of the richest gold mines ever discovered in the state of Idaho. It was discovered by a prospector named Hall, who has been working in the district for several years. Hall is reported to have found the mine in the Coeur d'Alene district, and he was obliged to remain in the district for several days to keep others from locating claims in the vicinity of the discovery. He finally succeeded in getting to Wallace, Idaho, and from there to Spokane, where he is said to have disposed of a number of rich specimens of gold ore.

Judge Landis Affects Many Men Just Like That

CHICAGO—Max Stein, theatrical manager, is another Judge Landis has fined baseball players for participating in baseball games while under suspension. Stein was fined $100 and costs by Judge Landis after he had admitted that he had permitted Hal Chase, Buck Weaver and Happy Felsch, White Sox baseball players, to play baseball with a team he was managing at Mineral Wells, Texas, while they were under suspension.

Stein said that he had been told that Chase was under suspension, but that Weaver and Felsch had been reinstated. Stein was fined $100 and costs by Judge Landis after he had admitted that he had permitted Hal Chase, Buck Weaver and Happy Felsch, White Sox baseball players, to play baseball with a team he was managing at Mineral Wells, Texas, while they were under suspension.

LARGEST SEARCHLIGHT IN THE WORLD



This, the largest searchlight in the world, is the invention of Elmer A. Sperry. It has 1,500,000,000 candle power, and is so powerful that its rays will light cigarettes and melt lead at a distance of 12 feet.

Device Shoots Words as Gun Shoots Shells

London.—In a small room at the Imperial College of Technology, South Kensington, Prof. A. G. Webster, of Clark University, has invented a device which shoots messages as a gun shoots shells.

A person talking into a transmitter connected to a machine operated by a strong light ray sends a message to any distance desired, to be received by the light without fear of the interception of the message by any one.

The words spoken can be heard only by the person to whom the message is addressed, according to an electric battery attached to the receiving machine and connected with a telephone receiver. The greater the distance the stronger the battery.

MRS. LEEDS NOT ROYAL PRINCESS

Recent Marriage to Christopher of Greece Did Not Give Her That Status.

PRINCE RENOUNCES HIS RANK

American Woman's Only Title Now Is Countess Gluckelsburg, Official Athens Gazette Says—Similar Cases Recalled.

New York.—Cable dispatches from Athens effectively dispose of the assumption that Mrs. William H. Leeds, formerly Lucretia Vanderbilt, daughter of Cornelius Vanderbilt, youngest daughter of the late Commodore, became a princess when she married Prince George of Greece, second son of the late King of Greece, in accordance with the custom of the Hellenic royal family of conferring princely rank upon the consorts of the princes of the royal house.

The latest issues of the official gazette of Athens contain the announcement by the Hellenic government that Prince George has renounced his princely rank and that Mrs. George Christopher, before he married her, was only entitled to be known as Countess Gluckelsburg, the name of the family of which Prince George is a member.

Mrs. Leeds, who was Miss Alice Heine of New Orleans, married Prince Christopher when he was traveling incognito as Mr. Schmidt. Mrs. Leeds is the mother of Princess Xenia, wife of Prince Andrew of Greece, and of Princess Theodora, wife of Prince Berthold of Baden.

The custom of maybe eight in the province of Quebec is to present a bride a pound of sugar for every pound she weighs.

Finds $1,200,000 Order; Returns It; Reward of $2

Finds $1,200,000 Order; Returns It; Reward of $2

Toronto.—Harry Hahn, a newsboy, was assigned to deliver a message on Queen Street car. He looked at the address on the envelope and found it was for Timothy Eaton, head of the Eaton department store. He delivered it and received a reward of $2, and the message proved to be an honest mistake.

Adrift with Humor

SILENCED.

A young fellow who married a rich man's daughter was in the habit of troubling his father-in-law with complaints about his wife's behavior.

"Really, this is too bad!" cried the irascible old gentleman one day after some time had been spent in the recital of new domestic grievances. "If I hear of any more complaints I will disinherit her."

There were no more.

Sow but Sure.

The Clergyman—You ought to put in more effort—a man won't have to wait so long.

The Farmer—I put if just right now. As it is when a guy comes in here he's lucky if he's held over a day by the time his turn comes.

The Extreme.

"Mr. Cutrate is certainly mad when his wife told him to eat his ice cream with a spoon."

"What did he say?"

"That the next fad would be to make him eat his soup with a fork."

Some Tough Luck.

Knicker—The old fool married the girl for her money, but she has all the money now and he won't get a cent.

Bocker—Why don't he write it down?

Knicker—Why, he can't write.

Their Use.

Polly: I can't walk across the street in high heels, can you, Dolly?

Dolly—Why, no! Aren't you glad?

In the Crowd.

"Love is a pickle in this jam," observed the optimistic jelly.

"Heaven preserve us," moaned the others.

Speed but Not Joy.

Grimes: I understand that my son is learning to fly.

Jones (with envy in his voice): Yes, he's a fine young Lochinvar.

Degrees of Improvement.

"Is your typewriter in a great improvement in a busy office."

"Yes, I guess it would be one that didn't chew gum."

His Class.

"I told him when he proposed that marriage was a lottery."

"And what did he say?"

"He looked blank."

Seems So.

"If there were a navy aviation school—"

"It ought to be easy enough to find a place to learn to navigate."

More Substantial.

"Don't you enjoy a verbal feast?"

"No; I'd rather have a feast that I could sink something besides tongue."

Unusual Scarcity.

"I am going into the romance, sir, for there is only a very limited supply of this stuff for sale now at this price."

"Heaven soon are the suckers going out already?"

Real Effort.

"Are you doing nothing to try and make a living?"

"You wrong me, dad. I am doing my best to marry some girl with a good paying job."

A Glad Assurance.

"Does the crowing of our rooster annoy you?" inquired the considerate neighbor.

"No," said Mr. Crossley. "There's food to be scarce. I'm proud to be noticed that there is poultry in the neighborhood."

Mean Revenge.

"That couple were very unpopular in the office, but we got even with them when they were married."

"What did you do?"

"Showered them."

Tough Job.

"I don't think I'd like to be a pearl diver."

"Why not?"

"You're in half if you don't get a ship and in worse if you don't."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Fairly So.

"Did you follow the diet I advised?" "Yes, doctor."

"Faithfully?"

"Well, ironically so. I said grace about three times out of five, I should guess."—Boston Transcript.

IN JEWELRY FADS

Decorations Sensational Rather Than Extravagant.

Throat Latch and Pendant With Matching Earrings Head the Most Comment.

The present mode of wearing all sorts of jewelry is a matter of study at this stage when it may merely be referred to as the extravagant, the sensational, according to a Paris fashion writer. Never before have such priceless jewelry been seen everywhere during the season, the writer declares.

The jewel which created the most comment is a throat latch and pendant with matching earrings, made of platinum and diamonds. The chain is of platinum, with a diamond clasp and of the same design, the pendant which is said to hold the three cupids of platinum and brilliants. The earrings are of platinum and diamonds.

A Famous Parisienne boasts more than one hundred pairs of earrings, the simplest possible outfit for hair because it is a low knot at the nape of the neck. Earrings are worn in pairs, often fell in love with Miss Mary Esther Reynolds, of Louisville, and permitted to marry her, as he did in 1913, until he had made a fortune. Then he left her and went to Copenhagen. He was not content to surrendered his royal rank for the sake of marriage, and he had accepted the rank of ordinary noble.

Still another case was that of Prince Henry Bureau of Belgium, who fell in love with Miss Mary Esther Reynolds, of Louisville, and permitted to marry her, as he did in 1913, until he had made a fortune. Then he left her and went to Copenhagen. He was not content to surrendered his royal rank for the sake of marriage, and he had accepted the rank of ordinary noble.

Still another case was that of Prince Henry Bureau of Belgium, who fell in love with Miss Mary Esther Reynolds, of Louisville, and permitted to marry her, as he did in 1913, until he had made a fortune. Then he left her and went to Copenhagen. He was not content to surrendered his royal rank for the sake of marriage, and he had accepted the rank of ordinary noble.

Miady's spring or summer wardrobes are not complete unless she has one of these stunning white fox neck pieces.

FURS TO BE SUMMER CRAZE

FEMININE FANCIES

Which leather sweaters are popular.

The new Basque blouse has a high collar.

Pearl is the latest lingerie trimming.

Pearl is used for children's hats.

The new tulip is engraved.

Fur trimmings are features of the season.

Sweaters are worn with tailored suits.

The new spandex is trimmed in pearls.

Black satin draped with fancy net.

Black with striped white and black.

Black satin draped with fancy net.

The preference for green and white, even greater prominence and despite the fact that the new shades of green have become almost fashionable colors.

Feathers are quite as elaborate in the new hats as ostrich plumes and tips.

Brilliant embroidery in bright colors is used on many of the new blouses.

Sweaters for Spring.

Many lines of women's sweaters for spring show that the popular colors will be the new shades of green, with white and black. Some of the sweaters are in plain designs, while others have a contrasting trimming. Some of the sweaters are in the form of a jumper, that was the vogue last fall. Others are in the form of a coat, and still others are in the form of a sweater. Many of the sweaters are in the form of a coat of the tuxedo garment.

HAT MADE OF WOOD SHAVINGS

From wood pulp and shavings the exquisite hat is fashioned. It was shown in Paris and is the latest creation of other late Parisian ideas.

GERMANY SWEPT BY CRIME WAVE

Burglars, Hold-up Men and "Aristocratic Swindlers" Are Reaping Harvest.

MURDERERS ALSO ARE BUSY

Cafes and American Bars Are Resorts for Pickpockets and Those Disposed Souls at Everyday Occurrence in German Capital.

Berlin.—Berlin is feeling and suffering the effects of the crime wave which has been sweeping over Germany since the beginning of the war. Burglaries, hold-up men and "aristocratic swindlers" are reaping a harvest. Almost every day brings reports of new crimes, and the police are at their wits' end to cope with the situation. Murderers also are busy.

Cafes and American bars are favorite resorts for pickpockets and those disposed souls at everyday occurrence in German capital.

Berlin—Berlin is feeling and suffering the effects of the crime wave which has been sweeping over Germany since the beginning of the war. Burglaries, hold-up men and "aristocratic swindlers" are reaping a harvest. Almost every day brings reports of new crimes, and the police are at their wits' end to cope with the situation. Murderers also are busy.

Cafes and American bars are favorite resorts for pickpockets and those disposed souls at everyday occurrence in German capital.

How About New Handbag?

Series of Fascinating Loops is Late Style; How the Convenience is Constructed.

And here is some more fun for the forty delectable ways of carrying a handbag. Here is a bag with a loop in it. It is a bead bag, this time, and the loop is of beads, too, and is attached to the bag in a series of perfectly fascinating loops.

But you never know exactly how to hold them, and you never know exactly how to carry them. You have to carry them in your hand, and that is the trouble with them. They are not convenient to wear on the arm, and they are not convenient to carry in the hand. They are not convenient to carry at all, and they are not convenient to wear at all. They are not convenient to carry at all, and they are not convenient to wear at all. They are not convenient to carry at all, and they are not convenient to wear at all.

Are Very Delicate in Coloring

New Voile Dresses Contrast With Those of Handkerchief Linen Which Are Very Gay.

While the new voile dresses are delicate in coloring, those of handkerchief linen are very gay. The pale blues and pinks of past summers are eclipsed by the brilliant flight of even deep mahogany hints of this year. Handkerchiefs are introduced in these same bright shades. An orange color is the favorite one in many ways and is used very quickly in a wine shade. Another color is the favorite one in many ways and is used very quickly in a wine shade. An orange color is the favorite one in many ways and is used very quickly in a wine shade.

CAUSE LIBRARIAN TO SMILE

Humorous Mixups in the Titles of Books Are a Matter of Daily Occurrence.

The branch of the public library at Thirty-fourth and Illinois streets is heated with a large stove. A pitcher of water is kept on the stove most of the time, the Sunday afternoon the fire was boosting and the pitcher singing merrily. The quietness of the room was broken suddenly by a request giggle. In answer to a surprised glance from the librarian a girl, her cheeks flushing, the gathers being held in place by a black-and-white ticket which read "Low as a nest. The desk signer has decided against the use of the stove, and it is becoming to any woman. It is the combination of the color of a kitty and the quietness that is much like a little cage leader. It is a little cage leader. It is a low neckline. Lisene and voiles, in addition to the fashion field entirely to them.

REMARKABLE METEOR.

Numerous observations of the brilliant meteor seen in the early evening of October 21, 1919, show that it was a fragment of the first magnitude even more a point of revolution southeast of York, England, to thirty miles southeast of St. Pierre, according to the Scientific American. It traveled at a speed of about thirty-three miles a second and its average altitude was seventy-four miles.

FORGED CAMEOS.

Hundreds of treasured cameos and gems, for which large sums have been paid, are worthless, although many are the productions of art. To the experienced eye forgeries were detected have chances been forged that, after a certain French court had spent $2,000 in forging a cameo, it was discovered that the stone was worthless. Despite of separating the false from the true, he parted with the lot for a fraction of what they had cost him.

Adrift with Humor

SILENCED.

A young fellow who married a rich man's daughter was in the habit of troubling his father-in-law with complaints about his wife's behavior.

"Really, this is too bad!" cried the irascible old gentleman one day after some time had been spent in the recital of new domestic grievances. "If I hear of any more complaints I will disinherit her."

There were no more.

Sow but Sure.

The Clergyman—You ought to put in more effort—a man won't have to wait so long.

The Farmer—I put if just right now. As it is when a guy comes in here he's lucky if he's held over a day by the time his turn comes.

The Extreme.

"Mr. Cutrate is certainly mad when his wife told him to eat his ice cream with a spoon."

"What did he say?"

"That the next fad would be to make him eat his soup with a fork."

Some Tough Luck.

Knicker—The old fool married the girl for her money, but she has all the money now and he won't get a cent.

Bocker—Why don't he write it down?

Knicker—Why, he can't write.

Their Use.

Polly: I can't walk across the street in high heels, can you, Dolly?

Dolly—Why, no! Aren't you glad?

In the Crowd.

"Love is a pickle in this jam," observed the optimistic jelly.

"Heaven preserve us," moaned the others.

Speed but Not Joy.

Grimes: I understand that my son is learning to fly.

Jones (with envy in his voice): Yes, he's a fine young Lochinvar.

Degrees of Improvement.

"Is your typewriter in a great improvement in a busy office."

"Yes, I guess it would be one that didn't chew gum."

His Class.

"I told him when he proposed that marriage was a lottery."

"And what did he say?"

"He looked blank."

Seems So.

"If there were a navy aviation school—"

"It ought to be easy enough to find a place to learn to navigate."

More Substantial.

"Don't you enjoy a verbal feast?"

"No; I'd rather have a feast that I could sink something besides tongue."

Unusual Scarcity.

"I am going into the romance, sir, for there is only a very limited supply of this stuff for sale now at this price."

"Heaven soon are the suckers going out already?"

Real Effort.

"Are you doing nothing to try and make a living?"

"You wrong me, dad. I am doing my best to marry some girl with a good paying job."

A Glad Assurance.

"Does the crowing of our rooster annoy you?" inquired the considerate neighbor.

"No," said Mr. Crossley. "There's food to be scarce. I'm proud to be noticed that there is poultry in the neighborhood."

Mean Revenge.

"That couple were very unpopular in the office, but we got even with them when they were married."

"What did you do?"

"Showered them."

Tough Job.

"I don't think I'd like to be a pearl diver."

"Why not?"

"You're in half if you don't get a ship and in worse if you don't."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Fairly So.

"Did you follow the diet I advised?" "Yes, doctor."

"Faithfully?"

"Well, ironically so. I said grace about three times out of five, I should guess."—Boston Transcript.

HOMES OF BRICK ARE SUBSTANTIAL

Are Warm in Winter and Cool in Summer.

DESIGN WITH STRONG APPEAL

Shows Seven-Room Modern House of Buff Brick—Makes Exceptionally Good Home Building Suggestion—30 by 36 Feet.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer any question pertaining to building or building materials. Address him in care of this paper and inclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope for reply. Mr. Radford will not make plans or specifications for readers, but will give suggestions and information that will be helpful to those who intend to build.

Second Floor Plan.

Brick is a material that always appeals to home builders. Homes of brick are warm in winter and cool in summer. In extreme cold weather it cannot be surpassed for the reason that the various colors of the brick lend themselves to harmonious contrasts. Another claim to the popularity of brick is that its upkeep is low.

Herewith is shown a seven-room house, with exterior walls of buff brick. The color is such that the illustration this house might be taken for one made of red brick. The wide, open porch is the principal feature of the front elevation, but the porch and balcony above, the gable roof, the dormer windows help considerably.

Inside, this house is well arranged. It contains seven good-sized rooms and bath, kept, fourth enough in the first floor plan to make it a home. The living room is 12 by 15 feet, with a fireplace at one end. The dining room is 10 by 12 feet, with a door opening to the porch. The kitchen is 8 by 12 feet, with a door opening to the porch. The bedrooms are 10 by 12 feet, with a door opening to the porch. The bathroom is 6 by 8 feet, with a door opening to the porch.

First Floor Plan.

The second floor plan shows a bedroom, 10 by 12 feet, with a door opening to the porch. The bedroom is 10 by 12 feet, with a door opening to the porch. The bedroom is 10 by 12 feet, with a door opening to the porch. The bedroom is 10 by 12 feet, with a door opening to the porch.

The first floor plan shows a living room, 12 by 15 feet, with a fireplace at one end. The dining room is 10 by 12 feet, with a door opening to the porch. The kitchen is 8 by 12 feet, with a door opening to the porch. The bedrooms are 10 by 12 feet, with a door opening to the porch. The bathroom is 6 by 8 feet, with a door opening to the porch.

The second floor plan shows a bedroom, 10 by 12 feet, with a door opening to the porch. The bedroom is 10 by 12 feet, with a door opening to the porch. The bedroom is 10 by 12 feet, with a door opening to the porch. The bedroom is 10 by 12 feet, with a door opening to the porch.

TWO OF A KIND.

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD.

Stuart Bruce lay stretched out on the floor of the living room, where the little grove adjacent to the farm house. The fragrance of the pines and the fine grass adjacent to the farm house. The fragrance of the pines and the fine grass adjacent to the farm house. The fragrance of the pines and the fine grass adjacent to the farm house.

Evelyn Sherwood came out on the dining room to the veranda, humming softly beautiful in a filmy gown with seeming gauzy over her body. Sitting down on the top step, she looked out across the garden and looked out across the lake. Just then a tall figure loomed out of the semi-darkness at her elbow and, although she started, she knew it was Stuart.

"Why," said Stuart modestly, "was I not all right? That makes me sore, the dad."

Evelyn was beginning to be a bit puzzled.

"Isn't school do you teach in?" and dearly inquired Stuart out of a clear sky.

"Me—teach?" Evelyn threw back her head and laughed musically. "And you never read about problems?" said Stuart, relieved and resolved.

"Problems of pedagogy?" laughed Evelyn. "No. But if you're interested in that, I'll tell you. I think I will read it from Miss Baker, the pretty little blonde who lives next door. She's a graduate and like that when I loaned her a book I always get it back. Then I can't help reading it, and I'm very fond of society, and when I'm not reading I'm knitting for the Red Cross yet too tiresome I run away and go to the movies. Now you know how I prefer life better?" asked Evelyn Sherwood.

Stuart looked at her in amazement. "Is that all?" he said. "Is that the answer? But I'll ask Bentley. He knows."

At which remark Evelyn blushed—the thick end to her cheeks and the tip of her nose. "Please don't mention to the silly chatter, incoherent and slangy, of a couple of school girls.

But Stuart was talking. "Miss Sherwood, I have been deceiving you in a way. I have not yet told you that I'm Bruce, but Bruce Stuart McDonald—the Stuart Bruce Evelyn knew was a figment of his brain. He had made him up to fill in his leisure moments, but he never thought he would be known by that name. Now that I've met you I'm glad I made it up, for I'm glad I made it up, for I'm glad I made it up, for